Vegetable Growers' Convention.

The annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America will be held at the La Salle hotel, Chicago, September 26-29, 1916. The programme includes an extensive trade exhibit, round table discussions and addresses by leading gardeners, truck farmers, greenhouse men, and representatives from various colleges, experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture. Marketing, soil fertility, heating, packing, spraying and other subjects will be covered in the programme, which is being prepared and will be announced soon.

An invitation to attend the convention is extended to everyone interested in the work of the association. Advance indications predict the largest and most enthusiastic convention ever held. Hotel reservations at the La Salle should be made early by members of the association and others who expect to attend. Additional informa-

NEPH. JOHN WANAMAKER

"The Wanamaker Boston Fern"

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII

The greatly improved Amerpohlii. It is a compact form, much finer than Amerpohlii, and does not break down in the center. The fronds are carried on wiry stems. This variety will have a wonderful sale up to a 6-inch pot, being particularly showy for basket work.

NEPHROLEPIS ROBUSTA

Place orders at once for Nephrolepis Robusta.
The Silver Medal Fern at the National Flower Show, winning over all competition. We claim this variety to be the finest of all crested Neph-rolepis, being exceptionally fine in large sizes.
It is the strongest grower of all the Nephrolepis Ferns, never reverts, and every plant is symmetrical and salable in all sizes.

EARLY MORNING STAR The color is a deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard with rich orange pink wings.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.25; oz., $4.50 net.

EARLY SONG BIRD This will be the leading pale pink for Florists. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer" and a bit lighter than "Elfrida Pearson." It has the same excellent form and features of Mrs. Hugh Dickson but is on white ground.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY MELODY This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer" and near "Hercules." It might be described as rose pink on white ground.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY SPRING MAID The color is light pink on a cream ground and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of "Mrs. Hugh Dickson" for a florist's flower.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY SNOW FLAKE This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.25; oz., $4.50.

EARLY HEATHER BELL The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender.

Gypsy Moth Quarantine on Stone.

The fact having been determined that egg clusters of the gypsy moth are being distributed on stone and quarry products from infested regions in New England, the secretary of agriculture has quarantined such sections and has ordered that no such material be moved interstate except in compliance with conditions of the quarantine. The district affected embraces specified towns in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Rosa Jackii.

This beautiful rose was introduced into the arboretum from Korea several years ago by J. G. Jack, for whom it is named. It is one of the multifloræ roses and has long stems which lie flat on the ground, lustrous foliage and pure white flowers in wide many-flowered clusters. The flowers have the delicate fragrance of the musk rose. The hybridizer should be able to find in it a good subject from which to raise a race of hardy late-flowering rambler roses. It is now in bloom in the shrub collection.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July 19, 1916.

Immune Chestnuts.

How to checkmate the new chestnut blight or bark disease that is causing such vast destruction is a problem of no small importance. From its obscure beginnings in eastern New York about 12 years ago, it has swept into 19 states, and now affects about all of the northern half of our native chestnut stands, doing damage estimated at close upon $50,000,000. It attacks the trees in twig, branch, and trunk, causing death in a year or two, and soon recurs in the sprouts or suckers sent up from the still living roots. No native chestnut appears to be spared in the long run, but the little eastern bush chinquapin, with its smoother bark and comparative freedom from insect enemies, appears less readily attacked. The European chestnut, in its favorite varieties is also subject to the disease, but when we come to the chestnuts of Japan and China we find very great resistance, amounting in some varieties to almost practical immunity. There appears to be now no method of controlling this disease, which is caused by a fungus whose spores are carried about by birds and insects, creating new infections wherever they reach the sap wood or inner bark of the chestnut tree. There is no apparent diminution of its virulence since it came under observation.

The most obvious means of replacing the great losses of chestnut timber and nuts would seem to lie in the substitution for our native forms the Asiatic species that best resist the disease, having evidently for ages been accustomed to its presence, and also to breed the chestnut as a valuable genus of forest trees, by hybridization and selection for the avowed production of varieties better adapted for our purposes.

Some chestnut breeding has already been accomplished in various parts of our country, and generally with good results. A promising experiment of this character has been under the direction of the Office of Forest Pathology of the Department of Agriculture for several years.

Hybrids between the highly resistant Japan chestnut and our native chinquapin have been raised in considerable numbers, quickly forming handsome dwarf trees, bearing at an early age profuse crops of nuts of excellent quality, five or six times the size of those of the wild chinquapin parent, and ripening weeks before any other chestnuts. So far these trees show a very high degree of disease resistance. The second generation of hybrids, grown from self or chance pollinated nuts, appear quite as good as their parents, which is an important feature when the cost of propagation of nut trees by budding and grafting is considered. Another line of breeding lies in the intercrossing of disease-resisting Japan and Chinese varieties that are rapidly being imported into this country by the Office of Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction, and selection of the best resulting forms. Four generations of cross-bred Japan chestnuts of a very early-bearing type, producing nuts when two or three years old, have already been grown, and the varietal characters appear to be well fixed. Some of the Chinese chestnuts are said to grow nearly 100 feet high in their home forests, and it may be possible by their use to replace in some measure our vanishing native chestnut stands, and perhaps develop very superior varieties during the process of acclimatization.

The hybrid chinquapins and cross-bred chestnuts referred to in this article are not yet available for distribution to the public for testing, since they are being held for further observations as to their varietal characters and the degree of disease resistance and for more extensive propagation.

Is Just Around The Corner

First thing you know, he will jog your memory about those sash you ought to have bought.

We are jogging it gently now.

He won't care how roughly he does it.

His jogs, cost you money.

Our jogs, save you money.

Here then is our gentle jog in the form of a Special Sash Offer

IT'S your chance to get right in on the ground floor and buy the right sash at decidedly the right price.

The remarkable thing about this offer, is, that in the face of the great advances in price of all the materials and labor that goes into the sash, still we are not raising the price a penny.

You can buy 25 to 50 or 100 sash this year at exactly the same Special Offer price you did last year.

But the Offer holds good for 30 days only. After that, the chances are a sharp advance in price will be made.

Prices Advancing.

Can anyone tell us why the grower should not pass this condition of advanced prices along to the consumer? He is charged an extra expense on everything bought; even labor comes at a much higher rate and shorter hours are demanded. The profits in the past must have been enormous, or else he is now compelled to sell his production at a loss.

Upon careful inquiry among representative growers, we find several who have made advances, but the majority are timid, claiming that their competitors would not advance, and that they would be unable to move their own stock, losing sight of the fact that everyone is facing the advance equally. The demand for good, clean stock has always been greater than the supply, and along this line, would it not be far better to grow less stock, grow it better and get a better price, than to continue crowding, which means partial neglect and also means selling at a lower price?

The writer agrees that everyone should receive a fair price and that the laborer should also receive fair wages. The main expense in production of everything is labor, and we are all paying more for this, and from present outlook will have to face other advances. The writer, while not a florist, is connected with the manufacture of goods used by the trade and is brought in daily contact with them and sees how the florist is compelled to face advance after advance, until he has reached a point where he will have to increase his selling prices to keep ahead of his growing and overhead costs, or else quit.

In my line the cost of labor has been 65 and 70 per cent of the cost of production, and with labor now about double the previous cost, it will be necessary to pass it on to the next fellow, the grower, or quit. It is certainly time something should be done to improve present conditions.

Some of the larger growers who issue printed price lists, have already increased—in some cases double—and it's up to the smaller florist to follow, or continue to do business at a loss.

It is up to you to start now and figure—then it will be your own fault if you fail.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made. You can refer anyone to us.
MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.,

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers No Worry

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass—would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 23, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers and do not worry about their breaking down.

Make the Garden More Beautiful

They have a special style of construction which, while very strong, does away with heavy shadow casting supports. This makes every King especially sunny and productive and enables you to give your garden an earlier start.

Then this special construction, noted for its graceful sweeping lines, can be adapted to suit any style architecture or landscape plan. The King is in itself the beauty spot of the garden.

Write for Bulletin No. 47—Send us a picture of your home. Tell us your own ideas, and let our experts prepare a sketch and plan showing just how a King can add dignity and grace to your garden—No obligation on your part of course.

The County Fair.

The county fair is in full bloom
And every one is gay.
Lem Pollock's soaked with musk perfume
Just in the same old way.
Si Pivens makes his buttons fly
Hitting the swat machine.
One plugged Jim Simson in the eye
And made him fighting mean.

Matilda Dobson won the prize
Doing her schottische swing;
Whereat her rivals all made eyes
At Till, conceited thing!
Zeke Sugson squandered seven bones—
Shell game—it made him squint.
Say, that poor victim's undertones
Ain't decent words to print.

The baby show was something great;
One mother was made glad.
The winner won the endless hate
Of mothers who were mad.
Len Perkins dealt his cider out,
A nickel for a cup;
By heck! Len's beverage was stout Enough to tank one up.

The Governor he made a speech—
But what he meant to say
Was lost, the babes began to screech
In a most scandalous way.
And now the folks are racing home,
Cahooting in the rain.
They're fading in the drizzling gloam—
Next year they'll come again.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the finest fall perennials is the Anemone Japonica, which is now in bloom, and if it is not included in the grower's stock at present, it should be procured. There are both white and pink, but for general use the former is to be preferred. Where the plants are in bloom a framework should be built over them that heavy cloth may be drawn over and protect them from the early frosts, and they will bloom for some two or three weeks yet. If it is desired to increase the stock, a plant can be lifted and the roots cut into several pieces about an inch long and the pieces inserted in the propagating bench and they will root in about four weeks. Put them in 2½-inch pots and when the roots have spread into the soil the pots can be placed under a bench and run dry until spring, when they should be potted in 3-inch pots and grown on until all danger of frost is passed and then planted out.

Cannas.

As soon as the frost kills the cannas, preparations should be made for the storing of the stock plants for next year. The tops should be cut off about six inches above the ground and removed from the field and not left lying around to attract cut worm millers. The roots should be dug and each variety should be carefully kept separate so that there will be no chance of their being mixed another season. Unless the weather is very severe they can be allowed to dry off a little before being housed, but if there is any chance of the night temperature dropping below the freezing point it is much better to get them under safe covering at once. Under a bench in a cool house is one of the best places to keep them during the winter months, but if the soil under the bench is inclined to be moist, boards should be placed running lengthwise of the bench and the canna roots placed upon these. They must, however, be looked over occasionally to see that they do not run too dry, for there is just as much danger of losing the plants by their drying up as there is by their rotting from an excess of moisture. In placing the clumps under the bench set each variety by itself and leave space enough between it and another variety that it will be impossible, no matter what may happen, for them to get mixed. Mark each variety with a label, written plainly and in full. It takes but a few seconds longer to write the name in full and abbreviations are to be deprecated; we have known cases where the man who always does things in a hurry to abbreviate the name so short that when he tried to read them six months later he could not make out what name he intended to write. This is often a case where "haste makes waste." Attach the labels in such a manner that they will not become misplaced or lost.

Early Firing.

"Economy is wealth." This maxim has been drilled into the young for generations, but false economy is waste. And to put off starting the fires until all the plants have cold feet, and have received a check that is going to take them two or three months from which to recover is false economy. As soon as the temperature in the house drops below the point at which it should be maintained, it well pays to start the fires. Many nights at this time of the year at 8 o'clock the temperature outside will be above 60°, but by morning it has dropped to 40°, and if the houses are closed the glass will be covered with moisture, the house cold and damp. This condition is not at all conducive to good growth, and gives the plant a check from which it often takes it some time to recover. It is far better and a money-making proposition to have the fires going and the proper temperatures maintained. The small expense of a little coal burned and the few weeks' wages of a night foreman that are necessary will be more than made up in the excellence of the crop. At this season of the year there will occur cold, stormy days when a little heat will be necessary to keep up the growing temperature all day. This is the time to look over all the piping and see if the boilers are working right. If steam heat is used see that none of the pipes have dropped from their fastenings and have made pockets in the circulation. If this has happened, fasten them up and straighten out the flows. Turn on the valves and see if they leak, and if they do repack them; in fact, it is good policy to repack all valves every fall, whether they actually need it or not, for they will require it before the winter is over. This early firing will also give the opportunity to spread sulphur and nicotine extracts on the pipes and keep the insects and mildew from getting a foothold. Looking at this question from all sides, early firing is an economical proposition and should not be neglected.

Cleaning Up After Frost.

Every spring, from all sections of the country, come reports of the great amount of damage being done by cut worms in the fields of many growers, and as they are very difficult to combat in the open ground, a great loss is consequently the result. While the cut worms are unsuccessfully fought in the spring, they can be overcome by a little labor spent in the fall. The moths lay their eggs in the fall on any vegetation that is left, either weeds or the refuse of the crops that is allowed to remain on the ground either standing or lying around. It is therefore clearly understood that the best thing to do is to clean up the field of all vegetation and burn it up or cover it with soil and make manure of it, and then plow the ground and turn under any small weeds that might harbor the eggs. Deep fall plowing pays anyway in the crop for the succeeding year, improving the soil, and if this small amount of work will get rid of the cut worms it will amply repay for all the labor and expense. Many use this old rubbish for the covering of tender stock, but leaves and straw are far preferable for this purpose. The vegetation that is left after being killed by the frost is too full of water and will lie too close, and after the fall rains, will make too compact a mass upon the plants which it is intended they should protect, and as the freezing weather comes on become a solid mass of ice. It is much better to put all this rubbish in a compost pile and cover it with earth. The fermentation will kill all the insects and their eggs, and it will make fine manure for pot culture, or if this is not done dry it out thoroughly and burn it. The appearance of the ground will be improved, the soil benefited and the worms killed by giving the field a thorough cleaning and plowing.

Bouvardias.

As the weather becomes cooler the pinching back of bouvardias should cease and the flowering shoots be allowed to grow. The plants should be well established in the bench or pots and making good growth. Give them a cool, light situation and with all the ventilation possible; these plants are of cool nature and relish plenty of good fresh air. If grown too warm, bouvardias soon become infested with insects and stop flowering, and the plants are quickly ruined. Keep the soil free from weeds and well stirred on the surface, and be careful not to overwater until the roots have filled the soil. Keep a lookout for both aphids and red spider; the aphids quickly cover the soft, tender growths, and if the weather is warm the plants become quickly infested with spider. Constant syringings and frequent fumigation is necessary to keep these pests in check and insure a good crop of flowers. Keep the plants tied up in shape that the stems may be straight and erect.

Hydrangeas.

The hydrangea plants in the field should be now potted and made ready for winter quarters. If the plants have still a strong succulent growth they can be left standing out where the wood will be given a chance to ripen off. After potting they should be given a good watering that the soil may be settled around the roots, but after that the plants should be sparingly watered. The main object at this time is to harden the plants off and ripen them up. Never mind if the foliage wilts to some extent, for it is desirable that this should all drop off before storing away for the winter. A few frosts will be of benefit, but as the weather is uncertain they should be placed in a position where they can be conveniently covered and protected from a severe freeze. While it is desirous to harden up the wood and plump up the flowering bud, yet too hard a freeze will kill the bud. As soon as well ripened they should be placed in cool quarters where they will remain dormant until it is time to start them.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Dahlia as a Cut Flower.

With the first cool days of September, the dahlia, the most gorgeously colored flower of the year, is ushered in. Coming as it does at a time when there is generally a scarcity of other flowers, it is most welcome, and on account of its comparatively low price is handled in quantity.

Dahlias, while field grown and apparently of great vigor, must be handled with the greatest care; they must not be subjected to draughts or be allowed to wilt. From the plant to the box in which they are transported, they should have as little handling as possible. In the case of all large or fancy sorts, they should be packed but one layer to a box and not disturbed until exposed for sale in the retail store. The present methods of packing in shallow, corrugated pasteboard boxes, several crated together, appears ideal and can scarcely be improved upon.

For all kinds of decorations in the early fall they are wonderfully effective; when used in connection with autumn leaves, their brilliant reds, yellow, pink, orange and variegated blending nicely with the golden brown and green of the oak leaves. The large loose petaled cactus sorts are very showy, as are also the immense singles of the Century type. Dorothy Peacock, the splendid pink, and Jack Rose, the elegant crimson, are high grade in every respect and suitable for the choicest box. For sale as loose flowers by the dozen at a moderate price, to encourage the purchasing of flowers at the opening of the season, they should be kept in stock in quantity. Liberal displays in the window, one day one color, the next another, are sure to attract attention. One or more show baskets, with a number of smaller ones nicely filled and ready for immediate delivery to be most effective, all of one color, will be found good sellers.

The dealer does not want to do things by halves—he must get enthusiastic; he must make up his mind that he is going to sell dahlias, and then talk dahlias and do everything else he can to impress his customers that they, being the flower of the season, are the most popular and suitable for almost any occasion. They will make up beautifully into sprays or wreaths and will bring as much as almost any other flowers if properly finished with suitable ribbons, etc.

For a table centerpiece or more elaborate dinner decoration, very beautiful effects can be produced with the many highly colored forms of this flower. The Geisha Girl with its huge parrot like coloring of orange and red will, in connection with croton leaves and sprays, together with fronds of some of the crested varieties of Boston fern, make an attractive table. Except to be made up into work as a foundation, dahlias more than a day old should not be sold. They may look all right, but if placed in a warm room, or where a draught may strike them, will soon wilt and fall apart and make a serious nick in somebody's reputation.

The following are a list of varieties that are best suited to be sold as cut-flowers, their keeping and carrying qualities being of the best:

Fancy—John Wanamaker, Geisha Girl.

White—Perle du Parc, Perle de Lyon.

Crimson—Jack Rose.

Red—Lyndhurst, Standard Bearer, H. Shoesmith, Cuban Giant.

Yellow—Melody, Arabella, Golden Wedding, Yellow Duke.

Orange—Minnie McCullough, Country girl.

Pink—Dorothy Peacock, Delice, Kriemhilda, Marjorie Castleton, Sylvia.

Singles—Gigantea alba, Cardinal Century, Gladys, Golden Century, Anna Long, Rose Pink Century, Fringed Twentieth Century, Wildfire Century.

Dahlia Troubles and Diseases.

Few ornamental plants are more vigorous and free from disease than the dahlia, but like all others dahlias have their failings, and the more familiar we get with them the greater the variety of difficulties we encounter. Fortunately, experience brings also the knowledge how to counteract them.

In going over the list of things which interfere with dahlia perfection, I may not bring much knowledge to the expert grower, but I may give some warnings to beginners. Scarcely any of the dahlia diseases have been investigated by scientists, though the occurrence of a number are on record in works on plant diseases. I would be pleased to hear of any additional dahlia difficulties, and especially to call up from the old masters of dahlia culture, valuable experiences in controlling or preventing them.

The natural requirements of the dahlia are an open situation with abundant light and air, a constant medium temperature and water supply, and an easily drained but water retaining soil of moderate fertility. The horticulturist's art may enable us to improve on these, but the beginner will do best to keep as near them as possible.

Probably the worst dahlia disease is a constitutional trouble something like the "curly dwarf" disease of potatoes. The plants are dwarf, bushy, and subject to sunburn, and with poor flowers or none. I first reported this disease in 1909. Stone published a note on it in Massachusetts in 1911, and others have discussed it since. The cause is obscure. It seems to be carried over in the roots and there is some indication that there is less of it on plants grown from cuttings. It has been abundant in both wet and dry seasons.

Root rots due to various causes are frequent. A species of botrytis is the most common root rot fungus. It is most severe on stored roots in moist, warm conditions with poor ventilation. The fungus enters through breaks or cuts in the surface, but does not attack perfect roots, according to Dr. Cook of New Jersey, who has investigated it. On the other hand we have the common case of the shrivelling up and death of roots from too dry storage conditions. Several other kinds of fungi and bacteria may attack dahlia roots that have been injured by too much water in the soil, exposure to freezing or other causes, and cause rots.

DAHLIA BASKET.

Another root trouble, which in some varieties is a natural characteristic, is the failure to make fleshy roots. Many claim that plants grown from cuttings do not form normal roots, but it is certainly true that plants from both cuttings and seeds often do make full-sized roots. If some one can find a way to develop buds from roots, as is done so easily with sweet potatoes, it will be a great advance in dahlia propagation, but so far the stem seems to be the only part that will produce new stems, as some beginner every year learns to his sorrow.

Wind is the main enemy of the stem. The brittle stem is the most vulnerable part of the dahlia, but this has been greatly improved by selection, the better modern varieties having much stronger and dwarfer stems, and also by cultural and pruning methods. But the "no stakes" goal has not yet been reached.

Powdery mildew is about the only parasitic leaf trouble, and it rarely does much damage except to the lower leaves in late summer. Many varieties are not injured at all by the mildew, while others alongside them may be covered with it, sometimes so bad as to interfere with blooming. Halstead found that spraying with fungicides easily checked it.

Wilting of the leaves is a symptom of too hot sun or of too little water in the soil; but I have seen wilt due to root injury from too much water in the soil.

Two fungi interfering with the flowers are known. A phoma sometimes attacks the flower stems, making the flowers small or causing them to drop before opening. In 1909 I found a fungus blight of the petals, but have made no further investigation of it.

The main flower failures are from climatic conditions. The hot sun of our summers is disastrous. The petals wither up, or are badly colored, or the flowers open one-sided, or the growth is so soft that the flowers have no endurance when cut. Sometimes the tips of petals and leaves are even dried up and killed. Choice exhibition flowers can be protected by a cloth cover overhead. This is a good precaution, too, when there is danger from early frost. For the average dahlia garden, however, we must depend on keeping back flowering till the hot weather is over or cutting back the earlier growth to get new vigorous flowering stems in the fall.

The variation in flower color from deep shade to strong sun is often much greater than between two similar varieties. Too much shade not only gives lighter flowers, but may almost suppress flowering, as will also too rich soil or too deep cultivation in the blooming period, but too little water and plant food may produce the same result. Both color and doubleness vary so with the season that two or three years' observation is necessary before one can know the character of a new variety. A heavy frost is usually the end of the flowering season, but frost seems to injure the buds least of all and they sometimes open after the stems and leaves are killed.

Singleness or poor centers is said to be induced by excessive forcing and taking cuttings from weak shoots. Double varieties are also said to degenerate into single in more southern climates; but I am inclined to think that the appearance of open centers under certain conditions in normally full double flowers is more a varietal peculiarity. Varieties with bad centers or that open so slowly that the outer rays wither before the center is expanded can best be remedied by substituting better ones for them.

There are also a number of troubles due to insects which cannot be fully discussed here: Borers which destroy the inside of the stem or cause it to swell, grasshoppers, spotted cucumber beetles and aster beetles that eat the leaves and flowers, aphids, and, not least in injury, if smallest in size, the red spider.—Prof. J. B. S. Norton, Pathologist, Maryland Agricultural College, in American Dahlia Society Bulletin.

Shasta Daisies.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly tell me what you can about growing Shasta daisies in a greenhouse for commercial purposes in the winter and in Georgia? P. C.

The plants of Shasta daisies for growing in a greenhouse should be healthy, vigorous roots with good crowns. Old stools with the centers gone will not do. The best results in growing these plants in the greenhouse are obtained from young plants from seed early in the spring, then transplanted, afterwards potted and carried through the summer in four-inch pots, plunged outside in frames. When such plants are not at hand, I would advise selecting the plants that were divided and transplanted early in the spring and now have good, healthy crowns. Give them a live soil, such as is used for growing violets, and grow cool at all times. Shasta daisies will not stand hard forcing, but should be allowed to grow along as near naturally as possible, which ought not be a very difficult matter, as far south as Georgia. The plants can be benched after a batch of early chrysanthemums have been taken from the house; water sparingly until the growths commence to come up, and be sure the plants have ample head room for the development of their flowers.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Acres and Acres of Glass.

That the love of plants and flowers is ever on the increase is shown by a list of private conservatories and commercial greenhouses, orders for the erection of which have been placed with the Lord & Burnham Co., of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, during the past three months. These houses cover a ground surface of one and three-quarter million square feet, or approximately 42 acres. Were all other greenhouse builders in the United States to add their total for the same period, it would certainly give encouragement to the craft and prove the business of the country was in an exceedingly healthy condition.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Taking the Buds.

This is one of the most important parts of the work in caring for the plants being grown for cut blooms. Taking the buds means selecting or leaving the bud to form the flower, and is done by removing all the side shoots or buds, leaving the center bud for producing the flower. Starting August 10, when the buds on the early and some of exhibition varieties can be taken, the work extends through August and the greater part of September. During the early part of September most of the varieties which we call the standard commercial sorts, will set their buds and these should be taken as soon as large enough to handle safely without damage. The late varieties that have received close attention to the work of keeping their side growths picked off will set their buds during the later part of the month; these buds are the ones that we are looking for, and should also be taken as soon as large enough to properly handle.

After the buds are taken, the wood of the plant quickly begins to swell, and any side growths that have been missed will grow rapidly and exhaust the plant if not removed. The same can be said of the suckers which shoot out from the stool of the plant. It should be a rule of the grower to go over his plants every few days and remove any shoots or suckers as they appear.

Another very important part of the plants' care is to see that they are properly supported to insure straight, stiff stems, because no matter how fine the blooms may be unless they are carried on stiff, straight stems a great deal of their value is lost.

Spraying with the insecticide to keep the aphids in check should be carried on regularly at least once a week, this being a very critical time, for if the pests are allowed to get down into the forming buds, they will check their development and ruin them for fancy blooms. It is also reasonable to expect that we shall shortly have evenings cool enough to allow for fumigating to be done, and whenever the opportunity presents itself to do this work, it is a good plan to take advantage of it. There should be a let-up in the syringing of the plants from this time on. They are now heavy with foliage, so that they do not dry off as quickly as they did. The nights are also very much cooler with a great deal of dampness in the atmosphere so that one syringing a day on bright days is plenty. On wet days the plants should be held dry, but when the syringing is done, it is very important that the under part of the foliage is reached to keep the plants free from red spider which are very troublesome at this time, especially in localities where the outdoor conditions are very dry.

If you are growing the pompon and single varieties with several stems to the plant, it is a big job to keep them supported, but it is just as important to attend to them in this respect as it is with the single stem stock.

The plants being grown in bush form, either for exhibition or commercial purposes, will require constant care. Should they have been grown in a bench with the intention of putting them up for pot sales, they should now be potted up to get well established before the buds commence to set, also so that they will be well rooted in the soil before offering them for sale.

Attend to the work of training out the branches of the large specimen plants so that none of them will be broken and half the season's work lost. These large specimens require lots of room and plenty of light and air for their proper development. They must also receive close attention as regards watering. They should not be allowed to suffer for the want of water, neither should they be kept in a wet condition all the time, but allowed to dry out well between each watering so as to keep the soil sweet and assist the roots to continue in their growth.

Seedling Gladioli at Fordhook.

As a summer cut flower there is nothing quite so brilliant as the present types of gladioli—America and Mrs. Francis King are varieties that have proved almost sensational in their rapid appreciation by the public. There are also a number of other good sorts, equally beautiful, but not so well known, which are worthy of a place in any collection. The improvement in the past 10 years has been very marked. The old Gandavensis, a popular type at one time, is not now mentioned in any of the modern and up-to-date lists. This is also the case, with many of the varieties that were leaders in their day. The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., at their Fordhook trial grounds, have taken up this gorgeous flower with the idea of getting sorts that will bloom the first season from seed. They began crossing the early flowering Præcox with the Nanceianus and Primulinus sections, and have had wonderful results, obtaining fine spikes of bloom in August on plants, the seed of which was sown about April 20th in cold frames, with a little bottom heat from about four inches of manure. The bulbs, or corms, when removed in the fall, measure as much as 2½ inches in diameter, and these produce exceedingly fine flowers the second year. The colorings of many of these seedlings are wonderful in their almost rainbow hues, the shades of salmon pink, lavender pink, pure pinks light and dark, with blotches or edgings of other colors being distinct from any existing sorts. There are shades of yellow from sulphur to bright or deep orange, and a great line of reds, together with some almost spotless whites. This great variety of form and color, together with the earliness of bloom, cannot fail to give renewed interest and add to the popularity of this gorgeous summer blossom.

Geo. W. Kerr, the expert hybridist of Fordhook, has had charge of this work and keeps a record of every cross and the result. Bulbs, or corms, are not considered; it is seed that will produce these beautiful flowers in one season that Mr. Burpee is after. The present trial block, containing about 100,000 plants, has for the past month been the most beautiful spot on the grounds. A late planting to be in at the time of the exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society in Atlantic City the last week of August were just commencing, August 16, to throw up their spikes.

There is much to interest the flower lover to be found at Fordhook, the trial beds having a little of almost everything grown in the garden. Every new variety offered by other seed-houses gets a tryout here to determine its merit. A very large collection of asters were just setting buds, and mammoth zinnias in blocks of separate colors, so far apart that they will not get mixed, were wonderfully fine. So it was with petunias, pansies, marigolds and a host of other garden favorites. Blocks of scarlet sage were wonderful in their blaze of color. Lord Fauntleroy is the best dwarf scarlet salvia, being a good grower, yet very compact and floriferous. Dahlias did not bloom well at Fordhook until they were cut back and got new succulent growths; these then flowered abundantly. Samples of all seeds, before they are packed, are sent to Fordhook and tried out as to their vitality. They are sown in rows close together and all numbered, and the results, as soon as possible, are credited to the number. Nothing is ever sent out without this test. They make over 20,000 vitality tests each season. Early single summer flowering chrysanthemums that flower the first year from seed, sown inside in February, were a feature, as well as double Japanese sorts that were grown from cuttings which also bloomed in the summer out of doors. All these were just coming into very profuse flower. Mr. Kerr says they will produce very large blooms, much the same as those grown inside, if disbudded. Harvest Home and Crawford's White were sorts conspicuous amongst them. Wonderfully large leaved coleus with brilliant colorings were seen in frames, grown for seed, as were large blocks of fibrous-rooted begonias. Duchess of Edinboro, a large flowered pink, was very striking. One could fill pages with the beauties of Fordhook. Its location is ideal on high ground in the midst of most productive farm lands. It is, withal, the pride of that Napoleon of seedsmen, W. Atlee Burpee, whose home is the center of this great experimental garden and seed farm.

Culture of Commercial Ferns.

Paper by E. J. Hayward, Montreal, Que., read at the nineteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Berlin, Ont., August 8-10, 1916.

When I was asked by our secretary, Julius Luck, to write a few notes on the "Culture of Commercial Ferns," he impressed upon me to make the article as short as possible. The writings in ferns and their culture have been very extensive; this is on account of the fact that they have been among the most attractive plants in cultivation. So I feel that I may not be able to say anything new as to their cultivation.

The growing of ferns is such a broad subject, and as I have to abide by the secretary's wishes, I will only take up the culture of the purely commercial varieties. A few years ago, ferns were chiefly grown for the fall trade, but they have increased so much in popularity that they are being asked for practically every day. And the up-to-date florist always carries a stock on hand at all seasons of the year.

RECOMMENDED VARIETIES.

Under the heading of everyday varieties I would recommend the following: Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, Harrisii, Scotti, Teddy, Jr., Roosevelt and W. K. Harris. Lace or fringed varieties: Amerpohli (the baby breath fern), Whitmani, Whitmani compacta, elegantissima, Elegantissima compacta, the Tarrytown fern, superbissima.

CARE OF YOUNG STOCK.

One of the principal points in the culture of ferns is to have a good strong healthy stock of young plants. To obtain these, plant out on a bench a number of every variety you wish to grow. These will throw out large numbers of runners, which the young sports spring from. When the young plants from the runners have grown large enough to handle, they can be separated from the parent plant, and two or three young plants put together and potted into 2¼-inch pots. The idea of putting two or three young plants together is to make a good solid crown. This can be attended to as fast as the young plants are ready, until you have sufficient stock for your season's work. The old plants can then be potted up and disposed of. All that is necessary to carry the young plants through the winter months is a good light bench with a temperature of about 55 to 60 degrees, with sufficient moisture. During the winter the young plants make very little growth; in fact, top growth is not desirable. The whole aim is to throw as much strength into the crown as possible, and any young leaves that make extra growth can be shortened back with the knife, which will be a benefit to the young plants, instead of an injury. During the winter months the plants will require but very light waterings, if sufficient moisture is given.

The end of May and the early part of June is a busy time for the fern grower, as by that time the young plants will require to be shifted into their summer quarters. Before this is done the fern house should be thoroughly overhauled; benches should be repaired if required, all woodwork and glass thoroughly cleaned, and the house put into a perfectly healthy condition.

SOIL.

I find the soil best suited for their requirements is the top sod, cut from an old pasture of fairly light nature. This is stacked in a heap the previous year, and to every second layer of sod give a good layer of old decayed manure (cow manure, if possible), but if this cannot be obtained, manure from old wornout hot beds can be used. By the following year, this will be in perfect condition for cutting down with the spade, and with the addition of some air slacked lime, and some sand, if the soil is of a heavy nature, this will give you a fine compost and will suit the requirements of most of the commercial varieties.

POT AND BENCH CULTURE.

There are two methods of growing ferns—pot culture and bench culture. They both have their advantage, and also disadvantage. If you grow ferns for a general shipping trade, I would strongly recommend pot culture, as they are more easily handled and lend themselves to packing more easily, where a bench grown fern taken directly from the bench, and shipped, would in nine cases out of ten, arrive at its destination in very poor condition. Most of our fern growers, even for home trade, are sticklers to the pot culture, as they claim a better and more uniform fern can be grown in the pot than on the bench, but if you have a local trade for large plants, especially of the Bostoniensis variety, you can quite safely bench your ferns, and in potting them up off the bench put two or three plants together in a 7 or 8-inch pot, and let them get established before sending out. You will then have a fern that for largeness will be hard to beat by a pot grown plant.

For the fringed or lace varieties, I would recommend pot growing, in every case, as they can be then grown in shelves, where they will have more benefit of air circulation than if bench grown; this will help avoid dampness, which the fronds of these delicate varieties are subject to if not carefully grown.

In potting up your ferns, which should be commenced the end of May or the early part of June, use ample drainage—some broken pots, also a small layer of hard coal ashes. On top of this place a layer of old mushroom manure; old mushroom manure can also be mixed with the soil at the rate of one part to four parts of soil. (Some of our Quebec growers use hops taken from the brewery, but as Ontario will soon be entirely prohibition, I would recommend to you old mushroom manure as a substitute.) In potting ferns, do not pot them too firmly. Remember that ferns like a loose soil. (If you grow ferns in benches the same soil can be used as for potting. A depth of three or four inches is quite sufficient.)

SHADING.

From the end of May, ferns require some shade. I use a mixture of lime, coarse salt and coal oil, put on the outside of the glass. This will stand the weather. Do not use too heavy a shade, but just enough to keep the leaves from burning.

WATERING.

After potting or benching, give the soil one good soaking of water; after that water sparingly; in fact, keep them always on the dry side, but keep sufficient moisture in the house by frequent syringings, but never syringe late in the evening, and always avoid damping the leaves of the lace varieties. By the middle of August increase your ventilation, and by September give all the air possible and remove most of the shade, as the leaves will require hardening up before being sent out to stand the wear and tear of the store or reception room.

PESTS.

Mealy bug, thrip and scale are the worst pests to the fern. They are generally caused by insufficient moisture; keeping the ferns well syringed will help keep them in check.

SMALL FERNS.

Before I close, it would not be fair for me to overlook the small fern, as it is safe to say there are more of these little ferns used than any other plants grown by the florist; as there are so many different ways these small ferns can be used that they are being asked for every day. The following collection will give a good variety: Pteris Wimsetti, tremula, Wilsoni, serrulata, magnifica, alba-lineata, Mayi, Victoria, aspidium, Cryptodium falcatum; also Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri. Spores of these small ferns can be sown at any season of the year, but it is best to make different sowings, say, July, October, and December. A good light soil, finely screened, and some shallow boxes well drained make a good place to germinate the spores. Sterilize the sod by watering the boxes, after they have been filled with sod, with boiling water. After the boxes are cooled off, the spores can be sown, covering the boxes with glass and shading with paper, and placing the boxes in a moist temperature at about 65 degrees. As soon as the first little fronds are formed, the little plants should be transplanted into other boxes in clumps. This is a very delicate operation and must be done with great care. The young plants should be kept in a good warm temperature, and the soil kept well stirred. When large enough they can be potted up into 2½-inch pots, and kept spaced out as they grow. Before shipping to the store, they should be put in a cool house for a few weeks to harden them up. In filling pans of these small ferns, it is best to fill them a few weeks ahead to get established before sending out.

There has been much discussion and complaints about the wholesale price of ferns. I regret that time does not permit me to take this up at the present, but probably at some future convention I may have the privilege of bringing that question before you.

Trees and Shrubs in Modern Gardening.

Year by year the study and cultivation of all kinds of trees and shrubs for ornamental as well as for economic purposes are becoming more pronounced in temperate countries, and more so perhaps in the British Islands than anywhere else. In every public park and garden, and in almost every private garden of any size and reputation, there are now to be found trees and shrubs that 20 and 30 years ago were either unknown, or were only in the infant stage in a few nurseries that made a specialty of them. Public opinion has been gradually educated to their beauty for landscape purposes by the exhibitions that have been held regularly in London, and garden lovers have thus had an opportunity of seeing for themselves exactly what the plants were like. Several more or less modest treatises have been published as to their garden value, and these have played a part in bringing the newer species and varieties into greater prominence, and have also focussed attention anew upon some of the older favorites. At one time coniferous trees and shrubs appeared to be all the rage, and large numbers were propagated and planted throughout the country. Of late years, however, as the floras of the United States and North America generally, and also of China and Japan, became better known, it was found that these countries possessed a wealth of arboreal beauty in other families of plants that were well worthy of the planter's attention. Hence, a stage has now been reached that it has become necessary to bring all the information regarding them together into a convenient form. This has been accomplished by W. J. Bean, the assistant curator of the Royal Gardens, Kew, in two handsome volumes entitled, "Trees and Shrubs Hardy in the British Isles."

The work will be highly appreciated by American florists, as it deals with all the trees and shrubs of North America that are in any way suitable for growing in the open air in Great Britain and Ireland. The author is peculiarly well qualified for the work he has undertaken, as he has had the enormous advantage of being able to make full use of not only the magnificent collections at Kew, but also of the herbarium of trees and shrubs which has been in course of formation there for the past 30 years, at first by the late George Nicholson, and for the last 13 years by himself; and there are very few of the descriptions in the work that have not been made from authentic material—living or dried. The two volumes contain altogether over 1,400 pages of letterpress, and are illustrated by about 60 half-tone plates, and a very large number of line drawings from the pencil of Miss E. Goldring, daughter of the well-known landscapist.

In an historical introduction, the author does honor to those tree lovers and collectors who have passed away, but he connects them up with the labors of E. H. Wilson and George Forrest, who are still with us in the prime of life, and to whom we owe so many good things from the Chinese empire. This historical survey shows that for over 360 years the introduction of trees and shrubs from temperate climes has been going on at intervals and the names of well known collectors, patrons and nurserymen are enshrined in the first volume. Mr. Bean then deals with what may be termed the cultural side of the tree and shrub growing in general, and gives valuable advice as to the preparation of soils, propagation, transplanting young and old trees, pruning and general care, and gives lists of those suitable for various purposes, such as street planting, for hedges, for wet and dry situations, for the ornamental appearance of their foliage, etc.

The author deals with the various genera in alphabetical order, and gives the leading characteristics of the more important ones. This system, while generally convenient when one knows the name of any particular tree or shrub, does not readily help one to discover the name of one that may be for the time being nameless, as there is no guide to the systematic relationship between one family and another given. Each species is also described with sufficient minuteness that there is no possible chance of mistaking it for anything else. And, so far as these descriptions have been tested, they may be relied upon implicitly for their accuracy.

Cultural notes are given for each genus, and in certain cases also for any species that require a modification of the general instructions. Mr. Bean's great experience in the culture and management of the trees and shrubs in the Royal Gardens, Kew, entitle him to be heard with respect on this subject, and his advice may be taken as that likely to lead to success in the great majority of cases, even when the climatic conditions are different from those of Kew. There are one or two points, however, on which one may express a difference of opinion with the author. For instance, he says that olearias like a light, loamy or peaty soil "free from lime." This may, of course, mean that it is not necessary to add lime to the soil in which these shrubs grow, but one is likely to get the impression that if lime is present in the soil it will prove injurious to the plants. As a matter of fact, Olearia Haasti seems to thrive in any kind of garden soil and to attain quite large dimensions; and there is no doubt that a certain amount of lime is nearly always present. This warning against lime is generally emphasized in the case of rhododendrons and most other ericaceous plants, and Mr. Bean follows with the advice that these fine ornamental plants must be grown in a sweet, well-drained loam, especially if it be of a sandy nature and "free from calcareous matter." How it is possible to get a soil of this nature "free from calcareous matter" no one knows; nor would it be desirable to have a soil altogether free from lime, as the various analyses that have been made of rhododendrons conclusively prove that this substance is present in large quantities in the ash of these plants. It is now also well known that many of the newer Chinese rhododendrons grow naturally in limestone formations, as does R. hirsutum in the European Alps. It is no doubt generally true that "rhododendrons as a whole abhor lime," but this does not mean to say that rhododendrons will grow in soil in which there is not a trace of lime. Indeed, it would not be possible for them to do so, when one comes to consider how essential it is to have a certain percentage of lime in the soil to enable all green-leaved plants to carry out their natural functions.

As a standard work of modern arboriculture, this book will for many years to come hold the first place, and owing to the increasing love for this style of gardening, it is possible that the demand for a really reliable work will be so great that we shall see a new edition in a very short time from now. Hurricane Proof Greenhouses.

The range erected two years ago by the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, for the Casa de Flores Greenhouses at Corpus Christi, Tex., made an enviable record recently, when, although in one of the most exposed sections of the city, it withstood the force of the worst West Indian hurricane ever known in that locality, the wind attaining a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

Don E. Curtis, manager of the establishment, in a letter to the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., under date of August 20, reports that notwithstanding the fact that buildings throughout the city, some within a block of the greenhouses, were razed to the ground, the entire water front of the city destroyed and every ship in the harbor wrecked, his entire loss was covered by 11 boxes of glass. There was practically no damage whatever to the stock inside.

Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will be held in Sachem hall, Redmen's building, 240 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Saturday evening, September 27. A special feature of the evening will be the entertainment and smoker, under the able supervision of James Keegan. The attention of the members is also directed to an outing to be given by the Garden City Pottery Works, of San Jose, September 10. Mr. Raymond is prepared to show the visitors a new and interesting installation of the latest machinery for making flower pots. Lunch will be served at noon and those who will attend should kindly notify Secretary Walter A. Hofinghoff, 141 Powell street, San Francisco, as early as possible.

OBITUARY.

William S. Lyon.

William S. Lyon, the foremost expert in botany and horticulture in the Philippine Islands, died at St. Paul's hospital, Manila, July 14. He had been operated on July 11, his illness having been diagnosed as general peritonitis and this, with perforation of the intestines, which followed, caused his death. He underwent an operation for appendicitis in April (a common occurrence among elderly people in the tropics) and while it was hoped he would recover, a relapse came, which led to his death.

The news of the passing of William S. Lyon will bring regret to many men in many parts of the world, as his work was as well known throughout England, Germany and Belgium as it was in the United States, perhaps more so, as the greater part of his business was transacted in European countries. He was also held in high esteem and deservedly respected, both for his personal qualities and attainments as a scientist. Mr. Lyon was born in 1852. He graduated from Amherst College and later served as chief of the state board of forestry in California. He came to the Philippines in 1902 as an expert in botany and horticulture and soon became recognized as a man of remarkable ability and extraordinary vigor. He left the government service in 1905 to engage in the business of collecting and exporting orchids, continuing this pursuit until his death. He was the most reliable orchid collector in the Orient—perhaps the only one that could be depended upon to produce plants of quality, and to his energy and foresight the phalaenopsis has come to take its place, second to none among the spray orchids in the commercial trade of Europe.

At the Nagtahan Gardens, as his establishment in the Balic-Balic was called, were to be found a most interesting and educational collection of plants from the tropical world—not alone orchids, but many kinds of trees and shrubs, hardly one of which did not have an orchid clinging to its branches; a truly wonderful place for anyone to visit who desired information in such matters.

During a recent visit, Mr. Lyon remarked to the writer: "It is worth living in a place like this, but to live here year after year, and accomplish results a man's wife must be his chum and partner." And indeed, Mrs. Lyon took as much pride in the place as did her husband. During the conversation, he seemed very optimistic regarding the future trade in orchids. As the war had put a stop to exportations to Europe, he stated that he intended to devote all his energies to trade in the United States, as he realized the future there was for the orchids from the Philippines.

When the St. Louis exposition was attracting attention, one of the most interesting of its features was the consular exhibit, Mr. Lyon being at the time a member of the board which arranged the exhibit, and he was in charge of the large exhibit of Philippine orchids which delighted many visitors to the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco last year.

His family were at his bedside when death came, surviving him being his widow, a son, Ward W. Lyon, and a daughter, Mrs. Johnston, who have the deep sympathy of a host of friends. A. B.

Slippery Greenhouse Walks Dangerous.

The danger of slippery walks in greenhouses was emphasized recently when a lady visitor to a greenhouse on a private estate at Lake Forest, Ill., lost her footing on a slippery passageway, her head crashing through a glass door and causing injuries which necessitated her removal to a hospital.

Farmer Versus Manufacturer.

In comparison with the farmer, the manufacturer has a cinch. The farmer has to be a dietitian, an executive, a manager of men, a salesman, a collector of bills, a first-class mechanic, a diagnostician, and must have the manufacturing instinct, besides. What other business is there which comprehends so much?

American Dahlia Society Bulletin Notes.

Plans for the exhibition which will be held at the American Institute in New York, September 26-28, are progressing splendidly. Many valuable prizes will be awarded and an excellent show is anticipated. Copies of the premium list may be had upon application to W. A. Eagelson, secretary, board of managers, 25-33 West 23d street, New York, to whom all entries and correspondence should be sent. The annual meeting will be held on the afternoon of the first day.

Prof. F. H. Hall, vice-director of the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva, and family have the sympathy of many friends in the death of his eldest son, which occurred unexpectedly August 21.

The August number of the Bulletin contains several interesting papers among them being "Dahlia Troubles and Diseases," by Prof. J. B. S. Norton; "Staking Dahlia Plants," by Prof. F. H. Hall, and "Long Distance Shipping for Exhibition," by E. T. Barnes.

The Anti-Dumping Clause.

Washington, D. C.—Although it will probably go through the house in its present shape, the unfair competition or anti-dumping clause of the revenue-raising act is so defective that it can not be effective. Through an oversight, apparently, it prohibits merely the sale in the United States of foreign-made goods at prices substantially below prices prevailing in country of origin. But there is nothing in it to prevent an American textile manufacturer, for instance, from going to Germany and making his purchases at dumping prices there, shipping all the dyestuffs he needs back to his own plant. So long as he doesn't sell the dyestuffs in America he is safe. Further more, in order to punish an importer selling at dumping prices it will be necessary to prove that he intended to drive some American manufacturer out of business. The whole clause depends upon "intent." It will be no protection at all.—Boston News Bureau.

Through the combined efforts of the State Civic Improvement Association and the Federated Women's Clubs a flower show and a floral parade will be held here during the last week of this month.

At this writing we are having a steady downpour of rain, something that was very badly needed. Florists report that business keeps up very nicely.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was in town August 26. While here he made a side trip to Guthrie to see the growing establishment of Furrow & Co.

The Stiles Co., in anticipation of the railroad strike, stocked up quite heavily.

OFFICE AND STORE

178 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

Chicago.

BUSINESS CONTINUES VERY GOOD.

Business continues very good and according to all reports, the sales during August were away head of those of the same month of last year, which were considered exceptionally high compared to those of 1914, which could have been much better. Trade as a whole for the season starting with January 1, 1916, has been very satisfactory and there is no question but what the wholesaler has had the best eight months of business that has been experienced for several years. Business this summer, considering the unusual market conditions, was remarkably good, and while less stock was handled than in former years, prices were higher and business much better. There was hardly ever any surplus of stock to speak of in any line and while the quality of the stock in general was not up to the standard, everything sold at high summer prices and at times it was impossible to fill all the orders that were received. Gladioli never sold at such good prices as they did this season and came in handy, for at times they were the only flowers available in any great quantity compared to the other offerings. Stock at this writing is gradually becoming more plentiful but what stock is being offered is selling at good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good supply and the quality has improved wonderfully since the cooler weather set in. Roses in general are better and some particularly fine Ophelia, Mrs. George Shawyer, Milady, Rhea Reid, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Champ Weiland, Mrs. Moorefield Storey, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney are available. Cecile Brunner and Fireflame are arriving in larger quantities and the same holds good for American Beauty roses, which are none too plentiful and command good prices. Asters are in good supply and some of the best stock of the season is now being offered. Gladioli are still seen in large numbers at many of the stores but the receipts are gradually diminishing and mark the beginning of the end. Carnations are in heavier supply and good stock is obtainable but only in the shorter stemmed grades. Chrysanthemums are quite a factor in the market this week and while a few early white have made their appearance Golden Glow is the principal offering. Lilies are in good demand but there is very little stock in this line received. Lily of the valley is as scarce as ever and is bringing high prices. Orchids are still on the short side. Miscellaneous outdoor stock is still on the bill of fare and at times comes in handy for the buyer who likes variety and is inclined to make a large window showing. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful and a good supply of boxwood is now included in the offerings. The supply houses are all ready for the fall business and report trade as good for the past few weeks. Everyone is feeling in the best of spirits since the threatened railroad strike, which was to be called Monday, September 4, at 7 a. m., has been definitely called off and the transportation tie-up averted.

NOTES.

Peter Reinberg is cutting heavily in roses, including all the old standard and newer varieties, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and the rapidly becoming popular Champ Weiland. American Beauty roses from the young stock are also reaching the store in quantity, but are in such brisk demand that there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of when the day's sales are over.

HEAVY SUPPLY

Fancy Russell and Ward Roses.

Plenty for everyone in all the desired grades, so order what you need from us.

Andrew Benson, who won the silver punch bowl at a meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club several months ago, has just learned of his good luck and writes from Manila that he will return in time to see the White Sox win the city series and then will relieve the club of the responsibility of the prize. Mr. Benson has been collecting orchids in the orient for some time, mostly in Japan and China, and is now in the Philippines getting his plants ready to send home. He was very successful on this trip and has collected some wonderful flowers and plants.

Leonard Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, shipped 40,000 gladioli from his Michigan farm to this market, September 3. The shipment consisted mostly of Mrs. Francis King, and notwithstanding the present quiet market conditions the opening of the week, they sold well at good prices.

Bassett & Washburn are supplying their customers with a choice grade of Mrs. George Sawyer roses, which they are cutting in quantity and have no trouble in disposing of at top market prices. They speak well of this variety and consider it one of the best pink roses on their list.

At A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store the daily shipments now include a large supply of fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses from the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette. Lilies have been a leader with them all week and clean up at an early hour each day at good prices.

Percy Jones is filling a large number of orders for field grown Enchantress carnation plants and only has 35,000 left to offer. The way the orders keep coming in shows that this variety is as popular as ever and will be grown heavily again this season.

V. Bezdek reports that the stock in his greenhouses at Wilmette never looked better than it did this season, especially the carnations, and to give one an idea how fine they really are one plant of Peerless Pink carries 38 shoots.

The E. F. Winterson Co. has had a remarkably good year and its books show an increase in sales for almost every month since January 1 over the corresponding months of 1915.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling a large supply of gladioli in addition to a large quantity of other seasonable cut flowers.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s receipts of Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty roses are large and of fine quality right now and clean up completely every day. Otto W. Frese says that the cut flower department is filling orders for southern wild smilax on two days' notice and that what shipments have arrived this season came through in good condition. The supply department, in charge of T. E. Waters, has a new ribbon display room which shows that this firm is carrying in stock practically all the well known brands manufactured on a large scale, so the customer can make his selection from whatever line he desires.

Herman Rogers, with Weiland & Risch, spent September 3-4 with his family at Detroit, Mich. He witnessed the burning up of the speedy launch Baby Marold of that city on Labor day, which caught fire after setting a new world's record of 55.35 miles an hour in the first lap in the national power boat races. The boat caught fire near the finish of the second time around and was totally destroyed.

John Michelsen is more than pleased with the E. C. Amling Co.'s sales for August, which are over 30 per cent ahead of those of the same month last year. He goes as far as to say that he believes that all the rest of the wholesalers have also had a very good month and that this is one of the best season's business that the trade in general has experienced for many years.

R. J. Mohr, manager at A. Lange's East Madison street store, reports that all the employees are back from their vacations since Albert Hall has returned from a three weeks' visit at White Lake. The stage is all set for another season's business at this enterprising establishment, which means work and plenty of it from now on.

Lloyd E. Shirley, vice-president and general manager of the Garland Manufacturing Company, Des Plaines, reports the booking of an order for the Adelbert Cemetery, Niles, Mich. The contract calls for a 218-foot curved eave, steel frame house and three wood frame Garland cast iron gutter greenhouses, 150 feet long.

D. S. Musser, of Miller & Musser, and wife returned home from a pleasant automobile trip through Indiana, September 2, and left the following day by machine with N. P. Miller and wife for a short visit at Rose Lawn, Wis.

Robert Northam, manager at George Reinberg's wholesale store, is on the job again after enjoying a two weeks' vacation. He got back just in time to handle a new crop of roses.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is featuring a large supply of choice Mrs. Aaron Ward roses from the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses at Downers Grove.

W. Cleveland Johnson, with Johnson's Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn., passed through here Sept. 4 on his way home from a visit to the Pacific Coast.

W. J. O'Carroll, head gardener at the University of Chicago, is the happy father of a brand new baby girl florist.

C. O. Wilcox, with the W. W. Barnard Co., left early in the week for a business trip through Indiana after spending a few days here.

J. C. Craig, well known South Wabash avenue florist, is expected home next week from a months' vacation in southern California.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg writes from Ocean City, N. J., that she is having a delightful time on her vacation and will be home soon.

W. J. McGee, cashier and bookkeeper at the John Kruchten Co. store, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

The Raedlein Basket Co. has a fine stock of baskets on hand for the approaching season and so far has filled every one of its orders in full without any delay. A new catalog is ready for mailing and according to Curtis Kinder, business the past year has been fine and the outlook for this fall was never any brighter, for the buying has started in early and the orders already booked are very large ones.

Miss Ruth Simmons is managing A. I. Simmons' store at 242 West Sixty-third street while her father is attending to his duties as depot quartermaster at Springfield, where he has been stationed since the Mexican situation was considered serious. Mr. Simmons is a member of the commissary department of the Illinois National Guard and is recognized as an expert in his line.

Zech & Mann have had a remarkably good summer business and Allie Zech reports that their sales during August have been over 30 per cent better than those of the same month of last year, which were considered high. This house is showing a fine supply of stock of all kinds, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell and Ophelia roses.

Kyle & Foerster are pleasing their customers with a fancy grade of indoor asters. This firm has had a good season and likes its present quarters on the main floor of the Atlas building better than ever, for it enables them to handle the increasing business more easily than they could have in their old place.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a brisk demand for American Beauty roses, which they are handling in quantity in all the desired grades. Gladioli and asters are leaders in the miscellaneous outdoor stock that is carried at this house and are selling nicely.

J. A. Budlong has started to cut Golden Glow chrysanthemums but not in any great quantity. This firm is handling a fine supply of roses from the new L. A. Budlong greenhouses at Niles Center in addition to the regular supply from its own range.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Morrison, Thursday, September 7, at 8 p. m. Allie Zech will read an interesting paper pertaining to the selling of cut flowers by the department stores from a commission man's point of view.

John Sinner says that orders for field grown carnation plants for Sinner Bros. have been numerous since the threatened railroad strike has been definitely called off and expects to clean up all he has to offer long before the season closes.

Hoerber Bros. are handling a big supply of gladioli, which continue to be in good demand considering the increasing supply of other stock. Roses are gradually becoming more plentiful at this establishment and are having a good call.

Wietor Bros. are in good crop with roses, particularly Ophelia and Sunburst, which are their leaders this week. The demand for field grown carnation plants continues brisk and practically every mail brings in new orders.

Kennicott Bros. Co. received its first shipment of chrysanthemums this season, September 6, which consisted exclusively of Golden Glow.

W. E. Colligan, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., leaves this week for Pittsburgh, Pa., to spend a two weeks' vacation.

Robert Newcomb and Samuel Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., left this week to call on the out-of-town trade.

E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is back from a seven weeks' business trip in the south.

J. Swenson, formerly with George Perdikas, is now with Victor Young & Co., 1239 North Clark street.

Rolf Zetlitz, of Lima, O., was a visitor in the wholesale market, Saturday, September 2.

D. E. Freres and wife have returned from a pleasant two weeks' outing at Deep Lake.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are busy unpacking a large importation of French chiffons.

Ernest Farley, with A. T. Pyfer & Co., is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Paul Richmond, with W. J. Smyth, is rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl.

HIGH GRADE STOCK VERY SCARCE.

The weather is much cooler and favorable for a better growth of outside flowers. There has been some rain, but what is wanted is a good all-day "soaker," something that it has not been our good fortune to have seen for over a month. High grade stock in nearly all lines is very scarce. Some fair American Beauty roses, almost too many in fact for the demand, are coming in. There is also quite a lot of My Maryland. White roses are, however, away behind the demand. Asters are in better supply, several growers cutting from their indoor stock, which is now about the height. The outside crop is in nearly all sections a failure, with some of the late varieties showing a little more promising. Dahlias will now have their inning; the professional growers or experts, and it appears to be a business requiring experience, say their plants are looking well and there will be flowers in quantity to supply a large demand. To succeed and be able to combat long dry or wet spells, and be in the market with high grade flowers in quantity during the comparatively short season, is quite an achievement. Since scientific methods of packing and expeditious handling of the dahlias have been introduced they are now transported with but little loss and their market has been very much enlarged. There are some new sorts being tried out, but the old favorites of last season are still leaders. Gladioli have been very good stock this season, always in good demand at fair prices. Easter lilies, always the same, have also been a good crop this summer, as nearly always up to standard, they are used in preference to imperfect or inferior flowers of other kinds. Lily of the valley and cattleyas are still on the top shelf, generally in hiding for special trade. The coming season's supply of lily of the valley is in doubt. The present forcing stock was very low in specials, and the balance, even when bunched skillfully, is sorry looking, indeed. Very good summer cosmos helps out a lot, being a good case filler and useful as a table decoration for those who have hotel or restaurant work.

NOTES.

Japanese Formosum bulbs were distributed the past week, the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., and Henry A. Dreer, Inc., handling them in very large lots. The stock this season is excellent, with no increase in prices. Fred Michell says the Pacific ocean freights were advanced but about 10% which was not put on to the prices of Japanese bulbs, but that it would be a different story with the Holland stock where the carrying rates are from two to three hundred per cent over those of a year ago.

The Leo Niessen Co. will be very strong on American Beauty roses the coming season; the advance cutting even now shows unusual quality for the season. Their dahlia shipments are now in full swing. The alterations and improvements at the H. H. Battles' store are now almost completed. It is one of the most conveniently arranged flower shops in the country.

The Robert Craig Co. is now transacting their office business in newly furnished quarters adjoining the packing shed. This is much more convenient than the old location. From the orders received for immediate delivery and reservations to be forwarded later, Mr. Craig is very much encouraged and believes that the coming season will be a record breaker, and reports they were never better prepared.

An event worthy of note is the addition of a house to the W. K. Harris establishment, the first in many years. Zeiger & Sons, of Washington, are also adding two more to their plant at Washington lane. Fine indoor asters are a feature here at this time.

Edward Reid has been handicapped the past week with a violent cold, which we are glad to say is on the mend. Asters, lily of the valley and Kaiserin roses are leaders here.

The water lily and gladioli displays in the windows of the Henry A. Dreer store, are very showy and much admired by the throngs that are attracted to them.

Berger Brothers are receiving their first dahlias and the crop promises fine. They handle large quantities during the season.

Stuart Miller says: "Business we have and expect to have keeps us busy now and anticipating."

A hundred or two of cattleya plants was considered quite an addition to a grower's stock some few years ago, but now they lay them in by the thousand, in fact, the Joseph Heacock Co. has just received an importation of about five thousand fresh from their native forests. This democratic administration certainly has boosted the flower business.

S. S. Pennock, who, among his other activities, is an expert on hay fever, claims to have conquered in this game and hopes soon to be immune. He is spending a well earned vacation "somewhere in Rhode Island."

James Verner is sending choice Mrs. Sawyer and My Maryland roses to the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Gladioli from John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., is also a feature here.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are getting in quantities of Japanese novelties, goods that would scarcely see this market in ordinary times and many orders are coming in from their representatives on the road.

Trade during the past week was active, due to a brisk demand for funeral work, the recent hot weather, however, caused a shortage in the supply of greenhouse flowers, lilies and roses taking the lead in available stock.

The Flick Floral Co. had considerable funeral work during the past week, among the pieces being a handsome casket blanket of Russell roses. This firm is now showing a very attractive line of glazed pottery.

Philadelphia Florists' Club.

Tuesday, September 5, was "canna night," with Eugene H. Michell, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., as the essayist, his subject being, "Cannas up to Date." With his own hands he had selected and cut spikes of bloom of all the newer sorts with which to illustrate his remarks. There were about 75 vases with six or more sprays to a vase, which made a gorgeous showing of color. He stated that nearly all the sorts worth while had been introduced in the past 15 years; in fact, every variety grown 20 years ago was now in existence. Many good varieties had been deteriorated by being raised from seed. For example, Florence Vaughan was one of the best years ago, but now much inferior. In his lecture he compared various varieties, showing their characteristics and shades of color in such a way as only such a canna expert could do. He appeared to have every variety and its family tree at his finger tips. It was a most enjoyable and delightful lecture.

Joseph Heacock gave a very interesting account of his trip to the Houston convention and told of the cordial reception given the visiting florists by the trade in New Orleans. He also gave his impressions of the trade exhibits at Houston and passed around a number of photographs of C. W. Ward's exhibit of bulbs and plants, grown in British Columbia, but which have heretofore always been imported. He was much impressed with this display.

Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., the home of cannas, also spoke commending the work of the hybridizers of this flower, and expressed the hope that all would help to popularize and see that it received the place as a flower that it deserves.

Nominations for officers for the ensuing year were as follows: Adolph Farenwald, president; W. F. Therkindson, vice president; David Colflesh, treasurer; George Loring, secretary; David Rust and F. Cowperthwaite, directors.

Mr. Savill, of the H. F. Michell Co.'s gardens, will talk of October glories and hardy flowering plants at the October meeting.

SUPPLY CLEANS UP WELL.

The demand for stock is steady and active and takes up practically all the receipts. The supply is somewhat heavier than it was. Asters are more plentiful and are selling readily. Gladioli continue plentiful. The rose cut is increasing in size and meets with a good demand. American Beauties may now be had. Easter lilies are not very plentiful. Cosmos is meeting with a good market. Other offerings include rubrum lilies and dahlias.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the florists' society will be held Monday evening, September 11, at Hotel Gibson. Bowling after the meeting.

E. G. Gillett has been showing some good Sunburst, Ward, Russell and Ophelia roses.

RECEIPTS LIMITED WITH ACTIVE DEMAND.

Asters are plentiful and the colors are good. Although the mainstay of the summer trade has been funeral work, the call for cut flowers has been satisfactory. The demand is steady but the receipts are inclined to be limited, and practically everything on the market meets with a good sale. Roses may be had in small quantities and some dahlias are coming in.

Macrae is cutting good quantities of Easter lilies daily but sells out before the close of the store.

Guaranteed Two-Year-Old, Low Budded

BEES' ROSES ARE AMAZING

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

READY SALE FOR GOOD STOCK.

The past week brought no material change in the condition of the cut-flower market. The weather was much cooler, which made life more endurable but did not greatly increase sales. Though buying has been light, no good stock has gone a-begging. Some uneasiness was felt in the wholesale district over the possibility of a railroad tieup, but that, happily, has been averted. Such an event, it is needless to add, would have been a great calamity to this city. On account of their continued scarcity, cattleyas are hovering between $1 and $1.50 per flower, wholesale rates. American Beauties are not plentiful, and very special stock has gone as high as $25 and $30 per 100, or at that rate, but there is long-stemmed stock going as low as $15. Lily of the valley remains at about $4 and $5 per 100, but there is an upward tendency in prices on Easter lilies, the asking prices, September 2, being $8 to $10. There is no change worthy of note in the prices of tea roses; the supply is slowly increasing, but special stock may be classed as a novelty at this time. There is a plentiful supply of asters, but no surplus, and prices range, as a rule, from $1 to $3 per 100, with a few long stems and extra fine flowers going at $4 per 100. One noteworthy feature during August, was the almost entire absence of sweet peas from the market and they have been greatly missed by the buyers. We question whether 1,000 good sweet peas came into this market during the entire month. Good gladioli are yet arriving and they move. In chrysanthemums, new crop carnations and bouvardias, there is a slight increase in supply. Dahlias are increasing in supply and improving in quality.

September 4.—This being a holiday and there having been a great exodus from the city, business was very light, the wholesale stores closing at noon. The weather is clear and cool, and it is hoped that when the people return, business will improve.

CLUB MEETING.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23d street, on the evening of September 11. As there has been a vacation of two months, there should be a large attendance. It is expected that Secretary Young will make an interesting report of the Houston convention, and others who were there may also have something to say. Chairman Hildenbrand of the house committee and his assistants will serve "ham and"—or something better.

NOTES.

Frank Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, spent a day of the past week in this city and we were all glad to see him. He has been such an interesting personage in the wholesale district for so many years, that the place seems "sad and forlorn" when he is away. He seemed to be in fine health and spirits. He is spending the summer with Mrs. Traendly and the little Traendlys, on the farm at Rowayton, Conn.

J. Jacobs of Zarnier & Jacobs (the Marguerite Flower Co.) of 1392 Broadway, Brooklyn, was seized with appendicitis, removed to a hospital and operated on, September 2. As he is a young man of good habits, who has hitherto enjoyed good health, it is believed he will come through all right. "Jake" is well known and popular in the wholesale district.

John M. Thielman, of 890 Broadway, Brooklyn, who has been a retail florist in that locality for 42 years, has started west to introduce his new plant food "Fertilo-Humus." He will visit Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco and other cities. From what we have seen of his product, we think it a good thing, and commend Mr. Thielman to the trade.

Horace E. Froment has returned from a vacation of several weeks and looks fine, but for that matter, being a husky young fellow, he always looks well. During his absence, the "boys" took to painting and decorating and the store now looks as good as new.

Peter L. Bogart, the retailer of 970 Sixth avenue, is sojourning at an up-state resort and painters and decorators are making great improvements in the store, but the regular force, notably his big brother, William, continue active in the flower business.

At the store of J. H. Small & Sons, 505 Madison avenue, a force of workmen has been busy for some time on interior improvements. This store seemed up to date when opened a short time ago, but new and clever features have been added.

Harry Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, you all know him, is in the city today (September 4) calling on friends, and wears the "smile that won't come off." His house has just received a large shipment of goods from across the big pond.

G. F. Laufenburger, the retailer of 2660 Third avenue, with his wife, has just returned from a trip to Maine and the Old Bay state. They were absent three weeks, visiting Old Orchard and Portland, and returning by steamer to Boston.

We must hand a bouquet to Joseph Vock, salesman for W. H. Siebrecht, who says we usually quote lily of the valley too low. It is so unusual to hear a wholesaler say that anything is quoted too low that we make a note of it.

At the store of John J. Coan, Inc., 115 West 28th street, we have recently noticed a good assortment of roses, asters, gladioli and other flowers. John is one of the hustlers of the wholesale district.

At the store of M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street, we have recently noticed a good stock of American Beauties; also, new crop carnations that are good for the season.

George Hildenbrand, of John Young & Co., is on his vacation and his various duties are keeping the genial secretary very busy, but he is a glutton for work.

A. A. ARNOLD PAPER BOX COMPANY

1302-1308 West Division St., Chicago

Kansas City, Mo.

SUMMER BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Considering the extremely warm weather and the resultant scarcity of stock, the local florists report a very good summer trade and are making active preparations to take care of what promises to be a fine fall and winter business. Fear of a nationwide railroad strike, caused a general stocking up last week with the result that the demand was somewhat heavier than usual. Gladioli, asters and lilies are plentiful and of good grade but the supply of roses is limited. Other lines look promising and will be seen on the market soon.

NOTES.

Wm. L. Rock Floral Co. reports difficulty in getting sufficient good stock to fill all orders in full. They are commencing to cut roses and are showing some good stock of American Beauty. The demand for funeral work has been good here as elsewhere.

W. J. Barnes reports another good week of funeral work and was fairly well stocked to meet the demand. Among the handsome pieces turned out was a large casket blanket of asters, gladioli and lilies, arranged with fancy greens.

A. F. Barbe reports a very favorable summer trade. Funeral work at this establishment has been exceptionally heavy. He has commenced to cut roses and carnations.

T. J. Noll & Co. are carrying a fine line of gladioli, asters and lilies. Roses are good and more plentiful and some fine American Beauties are among the offerings.

Both local and out-of-town business has been very satisfactory with the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., funeral work taking the lead.

Walter Heite, of Merriam, Kan., has 15,000 chrysanthemums planted. One large house of fancy sweet peas also looks well.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling large quantities of good stock and report a daily cleanup. Roses are also seen here.

J. Austin has the framework of his new house completed and is ready for the glass.

A. Newell reports funeral work very good. Stock also shows improvement.

Floriculture at Iowa State Fair.

The floricultural features at the Iowa state fair and exposition which was held at Des Moines, August 23-September 1, were excellent, the classes being numerous and the displays well staged. In the plant section the competition was very keen, the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. of Des Moines and the Iowa Seed Co. of the same city dividing the honors. Both firms also made good displays of cut flowers and designs, as did Lozier's, The Florist, Trillow's Greenhouses and The Rosery, all of whom were keen contenders in the last named section. The awards were as follows:

John Bauscher, Champion "Jiner".

John Bauscher, the well-known grower of Freeport, Ill., is the champion "jiner" of the world, a recent initiation bringing his lodge and society affiliations up to 53, which the Chicago Herald is credited with stating is a world's record. In addition to being a member of the Society of American Florists, he belongs to the Elks, Masons, Eagles, Moose, Red Men, Odd Fellows, Owls, United Commercial Travelers, Knights of Pythias and many other organizations.

Fertilizer Johnson.

A little colored girl, a newcomer in Sunday school, gave her name to the teacher as "Fertilizer Johnson." Later the teacher asked the child's mother if that was right. "Yes, ma'am, dat's her name," said the fond parent. "You see, she was named fer me and her father. Her father's name am Ferdinand and my name is Liza. So we named her Fertilizer."—Boston Transcript.

Potato Bugs.

A man wearing a worried look went into a shop which advertised a patent potato bug exterminator and asked for a hundred pounds.

"Certainly, sir," said the amazed assistant; "but that quantity would be sufficient to destroy all the bugs in Cook county."

"I know that," was the reply. "They are all in my garden."

WASHINGTON, IA.—By order of the United States district court, southern district of Iowa, a final meeting of the creditors of the Mills Seed Co. of this city, bankrupt, will be held at the office of Frederick D. Everett, referee in bankruptcy, in Albia, Ia., September 12, at 9 a. m., for the purpose of closing up the affairs of the concern.

Lilly's Annual Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., was held on Puget Sound, September 2, 1916, the party leaving the city at noon on the steamer "Puget," and returning late in the evening. A splendid programme of music, dancing, theatricals and sports had been arranged for the occasion and every moment was an enjoyable one. Base ball, fancy swimming and diving, and the tug-of-war were features. Prominent among the members of the various committees who helped to make the outing a success long to be remembered, were the following: Chas. H. Lilly, Farwell Putnam Lilly, A. W. Sprague, Frank Leckeny, H. P. Chapman, Bob Hodge Shaw, W. H. Lilly and J. A. Taylor.

California Seed Crops.

Estimates of the California seed crops, dated August 27, are as follows:

Onion.—Average crop with more acreage and more sales, not enough to fill orders. Whites short with all growers.

Beet.—Fair crop, many now growing it.

Spinach.—Less than one-half of a crop.

Carrot.—About 75 per cent of a crop.

Parsley.—Seventy-five per cent crop.

Parsnip.—A little short.

Radish.—Nearly normal.

Salsify.—Very short.

Lettuce.—Average.

Endive.—Fair.

Celery.—Good.

Sweet Peas.—Less than half a crop; some varieties total failure.

TUBEROZE crop reports from North Carolina, indicate good prospects to date.

The Late Henry A. Salzer.

Henry A. Salzer, president of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., LaCrosse, Wis., whose death was recorded in our issue of August 26, page 318, was crushed to death in a deplorable automobile accident near Dresbach, Minn., August 22, when his car, over which the chauffeur had lost control on a steep hill, plunged over a 75-foot embankment. Mr. Salzer and his wife were taking Professor and Mrs. Edward Kremers, of Madison, Wis., who were their guests, to Ferndale, the summer residence of John P. Salzer, a brother of the deceased. The other members of the party escaped serious injury, being thrown clear of the wreck, but Mr. Salzer, who was thrown against a stump and crushed by the heavy car, was killed instantly. He was 61 years of age.

Henry A. Salzer was the second son of John A. Salzer, founder of the widely known seed firm which bears his name. He was born at Dutch Creek, Ia., in 1855, and in 1866 removed with his father, who was a minister, to La Crosse, Wis., where the elder Salzer became pastor of the First German Methodist church. Being the son of a German gardener, the love of flowers was inherent, and they were his hobby all during his period of faithful service to the church, and when in 1869, ill health compelled him to retire from the ministry, he turned naturally to his greenhouses, and, with his sons, laid the foundation of the present large establishment which in the beginning was known as the LaCrosse Floral Gardens.

After the death of his father in 1892, Henry A. Salzer became the head of the concern, which, under his guidance, has prospered until it holds a most enviable place in the trade. He also had many other business interests, among them being the United States Annuity & Life Insurance Co., of which he was president at the time of his death, the Darlington Electric Co., the Salzer Land Co., and the B. F. Salzer Lumber Co., of Denver, Colo., the Salzer Lumber Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., the New Orleans Syrup Co., the Mercantile State Bank of Minneapolis and the La Crosse Floral Co.

Highly esteemed in the business world, Mr. Salzer occupied no less important a position in the civic and religious life of his community. He was one of the largest contributors to the fund for the building of the First German Methodist church, was president of the board of trustees and the continued success of the church's affairs is credited largely to his business acumen. He was for 16 years one of the members of the book committee of the world organization of the Methodist church and was also a trustee of the Charles City College at Charles City, Ia.

In 1890, Mr. Salzer was married to Miss Clara Kremers of Milwaukee, Wis., who with two children, Kenneth, aged 22 years, and Gertrude, aged 11 years, survive him. He is also survived by two brothers, George Salzer of Minneapolis and John P. Salzer of La Crosse, and two sisters, Mrs. E. C. Lee of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Henry Hallauer of Springfield, Mo. Ben F. Salzer, a brother, died in Denver in 1915.

The funeral services, held Thursday afternoon, August 24, were private, but friends were permitted to view the remains in the morning and throngs paid their last respects. The services were conducted by Rev. John H. Klaus, pastor of the First German Methodist church, of which Mr. Salzer had been a member for nearly 50 years, assisted by Professor Frederick Schaub of Sioux City, Ia., formerly president of Charles City College. The pallbearers were George Salzer, John Salzer, Carl Rau, Professor Edward Kremers, Ernest Kremers and John Kremers. Many handsome floral tributes accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

French Bulbs Lost at Sea.

The S. S. Savonian, which was sunk by a torpedo in the Mediterranean August 13, carried about two-thirds of the French bulb crop destined for England, consisting of Roman hyacinths, freesias and other French bulbs, according to the British trade press. It is understood that Messrs. Sutton, Carter, Howcroft and some other big buyers had consignments in this ship.

To All Florists Using French Bulbs:

Vaughan's Seed Store advertisements and catalogues offer these bulbs by stated measure and in regular cases. Others report seeing advertisements of this stock which do not give measurements of the bulbs.

Why not get samples of French Paper Whites and the like this season before you place orders?

Vaughan's prices, grading considered, will average over fifteen per cent lower than those of our competitors, because bought early by our own agent in France and paid for in cash or on short terms.

Our present price of $7.85 per 1000 for the largest size of Paper White Grandiflora now obtainable, proves this statement.

Advance contract orders booked by us for Paper Whites will be filled with the larger sizes.

Write for our delivered prices on Lily Bulbs. Vaughan's Formosum run larger in all grades than those of other dealers.

Standard Basket and Container Law.

Standards for Climax baskets for grapes, other fruits and vegetables, and other types of baskets and containers used for small fruits, berries and vegetables in interstate commerce are fixed by an act approved by the president August 31, 1916. The law will become effective November 1, 1917.

The effect of the act will be to require the use of the standards in manufacturing, sale, or shipment for all interstate commerce, whether the containers are filled or unfilled. A large part of the traffic in fruits and vegetables in this country enters interstate commerce. The law relates only to the containers, and will not affect local regulations in regard to heaped measure or other method of filling. A special exemption from the operations of the law is made for all containers manufactured, sold, or shipped, when intended for export to foreign countries, and when such containers accord with the specifications of the foreign purchasers, or comply with the laws of the country to which the shipment is destined.

Standards of three capacities are fixed for Climax baskets—two, four and 12 quarts, dry measure. These containers, often known as "grape baskets," have relatively narrow, flat bottoms, rounded at each end, and thin sides flaring slightly from the perpendicular. The handle is hooped over at the middle from side to side. In addition to fixing the capacities of these standard baskets of this type, the law also prescribes their dimensions. The other standards are for "baskets or other containers for small fruits, berries, and vegetables." They are to have capacities only of one-half pint, one pint, one quart, or multiples of one quart, dry measure. Such containers may be of any shape so long as their capacities accurately accord with the standard requirements.

The examination and test of containers to determine whether they comply with the provisions of the act are made duties of the department of agriculture and the secretary of agriculture is empowered to establish and promulgate rules and regulations allowing such reasonable tolerances and variations as may be found necessary.

Penalties are provided by the act for the manufacture for shipment, sale for shipment, or shipment in interstate commerce of Climax baskets, and containers for small fruits, berries, and vegetables not in accord with the standards. It is provided, however, "that no dealer shall be prosecuted under the provisions of this act when he can establish a guaranty signed by the manufacturer, wholesaler, jobber, or other party residing within the United States from whom such Climax baskets, baskets, or other containers, as defined in this act, were purchased, to

"The Wanamaker Boston Fern"

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.25; oz., $4.50 net.

EARLY SONG BIRD This will be the leading pale pink for Florists. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer" and a bit lighter than "Elfrida Pearson." It has the same excellent form and features of Mrs. Hugh Dickson but is on white ground.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY MELODY This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer" and near "Hercules." It might be described as rose pink on white ground.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY SPRING MAID The color is light pink on a cream ground and the blossoms for a florist's flower.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.00; oz., $3.50 net.

EARLY SNOW FLAKE This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form.

25 Seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.25; oz., $4.50.

EARLY HEATHER BELL The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender.

25 seeds, 25c; Trade pkt. (¼ oz.), $1.25; oz., $4.50 net.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. G. Perkins of Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.

ADVICES from Holland under date of August 12 state that the season has been unfavorable for roses, Ampelopsis Veitchii and other similar plants. Some growers who formerly produced these stocks have grown vegetables during the past two years, and notwithstanding the British embargo, it is claimed the prices of many plants of the above class will be higher than last year.

Franklin Davis Nurs. Co. Reorganization.

The Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., whose property was sold at public auction August 23, will, it is reported, be reorganized and put on a sound basis, following the ratification of the sale by the United States district court. It is announced that Joseph Davis, president of the defunct concern, will be connected with the reorganized company in an active position.

Cemetery Superintendents.

With more than three hundred delegates and their ladies in attendance, the thirtieth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents at Norfolk, Va., August 22-24, mention of the opening of which was made in our issue of August 26, page 296, proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The programme was replete with papers and discussions of much interest and profit to those in attendance, and many side trips to various points of interest in the vicinity, and the warm hospitality at all times in evidence, made a deep and lasting impression on the visitors.

At the election of officers which took place August 24, the following were chosen for the ensuing year: R. N. Kesterson, Knoxville, Tenn., president; W. N. Rudd, Chicago, vice-president; W. B. Jones, Pittsburgh, Pa., secretary-treasurer. Bellett Lawton, Jr., Chicago, who had held the last named office for seven terms, refused to permit his name to be presented. Barre, Vt., was selected as the convention city for 1917.

Tent Caterpillar.

In a recent communication from the United States department of agriculture attention is called to the fact that this is the season of the year when the larvæ and small nests of the tent caterpillar are likely to be found upon orchard and other trees. As a method of control, it is suggested that the use of a torch will be found convenient to burn out the nests found in the higher parts of the trees, while those within convenient reach may be torn out with a brush. In all cases the larvæ should be crushed on the ground, care being taken to destroy all caterpillars remaining on the trees. In using the torch on large limbs care must be taken not to injure the bark; in fact, destroying the nests by hand is recommended. Tent caterpillars are readily destroyed by arsenical sprays applied to the foliage of the trees infested by them, but on stone fruits, such as cherry, peach and plum, arsenicals are likely to cause injury and must be used with extreme care, if at all. On such trees, arsenate of lead is preferable, used in the proportion of two pounds to each 50 gallons of water.

Heather.

It does not seem to be generally understood that the heather of northern Europe (Calluna vulgaris) can be successfully grown in this country, although it is now many years since it was discovered that it had become naturalized in Nova Scotia and in Tewksbury and Townsend, Mass. The ends of the branches are sometimes killed here in severe winters, but this is an advantage rather than an injury to the plants, for English gardeners to secure the best results cut back their plants severely after they have finished flowering. In this country the heather should be planted in well-drained, sandy soil, fully exposed to the sun; planted in the shade it usually suffers in cold winters, as in the shade it continues to grow late in the autumn and the wood does not ripen properly. There are a number of handsome and interesting varieties in the arboretum collection. Some of the best of these are the variety alba with white flowers; the variety alba minor, a white-flowered plant of dwarf habit; var. rubra, a dwarf compact variety with crimson flowers, and one of the earliest to flower and one of the handsomest of the set; var. tomentosa, a compact plant with gray-green foliage and red flowers; var. alba Serlei, a tall growing form with white flowers; vars. alba tenella and alba rigida with white flowers; var. Alportii, a tall growing form with crimson flowers, and var. hypnoides, a very compact, small-leaved plant producing only sparingly its small purple flowers. These plants can be seen in the shrub collection, and quantities of heather have been planted on the sides of the Meadow road.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July 19, 1916.

LISTEN!

When the largest grower in the country has over eight miles of it, and still wants more, doesn't it look as though there was something unusually good about that gutter?

GARLAND PATENT CAST IRON GUTTERS have such a reputation as that described above. GARLAND GREENHOUSES have the same good name.

Let us have your inquiry. We can be of service to you.

GARLAND MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
DES PLAINES, ILLINOIS
 LOUIS WITTBOLD, President.

Los Angeles.

TRADE CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

Business conditions are about as reported a week ago. All flowers are looking well and some very good carnations are now coming in, while roses are arriving from the ranges. Cecile Brunner is quite plentiful and Mrs. Aaron Ward is fine. There are not many orchids to be seen and green is none too plentiful. The weather is ideal.

NOTES.

The Redondo Floral Co. is showing some of the first chrysanthemums of the season and these used in conjunction with the Golden West dahlia made a window of fine color. Some of the force are away on vacations, but early in September all hands will be back prepared for a big season.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has been making a showing of about 500 varieties of dahlias in flower from which customers may order bulbs for next season's planting. The display as a whole was fine and many of the individual flowers were superb.

Funeral work has been a factor during the week at the establishment of the Broadway Florists. They have also had quite a call for bouquets.

The next meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society will be held at the Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday, September 6.

S. Murata & Co. continue to make numerous long distance shipments of their carnations and asters. The stock is of very good quality.

Seki Bros. & Co. have completed improvements at their establishment and have a much more commodious sales-room.

The new roses from their own range are features at Wright's Flower Shop, Inc. The force here is busy as usual.

J. W. Wolters reports a steadily increasing business during the past few weeks. Good stock is always seen here.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are showing some really fine gloxinias. Trade continues good for the season.

Theodore Payne is busy with landscape work where native plants and shrubs are used.

The force at O. C. Saakes continues busy. The roses here are looking fine.

Express Special Delivery Service.

A special parcel delivery express service, or what is known in express circles as expedited parcel service, has, it is said, been discussed at the offices of various express companies, but for numerous reasons never got beyond that point. The main reason advanced is that there is not sufficient demand for it, and there is a tendency to wait and see how the recent extension of special delivery to the parcel post service of the post office works out. As an employee of one company said, when the expedited service was suggested:

"We have never had much demand for this class of business, though it might conceivably grow to large dimensions. But much of it would necessarily be local, and we do not want local business. Express companies always lose money on local business."

American Production of Potash.

A review of the potash industry in the United States during 1915 by the United States geological survey reports that during the year potash salts to the value of $342,000 were produced. The imports of refined potash salts in 1915 were 76,141 long tons or a little more than 35 per cent of those in 1913, the latest normal year of importation. Taking all in all, the imports of 1915 were about one-tenth of those under normal conditions. Experimental work in the production of potash salts from different sources in the United States was active during the year.

Who Buys 'Em?

"Why do you specialize on rutabagas?"

"Well, nobody wants to steal 'em. There's no temptation to eat 'em yourself. Nothing hurts 'em. It's a sure crop."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING.

Address Before Illinois State Florists' Association by Frederick N. Evans, Instructor in Landscape Design, University of Illinois, Urbana.

The Term Defined.

The twofold ability to tell a group of men such as yourselves just what you want to know concerning landscape gardening, and to put it before you in the right way, is an accomplishment which I am backward in undertaking. I shall try, however, to do two things quite simply—to tell you in the first place what the landscape gardening department is aiming to do at the University of Illinois; in that way, define what landscape gardening is; and in the second place, to mention if I can, a few points at which the landscape architect and the professional florist touch shoulders.

We are endeavoring to fit young men and young women for work in a profession in which it has been found that a young man or a young woman cannot accomplish the best things—at least is not apt to produce the best results without special, diligent and pretty strenuous training. Now it does not matter whether this training is obtained inside or outside of academic walls, but it does matter how long it takes to get such training. There should be no difference between what is called theoretical and practical training. Theoretical training is merely a boiling down of other men's experience into an allopathic dose. It should be distinguished from practical training only in aiming to be a short cut through the field of experience.

The lay mind finds it hard sometimes to understand just what is implied by the term "landscape gardening." No doubt the professional florist's mind is clearer on the subject, since the two professions are somewhat related. But even so, a word of explanation may well be given in endeavoring to tell you what the landscape gardening department is doing for the aspirants at the threshold of the muse. We hear various different terms applied to the workers in landscape gardening. That the work as a profession is new is in part accountable for the variety—that it has various distinct branches within itself is another reason. For instance, we hear of landscape gardener, landscape architect, landscape engineer, garden architect, and so forth. These terms today are for general purposes synonymous, though they vary occasionally in their specific application. We shall use the term "landscape gardener" as covering them all, at this time.

Landscape gardening has often been defined as an art of arranging a part of the earth's surface to fit the needs of beauty and convenience. In this art the principle of convenience or use is to be considered even prior to that of beauty, but both go hand in hand. The landscape gardener works mainly with three elements—(1) with ground forms, that is, with hill, plain or valley; (2) with artificial or architectural forms, such as buildings, steps, bridges, and so forth, and (3) with vegetation in all its varied forms of tree, shrub and flower. In the management of or in planning, what disposition shall be made of ground forms in any problem in hand, the landscape gardener has need for some knowledge of engineering principles. In planning the shape and placing of these features, which are to be constructed of various building materials, shown on his plan, it will be seen that a knowledge of architectural principles is equally essential, and further, in considering the choice and arrangement of the many forms of vegetation which go to make up the completed landscape picture, the landscape gardener must be drilled along lines of horticulture. Thus the landscape gardener is a connecting link, uniting part of three sciences.

The students in the department at the University of Illinois have enough to do, as will be seen. They are, as a body, very much in earnest. It is interesting to note that the department of landscape gardening at the University of Illinois is the largest in the country, numbering at present 62 students, gathered from as far east as Massachusetts and as far west as California.

A comparison of our profession, floriculture and landscape gardening, would show, as far as numbers are concerned, I am sure, a large balance in favor of the florists. In this country, we are both a rather young profession. It is true that men have gardened since the time of Adam, but it is only since about 1825 that there has been a popular demand in this country for the product of our art resulting in a class of men trained to meet this demand. Both professions have grown in prestige in the last few decades.

The interrelation of the two professions is vast and the chances for co-operation between us are not to be overlooked. This is an age when to make the most of his trade each man had best tend to his own business. He must be more or less of a specialist. He cannot afford to be a quack. Each profession must occasionally borrow the brains of another. Now and again it will be very profitable for us both to do so. There are times when the florist should find it necessary to call on the landscape gardener for advice in design and there are times when the landscape gardener's productions are almost entirely dependent on the art of the florist to set them off. Let me state a specific instance illustrating each of these points and I shall close. An annual florists' exhibition has been given in Rochester, N. Y., for a number of years in the Auditorium. Because of the lack of co-operation among the exhibitors in arranging their display, the exhibition gradually seemed to be losing in popularity year by year. Something had to be done. A scheme was necessary to pull the thing together. This was the solution. A landscape gardener was put in charge of the arrangement of the whole exhibit. Thanks to the clever designers in his office, a scheme was devised which united both beauty and common sense in display. Attractive garden features were introduced, hedges of arbovitae, a pool in which the beauty of the exhibits were mirrored in the water. It was something original. It was beautiful beyond custom. The whole city flocked to the flower show, and continues to do so, now, year after year. There is the double gain in advertizing and substantial gate receipts. Here the landscape gardener was able to aid the florist.

An instance illustrating but one of the many ways in which the florist's aid may be called in to help the product of the landscape gardener was seen at San Francisco during the Panama-Pacific exposition. These flowers were an extremely important feature. At the Seattle Exposition several years ago, more than anywhere else that has come to my notice was an incident of the value of the floral decoration as an asset of landscape gardening. There in the central parterre below the central fountain were decorative beds of brilliant flowers, as much a part of the general design as any architectural features surrounding them. In the center lay a bed of mesembrianthemums—the midday flower—a simple device, and its wonderful color was, as it seemed, the cynosure of all eyes, the center of the whole scheme. The public, like myself, remember, no doubt, the beauty of that bed long after the beauty of the rest of the design has faded. And so, in the city itself, by flower boxes, by gardens and floral decoration also of other character, much more may be done to help conditions on every hand. There is indeed a large field of co-operation between the art of the grower of flowers and that of the planner of a small part of the earth's surface—a chance which we will all do well to keep in mind, as it offers opportunities for profit to both of our professions, both materially and ideally.

"The Elms," Newport, R. I.

"The Elms," one of Newport's handsome and well kept estates, is a place the writer had a cherished longing to see, and when asked by the head gardener, Bruce Butterson, when passing, if I had time to look in, I did there and then find time. Edward J. Berwind is the owner, and a look about the place will convince one that he has a princely way of doing things, and the following is but a meager description of things to be seen:

On the main terrace, at the house, stand several groups of statuary that have a worldwide reputation, and about these are arranged single specimens and beds of boxwood that conform in a formal way to set off the statuary. The terrace is extensive, and when the whole is viewed from the lower lawn, has a grand and harmonious effect.

At the servants' entrance a round enclosure is made of beech trees, trimmed trees in a variety. These are with arches in the shape of a summer-house roof, which is covered with wistaria, now a beautiful sight in full bloom. This arrangement is ornamental and makes a complete screen.

At the front of the house the grounds are ornamented with stately trimmed low. This enclosure is topped in wide contrast with all other trees about the place, which have been left about as nature grew them. "The Elms" is surrounded by a high wall, except on the front, and lined with large trees, which are banked underneath with native rhododendrons that are grouped to irregular lines.

A view of the main lawn from the terrace shows large, shapely trees in the distance, in groups and single, that have large limbs and graceful branches which seem to give a naturalness to a well done formal effect. The sunken garden on the lower lawn is the product of the gardener being told to do something after he had made an extensive trip to see what the other fellows' sunken gardens looked like, which resulted in the garden being laid out in shapely beds, edged with low boxwood and all filled with red flowering begonias and in the center a large, low vase filled with blue hydrangeas. Two vases of the same also stand at the foot of the marble stairway leading to the garden, which completes the decoration. Standing on the terrace, by the marble balustrade that overlooks the garden, the effect is rich and of solidity.

Two marble fountains adorned with bronze figures and ornaments said to be over 200 years old are located at either end of two long rows of nicely shaped twelve foot arbor vitae that line a wide grass walk that leads to two small marble Pavilions and the sunken garden. The rows of arbor vitae seem to have a soft and pleasing effect midst the marble.

When it is known that this place has been torn up and replanted from end to end several times under the direction of the best landscape architects without regard of expense the results cannot be otherwise than princely. J. J. B.

A Garden In Finland.

Mrs. M. L. Vlachos, who with her husband, conducts the retail store known as the "Astoria Florist," 2188 Broadway, New York, is a native of Finland. She was there on a visit to her mother when the war broke out. She had promised the writer to bring back with her a collection of photographs, but the hostilities upset most of her plans. As the accompanying photograph is of her mother's garden it probably got through as being of no military importance. The large Cleveland's Open Air Show.

The florist trade of Cleveland, O., and vicinity staged their first open air fall flower show, Septemehr 2-9, in conjunction with the Industrial exposition and fair, conducted by the Chamber of Commerce at Edgewater park. In a large tent, decorated with flags and bunting, with the cries of the "ballyhos" and fakirs on all sides, and the music of the open air hippodrome playing continuously outside of the entrance to the flower tent, the florists of that city again distinguished themselves with displays of basket arrangements, table decorations, groups of foliage plants, as well as cut flowers, aquatics and gold fish.

As one entered the tent from the north entrance, immediate to the right was the concrete garden furniture exhibit of the A. C. Barber Concrete Co., of Barberton, O., consisting of flower boxes, vases and urns, chairs and benches. Next came the Cleveland Garden & Soil Supply Co., with an exhibit of soils and fertilizers. And then, the beautiful exhibition of the floral industries of Cleveland, which it can be said attracted as much interest as anything in the entire fair. This was arranged in the form of a large garden with a pond and bridge, roadway and house, most skillfully done and elaborate in detail. Here, also, Miss Ruth Mercer distributed posters giving on one side statistics as to the number of plants and cut blooms used by the flower lovers of the city every year, while on the reverse side were the names of 65 florists who contributed funds to this exhibition and aided in making it the splendid success it proved to be. Next came the exhibit of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, featuring seeds and bulbs. The Childrens' Flower Mission, A. H. Austin & Co., Wayland, O., and Coleman & Son Co., Lexington, O., staged gladioli. The Cleveland Bird Lovers' Association showed many unique designs in bird houses, the Matthews Mfg. Co. displayed garden furniture of wood, trellises, benches, sundials, etc., and the Eagle Wire Works, Cleveland, made a fine display of wire designs. Among other exhibitors were the Fischer-Jirouch Co., Cleveland, garden furniture of stone; A. S. Buskirk, Independence, O., 50 varieties of aquatic plants arranged in two ponds with a display of goldfish which he handles quite extensively.

The table decorations were very well done, the arrangements being changed daily, a certain flower being designated for each day, among them being gladioli, asters and dahlias, while on Friday the use of any flower was permissible. Decorated baskets came under the same ruling. The following had tables and baskets entered in these classes, which were non-competitive: The Jones-Russell Co., the J. M. Gasser Co., Chris B. Wilhelmy, Timothy Smith, G. W. Mercer and Knoble Bros.

A special prize of $5 was awarded to Rheinhold Hoffman for exhibiting a well grown lemon tree; also a prize for the same tree by Jas. W. Corrigan, Nag-ir-roc Gardens, Wickliffe, O. An Abyssinian banana plant, exhibited by John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York, attracted much attention.

It was estimated that about 250,000 persons attended the exposition and nearly all who entered the grounds visited the flower show. The extremely dry weather interfered to quite an extent with the display of plants and flowers, which otherwise would have been more complete, but the show was nevertheless a great success.

The following were among the prize-winners in the competitive classes:

Hanging basket, 16-inch, one or more varieties of ferns allowed—Jas. W. Corrigan estate (E. A. Bause, Supt.), 1st; H. P. Eells, Overlook road, 2nd.

Hanging basket, 16-inch, flowering begonias—Jas. W. Corrigan, 1st; H. P. Eells, 2nd.

Six specimen crotons, in variety—Woodside Farms.

Six dracaena, in variety—Woodside Farms, 2nd.

Pandanus Veitchii—Woodside Farms, 1st; James W. Corrigan, 2nd.

Display of 100 spikes of delphiniums arranged for effect—Jas. W. Corrigan. C. F. B.

Rochester Flower Show.

The floral display in connection with the Rochester exposition, which was held September 4-9, was a most pleasing feature of the show. Upon entering the hall the visitors were impressed with the picturesqueness of the arrangement. In the center a fountain was banked high with ferns, the base being draped with purple velour, while at one side a realistic waterfall emptied into a valley of rocks, mosses and grasses, the effectiveness being further enhanced with fallen logs and moss covered rocks. Arbor vitae and cedar trees filled in at intervals and made a charming background, while beds of asters in full bloom added color to the scene. George Cramer was the artist who executed this clever arrangement.

A magnificent peristyle surmounted the lily pond which was also arranged near the center of the hall and the display here was also most excellent and included aquatics of many varieties, caladiums and boxes of arbor vitae.

Directly opposite was the splendid exhibit of James Vick's Sons, consisting of a wonderful showing of gladioli, asters, salpiglossis, phloxes, coreopsis, cosmos, delphiniums, zinnias, and a number of other varieties together with a fine collection of Boston ferns. The display of the park department also attracted much attention, the ornamental plants showing excellent form and the groups of begonias, hydrangeas and Japanese lilies were also well worthy of mention.

George B. Hart's display, a huge skeleton umbrella, covered with asparagus and arranged with orchids, was very pleasing. In the collection were epidendrums from Jamaica, oncidiums, odontoglossums, cypripediums, hybrid cattleyas and others. H. E. Wilson made an excellent display of boxwoods, baytrees, pot chrysanthemums and cut flowers in baskets. His prize veranda boxes were also a feature. George Boucher had a fine collection of palms, ferns and cut roses.

On the horse show grounds arbor vitae were planted to form a background for the equestrians and the high jump was lined with hedges of Vick's asters, as was also the water jump, at the far side of which were placed 600 tubs of hydrangeas in full bloom, while groupings of evergreens were placed at intervals.

In the competition for plants and flowers in the professional class, H. E. Wilson received seven first and two second prizes, George Boucher being well to the front with a number of firsts and C. W. Curtis took seven blue ribbons for gladioli and asters. The displays in the amateur section were also very good, consisting largely of annuals and perennials. All were well staged.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Early Fall Wedding.

The earliest of the autumn social functions is the wedding; this important event to the parties concerned has been looked forward to for months, and all the details, not the least of which are the floral decorations, have been considered again and again. How best to arrange this display for the amount of money to be expended, is, however, finally up to the florist, whose business it is to know, and who should be prepared as soon as the ground has been looked over, to outline the work and picture a decorative scheme so beautiful that it will be accepted even if it does cost a little more than was at first thought sufficient.

Always, if possible, include in any such decorative work the flowers of the season. Dahlias and autumn leaves are now to be had in quantity and very beautiful effects can be made with color combinations of beautiful foliage and the brilliant pink, red, orange, yellow, and white of the dahlias.

An alcove or bower at one end of the parlor, backed with palms and canopied with autumn leaves, enlivened with all white, or pink and white dahlias, can be made very effective. There are innumerable ways of arranging the canopy support. A heavy bent wire or light iron rod, attached to the window frames, its curve extending out into the room as far as desired, and supported from a mirror hook generally found in the wall between the windows, by light wires, close enough together so that the autumn boughs can be interwoven, is better than a regular made canopy form, which is very heavy and awkward to carry about.

Over door and arch ways, autumn sprays with clusters of dahlias are very showy and decorative; in fact, the whole woodwork is at times concealed where the display is elaborate. Over the mirror and back of all picture frames such a touch of grace and color as these boughs, afford is generally much admired.

The newel post and bannister railing of the stairway in the hall affords one of the most conspicuous places for such treatment and is always sure to get its word of praise from the guests. All ends of branches should be carefully tied in, so there are no projections to catch the clothing. In connection with the leaves all one color of flowers is best in the hall, with a generous showing on the newel post.

The dining room can be decorated in much the same way. To relieve and loosen up the solid effect of all dahlias, the hardy fall asters, with their profuse white, lavender and blue blossoms, will be found very useful as will sprays of Clematis paniculata. Colored heads of the hydrangeas can also be placed in the larger clusters over the corners of doorways and in fireplaces. To confine the decorations of a room to one color makes a noticeable and pleasing variation, selecting flowers that will give the best effects with the color scheme of the various apartments. Flowers other than dahlias can of course be introduced when it is found advisable.

Some floor vases of roses may be placed about the alcove where the bridal party will receive. If this is also the place of the ceremony, a well-decorated kneeling stool is necessary behind which the clergyman awaits the coming of the bride and groom. The bouffe dining table should contain a vase of long stemmed roses, preferably American Beauties, or long stemmed, selected dahlias will also be found very effective. All chandeliers should have a touch of green and color in keeping with the other decorations. The arrangement never looks finished without this attention.

When the ceremony is to be performed at the church, very brilliant effects can be made with a liberal use of the outside fall flowers and foliage. The inevitable banking of palms and ferns, arranged according to the architecture of the building, makes a setting for the flowers. Every florist who attempts more or less elaborate church decorations should have two or three pairs of large wicker urns or vases which could be placed on the floor of the platform or heavy pedestals to the height required. These large receptacles, when filled with long stemmed flowers of any kind, at this time preferably hydrangeas, canna spikes, dahlias, etc., with long sprays of Clematis paniculata, will give a stunning effect. A round plateau or basket mossed high in the center of which is a fibre jar with water and filled loosely, all flowers facing the front, can be placed on these vases and produce probably a better showing than if all stems were placed directly in the water. An almost indispensable feature of church decorations is the cibotium; the splendid spreading fronds of these are most beautiful and wonderfully effective in almost any kind of large decorative work, and with care will last almost as long as the more sturdy looking palms.

One or two good sized zinc lined, pot covers, mossed and filled with flowers and foliage, will decorate a window ledge and this treatment in all the windows of the church adds much to the general appearance. The pew ends should each have a cluster of autumn leaves and dahlias tied with a ribbon, or at least those that are set apart for the immediate families of the bride and groom. Raised standards at equal distances along the aisle are sure to attract attention where the decorations are elaborate.

The white floor cloth, covering the main isle, which is rolled into place from the front to the rear of the church just before the bridal procession, and the ribbons from the reserved pews to the end of the aisle, stretched at the same time, after all the guests have been assembled, are not to be forgotten. These extras do not add much to the expense and are now a feature of nearly all church weddings.

Shipping and Delivery Labels.

The florist with a shipping and delivery trade is very liable to run out of address labels when business becomes brisk at any special season, and it is well to look into the stock now and order a new supply to cover the busy season close at hand. When there is occasion to use shipping labels they are needed in a hurry, and there is no time to print them. For the purpose of florists, wholesale and retail, there is no more serviceable article than the Red Rose Leaf label adopted by the S. A. F., with the legend "Fresh Flowers" in large white lettering. This is a very attractive label and the size commonly used is $6\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. All special sizes can be made according to order. The American Florist Co., 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago, supplies the above size printed in two colors, red and black, on good gummed paper, your business card and the leaf, at \$4.50 per thousand, 500 for \$2.85. This label is known to express and railroad men all over the country and they fully understand the perishable nature of packages bearing this label and deliver them quickly to avoid the costly risk of losses caused by delay.

Department Stores vs. Retail Flower Shops

A paper by Allie Zech, Chicago, read at a meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, September 7, 1916.

At a previous meeting of this organization, I promised I would at this time read a paper upon the subject of whether sales of flowers in the department stores, sometimes at what seem to be ridiculously low prices, were detrimental or beneficial to the trade, a topic which has already been much discussed, with considerable variance of opinion.

It has been contended by some, that the flower section in the department store will induce the sale of flowers to a certain class, who at first are not patrons of the retail florist, but who eventually become accustomed to having flowers in their homes and are afterward regular purchasers in the flower shops. On the other hand the opinion exists that the trade in general is hurt to an extent by department store sales, the public being given the impression that flowers have no value, and that the retail florists are "hold up" men, this idea being created when the department stores advertise "fresh cut flowers" at a price that is below the cost of producing the stock; for example, carnations at eight cents per bunch of 25 or roses at six cents per dozen. The general public as a rule does not know a good flower from a poor one—a flower is a flower to a certain class of purchasers—and they should be educated to distinguish quality in our line as they do in others.

When a department store advertises roses at 12 cents per dozen the day before Mothers' day, when the price in the market is $2 and $3 per 100 for the shortest stock, and when on another occasion another one of these establishments devoted large newspaper advertising space to the announcement of a sale of lilies at 19 cents per pot, adding that they were going to "protect the public" and "not overcharge for flowers," do you not think the flower business is going to be unfavorably affected. The retailer cannot compete with these prices and the effect in the wholesale houses is noticeable immediately. As soon as the department stores announce a sale of flowers, retailers stop buying at once, giving as the reason, the fact that much of the stock would have to be thrown out, inasmuch as people are drawn to the department stores who are selling flowers as an advertisement and not for a livelihood, making no profit on them, and using them as a "leader" to get customers into their stores, the purchases in other lines offsetting any loss.

In my opinion, all three branches of the cut flower business are to blame for these conditions. For example, the wholesaler may be overloaded with stock when the buyer for the department store appears and the surplus is turned over to him "for a song." Would it not be far better if this surplus were thrown in the barrel and the balance sold for a fair price? In the end, the wholesaler would sell probably one-third of his supply and get as much, if not more, than by sacrificing it to the department stores. In the second place the grower is at fault. When the market is glutted, he should sort his cut, sending only the best to the market rather than shipping in every flower, good or bad. In this way, with only the best stock on hand, the market would remain firm, but many growers seem to hold to the idea of seeing how many blooms they can cut during the season, not paying so much attention to the quality of their shipments. If the grower would assist in this way at the time of a glut, it would help to eliminate department store sales.

And now let us turn our attention to the retailer who could do his share to cut out the department stores by buying more flowers during a glutted market. As a rule he buys merely enough stock to fill orders; he does not carry much stock in his store, but waits for his orders, and then goes to market and secures enough to meet his requirements. If, when the market is overstocked, every retailer would buy a good supply and conduct a sale of his own, rather than let the department stores have the advantage, he could not only sell more flowers, but he would advertise himself and secure new customers. When stock is plentiful, select a certain day, order a large supply for that occasion, and announce the fact by delivering a handbill to every house in the neighborhood, that on that day he intends to give everyone the benefit of a low price, having secured a large supply at a lower figure than usual. Another plan is for the retailer during such times of oversupply in the wholesale market, to send a small box containing, say, six flowers, with his card, to his customers with his compliments, or to every home in the neighborhood of his establishment.

If all three branches of the trade would co-operate along these lines, I am sure it would prove of great benefit to all concerned. I would also like to hear some grower, retail florist or another wholesaler speak on this subject.

Canna Yellow King Humbert.

It was the writer's pleasure recently to visit the farm of J. C. Vaughan at Homewood, Ill., about 20 miles from Chicago, and I was much impressed with the magnificent showing of Canna Yellow King Humbert. On approaching the farm, this variety at a distance of one-half mile loomed up above everything else, and it was at first difficult to believe that a canna could make such a beautiful showing at that distance. It is a sport from King Humbert but has green foliage, is a fine vigorous grower and the blooms appear to be a trifle larger than the old King Humbert. When this variety becomes known, I feel sure it will fill a place among the yellow cannas, fully as important as King Humbert has among the reds.

Mrs. A. Guillaume Retires.

After nearly 35 years spent in the floral business at La Crosse, Wis., being one of the first to erect a greenhouse in that city, Mrs. A. Guillaume retired September 8, having disposed of her flower shop at Fifth and Main streets to L. E. Metcalf of Chicago. Mrs. Guillaume will conduct her nursery business, having a large amount of this stock on hand.

Mrs. Guillaume has been a resident of La Crosse for 42 years, and was associated in the florist business with her husband up to the time of his death three years ago. Her grandson, Carmen Freimark, and Miss Emma Guillaume, her daughter, who has been associated with her mother in business, will assist the new proprietor for a time.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at Smith & Young's establishment, 228 East Ohio street, Indianapolis, September 7, President W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne in the chair. Three new members were added to that ever increasing list—Fred Keil, J. F. Brown and Wm. Hammitt, all of Indianapolis. The following committees were named to arrange for the meeting of the American Carnation Society, which will be held at Indianapolis, January 31-February 1:

Entertainment—O. E. Steinkamp, Irwin Bertermann, Jos. H. Hill and Geo. Wiegand.

Reception—John Bertermann, Herman Young, Henry Rieman, G. R. Gause and John Hartje.

Decorations—Homer Wiegand, Harry Pahud, C. Schwomeyer and A. F. Reynolds.

New Membership—W. W. Coles, Fred Heintz, Theo. Dorner, J. A. E. Haugh and E. G. Hill.

Table Displays—Fred H. Lemon, C. C. Thomas, Chas. Pahud, C. H. Bookedis and John Rieman.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., ex-officio.

Herman Young was appointed to send a letter of condolence to the bereaved relatives of Wm. Langstaff, who died August 22. He was an honorary member of the association, was one of its charter members and had held office for several years.

The committee on the Anna Jarvis Mothers' day fund reported having collected $133 for the cause and it was voted to forward same to Secretary John Young of the S. A. F.

The big joint meeting of the Indiana and Kentucky florists to be held at Louisville October 17-18 was one of the main topics for discussion during the meeting. The Indiana florists expect to swing into the Kentucky city via special train for the big two days' trade fest. Secretary Baumer, of the Kentucky state organization, is arranging the programme assisted by A. Rasmussen of New Albany. Full details of the trip will be published later.

After the business session the meeting adjourned to partake of a Dutch lunch prepared by Hosts Keil and Young.

INDICATIONS OF GOOD FALL TRADE.

Business during the past week has improved considerably and with stock showing better form every day, the stores are looking forward to good fall trade. Roses and carnations are showing improvement and prices are fair. Asters, dahilas and gladioli are good. Lily of the valley is the scarce item.

NOTES.

The Leo Niessen Co. has moved to its new location and now has one of the best equipped wholesale establishments of its kind this side of Philadelphia.

George C. Shaffer is having his store painted, both inside and out. The entire force here has been very busy all week with wedding decorations.

W. W. Kimmell, after spending the greater part of the summer at Colonial beach, is back and is busy getting his store in readiness for the fall season.

S. Simonds, for the past 18 years head gardener at the Leiter estate, has resigned, and is looking around for a range of glass in this vicinity.

J. B. McCabe is adding two houses to his range. One is 28x160 feet, the other 30x160 feet. G. C. D.

Kansas City, Mo.PLENTIFUL SUPPLY AND READY SALES.

Trade is increasing day by day and a good supply of stock finds ready sale. Roses are becoming more plentiful and are of excellent quality, especially Ophelia, Russell and American Beauty, prices ranging from 6 to 10 cents. Gladioli and asters have been plentiful and are still holding out to a good grade. The supply of green goods is short; in fact, impossible to secure enough for requirements at times. The call for pot plants is also increasing but the supply is limited. Basket work is also picking up.

NOTES.

The Alpha Floral Co. has been showing some exceptionally fine large asters in their window. They had the appearance of a good sized chrysanthemum and attracted much attention. Business is showing a good increase here.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a brisk business in out-of-town orders. Fine asters, gladioli and roses are features here. Mrs. Noll, accompanied by her mother, is making an extended eastern trip, visiting the principal cities.

Reinhardt & Son, of Shawnee, Kas., have a fine house of chrysanthemums. They have had a very prosperous season and expect to make additions to their range during the coming year.

H. Kusik & Co. report a good week. Gladioli and asters are being handled here in large numbers and are of good grade, especially the Colorado grown stock. Roses are also good sellers.

Ed. Humfeld reports good business and a brisk demand for funeral work. He says he misses his home in the Ozarks where he has 10 acres with good cool air and fine fishing.

W. J. Barnes had the decorations for the millinery opening at the Emery, Bird & Thayer store. Other decorations will follow later at the same establishment.

The crop of winter carnations coming on at the Stevens Greenhouses looks very promising. He also has a fine lot of cyclamens and begonias.

A. Newell reports business about on a par with that of last week, with stock more plentiful, especially roses.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports increasing business. All of the employees have returned from their vacations.

J. Hepting reports his carnation and chrysanthemum stocks in fine shape.

B. P. Martin, of Rosedale, Kas., has his new greenhouses ready for planting. E. J. B.

Los Angeles, Calif.GOOD FALL BUSINESS IN SIGHT.

Weather conditions continue favorable and very good carnations are being received from the gardens in this vicinity. Asters are slowing up and will soon disappear and very few gladioli are to be seen. Chrysanthemums are beginning to come in more plentifully and will soon hold the center of the stage. This has been a big year for dahlias, the supply having been ample and the quality good. Orchids and lily of the valley are not overly plentiful, but a few can be had from time to time. Violets are beginning to show themselves and will soon be seen on all sides and roses continue to improve. Business continues fair; in fact, there has been no real slump in business in this city this summer. People are returning from their summer jaunts, and as far as dull trade is concerned, the worst is over.

NOTES.

Business at Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., has been very good. They have been showing some fine American Beauties from their own range. Fred Westrem, one of the genial salesmen at this establishment, has been spending his vacation in a delightful trip down the coast in his Ford.

The Broadway Florists have finished decorating one of the big Broadway stores for its recent opening. They report the biggest dahlia sales this season in the history of their establishment.

O. C. Saakes has been quite busy with funeral work. He is featuring some very good White Fair Maid carnations.

The Redondo Floral Co. has been busy with funeral orders. Mr. Knopf is entertaining guests from Portland, Ore.

Seki Bros. & Co. have quite a crop of chrysanthemums coming on for the fall trade at their Hollywood place.

G. H. H.

Providence, R. I.

Stock is plentiful. Gladioli and asters are still holding out very well and roses are improving and are enjoying a good call. Floral work continues steady and the cut flower trade which has been brisk for some time is getting better day by day.

NOTES.

The Westminster Greenhouses are rebuilding one of their houses. In it will be placed the recent shipment of 10-foot palms received from Belgium.

Alterations are being made at the Park Greenhouses to permit building operations, several dwellings to be erected at the front of the property.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society held its annual fall show September 11-12 in the ball room of the Narragansett hotel.

Henry Taylor, of Macnair's force, is enjoying a three weeks' vacation in the White mountains.

E. R. Seymour, of Warren, R. I., is sending good Boston and Roosevelt ferns to this market.

The Empire Floral Co., Powers & Oakley, proprietors, opened for business September 9.

J. Kopelman & Co. are cutting excellent roses at their range at Riverside.

The Carmichael Orchards are cutting fine gladioli. H. A. T.

Cincinnati.SEASONABLE STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

The market during the past week showed improvement as far as the supply of stock is concerned, better in fact than it has been for some time. All seasonable lines are now plentiful and easily able to take care of all requirements. The supply of asters and Easter lilies has increased greatly, both being plentiful. Roses are in very fair supply. The gladioli cut is large and only the best find ready sale. Cosmos, too, are plentiful and some excellent dahlias are to be had.

NOTES.

J. J. Enneking, who, for many years, was associated with the late Max Rudolph, has taken over the store. He is thoroughly versed in all the details and will make good in his business venture.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving heavy shipments of asters from out-of-town points.

W. Ray Murphy is away on a business trip.

Henry Schwartz is again on the sick list.

Visitors: Wm. Hasselmann, Independence, Mo.; J. W. Crismore, Chicago; Miss Emma Constable, Blanchester, O.; A. Miller, Chicago; Jos. Molch, Jeffersonville, Ind. H.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, September 5, the members having been invited by Professor A. H. Nehrling of the department of floriculture to spend the afternoon at the college and as many as could do so availed themselves of the opportunity and inspected the many interesting features to be found at that institution. A hardy perennial garden has recently been established and is receiving much attention from visitors.

The business meeting was called to order by President Butler and plans for the coming show were discussed. Professor Nehrling read two papers which had been received from the National Association of Gardeners, the subjects being, "The Diabrotica," by R. A. Sell of Texas, and "The Iris Worm," by F. S. Snow of Pennsylvania. A general discussion on insect pests followed. Several vases of perennials from the college garden were arranged on the tables and H. E. Downer staged a display of Senecio clindrum. H. E. D.

The Late Mrs. Charles Wrege.

Mrs. Charles Wrege, for the past 35 years associated with her husband in the florist business at 21 Roosevelt avenue, Jersey City, N. J., died at Newfoundland, N. J., September 3. Her death resulted from an accident. She and her husband were spending a short vacation at a farm house. Mrs. Wrege volunteered to help her hostess wash the breakfast dishes. While moving about the kitchen she slipped or stubbed her toe, and plunged down the basement stairs; her skull was fractured and she died, without regaining consciousness, in less than two hours.

Mrs. Wrege was born in Germany 66 years ago and came to this country when 15 years old. Soon after, she married Mr. Wrege. They started in the florist business on Henderson street, Jersey City, removing later to the present location. She was a typical German wife and mother. Kind, industrious and courteous to all, in the various relations of life, she was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. Her sudden death was a great shock to her husband, who is 77 years old, and other members of her family, a daughter, Mary and a son, George. Her funeral was held September 6, services being conducted by Rev. C. E. Peusgen, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, where she had been an attendant. There were many fine floral tributes. A. F. F.

PADUCAH, KY.—John Van Aart, well-known florist of this city, has returned from a visit with relatives in Holland.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—William P. Pierce, in addition to a new greenhouse, is erecting an office building on Elm street.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—The downtown store of the Rosemont Gardens is undergoing extensive operations which will be completed about October 1.

LENEX, MASS.—Mrs. Heeremans, wife of Frederick Heeremans, died here September 4. Besides her husband, Mrs. Heeremans is survived by two children.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—The fall show of the North Shore Horticultural Society will be held here early in November. Copies of the preliminary schedule may be had upon application to P. Back, chairman and secretary, Lake Forest.

CHRYSANthemum growers say fine blooms will not be as plentiful as usual this fall because of the injury to many plants caused by the severe summer heat.

Personal.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., celebrated the sixty-ninth anniversary of his birthday, September 11.

Nitrate Prices Soar.

The German sailing ship, Indra, which sailed from a Chilean port to Dunkirk, France, in 1914, with a cargo of nitrate valued at $125,000, was compelled to head for New York upon learning that war had been declared. When the vessel began to discharge her cargo in that port, July 17, the nitrate ad advanced in value to $1,000,000 due to the demands for the chemical for the manufacture of explosives during the past two years.

THE Chicago postal authorities have ruled against admitting liquid insecticides to the mails.

CARNATION plants in many sections are quite small this year and had to be doubled and in some cases trebled in benching.

Pexto Employes' Annual Outing.

That the employes of the Southington plant of The Peck, Stow & Wilcox Company can do more than make good tools was demonstrated at the third annual outing of the company which was recently held at Lake Compounce, Conn. They showed that they could play baseball, put the shot, do the broad jump, dance and eat pie with remarkable facility. There were 650 employes at the outing. Special cars took them from Southington to Lake Compounce, and after a short parade the programme of sports was started.

Geraniums Diseased.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am enclosing you some samples of geranium foliage and wish you would advise me as to the trouble and remedy. We placed some of the plants in new soil last spring but that did not seem to help.

Maine.

A. J. L.

The inquirer does not state under what conditions these plants have been grown, whether pot or bench grown or under any other method. I should judge by the appearance of diseased leaves sent as sample that there is something wrong with the soil, or if pot grown and standing on coal ashes, the ashes throw off some gases that affect the leaves, or maybe the plants are being grown under close conditions and are not receiving a free circulation of air among the plants.

Dahlia Show in New York.

Preparations are well in hand for the forthcoming dahlia show, to be held by the American Dahlia Society in conjunction with the American Institute of the City of New York, at the Engineering Building, 25-33 West 39th street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, New York. The show will be opened Tuesday, September 26, continuing over Wednesday and Thursday, and as the schedule of the American Institute is a lengthy one, and is amplified by the special prizes of the American Dahlia Society, keen competition from a wide section of the country around New York is expected. Silverware and medals are offered by the A. D. S., while money exclusively is offered by the American Institute, the total prizes running to over $460.

Every section of the dahlia is catered to and there are three divisions in the schedule for commercial growers, professional gardeners and amateurs, each being protected in their own division. Admission to the show will be free and it is hoped that with the present favorable weather, cooler nights and showers, such a dahlia show as New York has not seen before will be staged.

Entries should be directed to William A. Eagleson, secretary of the American Institute, whose office is at 322 West 23rd street, New York, but all information relating to the dahlia society, its work, membership and publications should be addressed to J. Harrison Dick, 1426 73d street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

National Association of Gardeners.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

An executive meeting of the trustees and directors of the National Association of Gardeners was held at the Murray Hill hotel, New York, September 7, President W. N. Craig in the chair. A number of important matters came before the meeting, besides the usual routine business, which were all favorably disposed of. Letters were received from Vice-President Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Director Thomas W. Head, of Lake Forest, Ill., both reporting a constantly increasing interest among the gardeners of the middle west and west towards the national association and recommending that the organization's annual convention be held in some western city in the not distant future.

The action of the bureau of standards, of the board of estimate of the City of New York, recommending a higher scale of salaries for the gardeners employed by the city park department, was officially brought to the attention of the meeting. A resolution was adopted endorsing the board of estimate's action and calling for the support of the mayor and park commissioner of the City of New York towards securing the adoption of the measure when the 1917 budget comes up for consideration.

The recent discussion in some of the New York daily papers on the poor compensation gardeners receive in some of the public institutions was also brought to the attention of the meeting. While the existing conditions were discussed and severely condemned, as the matter was not officially before the meeting however, no recommendations were made.

It was decided to offer the association's silver medal for competition to all horticultural societies or gardeners clubs who desire to accept the offer. The terms of competition (to be for 1917) are left to the local societies as to whether it should be for one of its shows or for monthly competition, the only restriction being that the competitor must be a member of the National Association of Gardeners.

The plan of the national co-operative committee to provide essays for the monthly meetings of the local horticultural societies, which it has done during the past year, was approved, and it was decided to continue to supply these essays to about 50 societies throughout the country that applied for them.

The appointment of John Canning, of Ardsley, N. Y., as director was announced, to fill the unexpired term of James MacMachan, deceased, whose term expires January 1, 1919.

It was voted to hold the next annual convention during the early part of December at Washington, D. C. For the 1917 convention Chicago was voted as the choice of the meeting. Pittsburgh was also favorably discussed as the 1918 meeting place.

Following the adjournment of the meeting some of the members coming from a distance visited the estate of Adolph Lewisohn, Heatherdell Farm, Ardsley, N. Y., over which John Canning presides as superintendent; and later proceeded to "Greystone," Yonkers, N. Y., the estate of Samuel Untermyer, where more than a million dollars is being expended in improvements and more than 400 men are reported to be at present employed in the development work.

SUPPLY GOOD AND MARKET ACTIVE.

The market has been quite active the past week and stock has been about equal to the demand. Asters so far have not been up to the standard as to quality, but good stock should arrive from now on as several good rains fell lately. Roses of all kinds have been plentiful, especially long American Beauties. The demand is principally for medium and short grade stock. Gladioli are arriving much better now and dahlias are at last making an appearance. Larkspurs, snapdragons, swainsonas, tritomas, Jap lilies and marigolds are part of the daily offerings. Eastern lilies and lily of the valley are short of the demand. There are no sweet peas now. Orchids are also scarce. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. The supply business is good as most retailers realize the war is still going on in Europe and stock will not be overplentiful this year, so early buying is the rule.

NOTES.

In a letter from Geo. W. Smith at Cody, Wyoming, he says everything is lovely; he is having the time of his life, as is also his son, Don. Mrs. Smith is feeling fine and outside of the inconveniences of oil lamps, hauling water from the spring and building wood fires to heat and cook, she is enjoying the rough life of their mountain camp.

FAIR DEMAND BUT STOCK SCARCE.

Meager stock continues to embarrass florists. Gladioli, which have been the one real mainstay for weeks, although below average quality, are now near the windup. The dearth is being relieved in some degree by late asters. Following the rains, they have done much better than was promised a fortnight or more ago. The prices are 50 cents, 75 cents and $1 per dozen. Carnation cuttings are increasing slowly in volume, but the blooms and stems are not very well developed. About the best price realized is 50 cents per dozen. The carnation crop as a whole is not promising at this stage. Chrysanthemums are appearing in greater numbers, being confined mostly to yellow varieties, and selling at $3 a dozen. Aside from a fair run of funeral business, trade is rather quiet.

NOTES.

Floral displays at the Ohio state fair, which are usually very extensive, were cut down this year, partly through lack of flowers and to some extent by the retrenchment policy of the management in reducing the amounts of the premiums. The Livingston Seed Company took first on table decorations, the flowers used being Sunburst roses and deep blue larkspur, tied with yellow ribbons. The award was $50, as against $80 last year. The second premium went to the Hardesty Floral Company of this city. J.

CLUB MEETING.

Two salesmen from Philadelphia, Stephen Green, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and Robert Shoch, of M. Rice & Co., greatly enlivened the September meeting of the florists' club with recitals of trade conditions, special observations, and suggestions they had gathered in the course of their travels. The meeting was held at the establishment of Fred A. Danker, 744 Central avenue, and was attended by 27 of the members and guests. The two salesmen happened to meet in Albany on the same day and readily accepted invitations to attend the meeting. Both reported that in their travels they had found flowers scarce and prices high. Robert Shoch had been on the road since July 5 and in the interval had visited cities from Canada to New Orleans. Stephen Green had been traveling in Canada and in New York state. The former said that in the south this summer the rainy weather had affected the flower crop adversely. Mr. Green described conditions in Buffalo on one of the days that he was there. He said that for every box of cut flowers received at the express office in that city there were 15 retailers ready to take it. Both men described the scarcity of flowers as a general condition in the localities they had visited. Mr. Green reported that at Akron, Ohio, the common council had passed an ordinance closing florists' establishments on Sunday. Orders for funeral work taken may be filled by the dealers who, however, must work behind closed doors. Mr. Green said the ordinance had many good features and that it ought to work well, particularly in the smaller places. Akron retailers, he said, were disposed to speak well of the change in that it proved beneficial both to themselves and to their help. Mr. Shoch spoke at length and interestingly of the development of the decorative business in Philadelphia. Perhaps in no other city in the country is so much money spent for floral decorations. Both visitors reported the outlook for business during the fall and winter of 1916-17 as excellent.

On the clambake held August 19 Fred A. Danker, treasurer, reported: tickets sold, 182; receipts, $305.20; disbursements, $261.13; on hand, $44.07, which was turned into the club treasury. A vote of thanks was extended by the club to the entertainment committee and Fred Henkes for their labors in making the bake a success. Stephen Green proposed the name of Robert Shoch as a member of the club and the same will be voted upon at the October meeting. Edward P. Tracey asked that his paper on the retail flower business in Albany be laid over to the next meeting, which request was granted. After the meeting adjourned refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed under the direction of the host.

GOOD STOCK IS SCARCE.

Cut flowers in all of the seasonable varieties are scarce. Asters have been very limited in supply, gladioli are only fair and carnations have been out of the running altogether. Roses are very good, however, considering the season, especially Ophelia and My Maryland. A few Golden Glow chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive, but there is little demand for them. Business has been picking up since September 1 and all indications point to a good fall trade. Boston ferns are beginning to meet with a fair demand.

NOTES.

Salter Bros. attract much attention to their window with a clever display of pools and rockeries arranged with gazing globes and garden accessories.

James Bates and wife of Oakfield called on friends here last week. Mr. Bates reports business good during the summer months.

C. L. Walker and wife of Belmont, N. Y., returning from a camping trip to Lake George, were recent visitors.

Harry P. Neun has given up the stand in the Hotel Rochester.

The Horticultural Society of New York, in co-operation with the New York Botanical Garden, will hold a dahlia exhibition Saturday and Sunday, September 23-24, in the museum building, New York Botanical Garden. The prizes for this exhibition are offered by the New York Botanical Garden from the income of the William R. Sands fund. The exhibition will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. on Saturday, and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Sunday. It is hoped that all interested in this popular flower will make entries and help to make the exhibition large and attractive. Schedules are now ready for distribution and will be sent upon application to the secretary, George V. Nash, the Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York City.

FAIR TRADE DESPITE WARM WEATHER.

Business has been fairly good considering the warm weather we had the early part of the week. Roses and carnations are coming more plentiful, but there is no over supply. Most all the short roses are sold very cheap as they develop too fast this warm weather and must be disposed of at once. American Beauties are more plentiful, but clean up every day. Many long stems are arriving and do not sell as readily as the short stems and are often disposed of at low prices that none will be held over. The first dahlias of the season arrived last week and are very fine, but do not ship well on account of the warm weather. We are glad to see the dahlias as asters and gladioli are almost a failure, so they fill in very nicely. The late crop of asters may come in, but the growers report a short crop. The ones received at present are very good. Lilies are more plentiful, but seem to clean up each day. Plumous bunches are not overly plentiful, but still enough to go around. Smilax has been very good if we could only get more of it.

NOTES.

All the retail stores have finished cleaning and painting and are looking fine to welcome the fall business, which promises to be very good. Geo. Wessenauer, of Sewickley, has made several changes in his conservatory, which are very noticeable.

Peter Hopman, of New Galilee, Pa., has some fine looking rose plants and expects to have a fine lot of roses this year. He is especially strong on Ophelia. His chrysanthemums are looking fine. The McCallum Co. handles all his cut.

Edw. McCallum and family motored to Bedford September 10, returning by way of Altoona and Johnstown.

G. P. Weaklen, of East End, is busy looking after several large weddings this week.

Miss E. B. Maxwell has returned from her vacation.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Charles L. Seybold, formerly in charge of Carroll park and for several years past in charge of the park system of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is being prominently mentioned for general superintendent of parks here.

SWEET PEA SEED

SOME NEW AND VERY FINE SPENCER VARIETIES

Rose Queen. Color beautiful shade of pink, produces extra long stems and usually four flowers per stem.

One of the most popular varieties on the market.

Prices: Strictly greenhouse seed, $5.00 per oz., $15.00 per ¼ lb., $50.00 per lb.

Fordhook Pink. This is a distinct shade of pink suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers are large size, exquisitely waved, produced in threes and fours on long stems. Per ¼ lb. $4.00, $15.00 per lb.

Fordhook Rose. Flowers of largest size, usually borne in threes and fours. A charming shade of rosy carmine. $1.50 per oz., $4.50 per ¼ lb., $18.00 per lb.

Yarrowa. Flowers exquisitely waved and of large size. Color, bright rose pink with lighter wings. $1.00 per oz., $3.50 per ¼ lb., $12.00 per lb.

WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING VARIETIES

Bicolor

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID. Well-known Blanche Ferry color, of large, well formed flower.

Price, ½ oz., 50c, 1 oz. 75c, 4 ozs. $2.50, 1 lb. $9.00.

Shell Pink

MRS. A. A. SKACH. No doubt this variety was mostly grown in the past three years. Many growers have planted several greenhouses to this variety on account of their beautiful selling color, which improves the longer it is out on plants.

Price, 1 oz. $1.00, 4 ozs. $3.50, 1 lb. $12.00.

MRS. JOSEPH MANDA. A shade lighter, of curly flower, on extra long stem.

Price, 1 oz. $1.25, 4 ozs. $4.00, 1 lb. $14.00.

MORNING STAR. Light pink, larger flower, longer stems than both preceding, very strong and free bloomer.

Price, 1 oz. $4.00, 4 ozs. $12.00, 1 lb. $40.00.

DOLANSKY ORCHID. Light shell pink. Price, 1 oz. $1.25, 4 ozs. $4.00, 1 lb. $14.00.

White and Blush.

WHITE ORCHID. Grown by thousands of florists for years. It is of the dwarfier habit.

Price, 1 oz. $1.00, 4 ozs. $3.50, 1 lb. $12.00.

BRIDAL VEIL. More frilled and pure white.

Price, 1 oz. $1.75.

MRS. M. SPANOLIN. Of purest white, during bright weather, coming with slightly pink on the tips, fine curly flower on long stems.

Price, 1 oz. $1.25, 4 ozs. $4.00, 1 lb. $14.00.

VENUS. The ground is white, around the edges pink blushed. One of the grandest flowers of this type and the best liked among the florists.

Price, 1 oz. $1.50, 4 ozs. $5.00, 1 lb. $15.00.

Lavender, Blue and Maroon.

LAVENDER ORCHID. Lavender pink of largest size. A well-known old timer.

Price, 1 oz. $1.00, 4 ozs. $3.50, 1 lb. $12.00.

NUBIAN ORCHID. Dark maroon blue, selfs, nearly 90 per cent fixed.

Price, 1 oz. $4.00, 4 ozs. $12.00.

LAVENDER NORA. No doubt the finest lavender in all the Sweet Pea family, and well liked by every florist.

LAVENDER QUEEN. Very large, of good lavender color.

Price, 1 oz. 50c, 4 ozs. $1.75, 1 lb. $6.00.

Rose, Red and Orange

ORCHID BEAUTY. Dark rose, blushed with orange, very large flower, and the best commercial seller in this color.

Price, 1 oz. 75c, 4 ozs. $2.50, 1 lb. $9.00.

Many other varieties. Send for complete list.

Choice Shipping Roses

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade.

NEW BEAUTIES--Very Fine Flowers--Best In This Market. Good Shipping Stock.

Rhea Reid—Best red rose.

Mrs. Russell—Best pink rose.

Sunburst—Best yellow rose.

Double White Killarney—Best white rose.

Ophelia and Shawyer—Are also two good pink roses for summer use.

These in addition to the regular varieties of Roses we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

TRADE IMPROVES AFTER VERY QUIET WEEK.

Business was very quiet last week and outside of the shipping trade, which was not as good as usual, there was practically nothing doing to speak of. Most of the dealers report that their sales fell off considerably and that last week was the poorest seven days' business that they have experienced for some time. Business the opening of this week was a great deal better, but there is plenty of stock in almost all lines, with one or two exceptions, to go around. Orchids are very scarce and have advanced considerably in price, with very little stock available. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful at this writing, but last week there was plenty on hand to fill all orders, which was not due so much to the increased supply as it was to the falling off in the demand. Roses of all kinds are in large supply and are reaching the market in splendid condition. American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are moving nicely at good prices and seem to clean up well each day, especially in the longer stemmed grades. Some fine

Milady, Ophelia, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Killarney, Double White Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Champ Weiland, Lady Alice Stanley, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and Francis Scott Key are to be had in quantity and there is also a fairly good supply of stock in the other varieties grown for this market not mentioned here, including some of the newer roses which the dealers have not yet started to advertise. The miniature roses, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar, Baby Doll and Fireflame, are included in the offerings. Lilies are in better supply and are in good demand. Gladioli are still reaching the market in large quantities and the same holds good for asters and other miscellaneous outdoor stock. Carnations are arriving in larger numbers and so are chrysanthemums, but so far the receipts consist almost exclusively of the early yellow varieties. Green goods of all kinds are in adequate supply and several of the dealers are now accepting orders for wild smilax for delivery on two days' notice. The supply houses are having a big call for stock and report a substantial increase over the sales for September so far compared with the same period of last year.

PARK EXAMINATION FOR FLORISTS.

The civil service board of the West Chicago park commissioners will hold an examination at the Garfield park pavilion, October 3, 1916, at 9:00 a. m., for the position of florist, class G, rank 2, open to men over 21 years of age, regardless of residence. The original entrance pay is $80-$90 per month. The duties of the florist are general work in the conservatory and propagating house and in the outdoor gardens throughout the park system. Subjects of the examination are as follows: Special subject, an oral and practical test in exhibition greenhouse work and written questions on the care and propagation of plants and general greenhouse operations, weight of 6; experience, weight of 3; physical, weight of 1. Applications must be filed in the office of the civil service board in Union park, before 5:00 p. m. October 2, 1916. Blanks may be obtained at the office of the board in Union park or at the West park playgrounds.

NOTES.

F. Kottrasch, proprietor and A. Kott-rasch, manager of the Deerfield Nurseries, Deerfield, have rented the F. F. Scheel greenhouses at Shermerville and have already taken possession. The Scheel range consists of five houses, 27x200 feet, and is devoted principally to carnations and chrysanthemums. The Kottrasch Brothers will continue to operate the old place upon which they have built up quite a reputation as gardenia growers. They have a new strain of winter flowering sweet peas of the ruffled type that they will show at some of the fall shows, and those who have had the pleasure of inspecting them last year are of the opinion that they are especially worthy of attention.

Percy Jones, Inc., is receiving daily shipments of large fancy chrysanthemums and also some very fine sweet peas for this season of the year. The writer in looking over a list of the members of this city's foremost business organizations finds that the name of H. Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc., appears in a great many cases, including that of the Chicago Association of Commerce and also the Illinois Athletic Club. It may also interest the trade to know that Luke Schrer, one of Mr. Van Gelder's salesmen, and whose ability as a runner is well known, especially to those who have attended the club picnics, is one of the I. A. C.'s crack quarter-milers.

W. N. Rudd and wife have returned from Norfolk, Va., where they attended the annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents and report an enjoyable holiday. Mr. Rudd was elected vice-president of the association. Miss Phyllis Rudd has returned from Colorado, where she has been spending the summer.

The funeral of Benjamin Sammons, vice-president of the Corn Exchange National bank, who died last week, probably brought out more high grade flowers than have been seen at any similar event in this city, most of the prominent retailers being represented in the work.

Homer Lange, son of August Lange, now employed at the store, played in the golf tournament of the Association of Commerce at Muskegon, Mich., September 9, making a good record.

Mrs. P. J. Foley and her father-in-law, who were in the wreck of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad last week, enroute to Montana, escaped injury.

Vaughan's Seed Store is distributing a carload of French bulbs this week. Chinese narcissus (Joss Lilies) are moving freely.

The employees of the George Wittbold Co.'s establishment at Lake View and the greenhouses at Edgebrook held a picnic at the latter place last Sunday, September 10, and it is needless to add that everyone present had a most enjoyable time. Refreshments and luncheon were served and the principal event on the programme was the baseball game between the Lakeview team and the Edgebrook nine, which was lost to the city team in the ninth inning by a close and exciting score of 9 to 6, which only partly wipes out the terrible trimming the greenhouse boys gave them last year when they won the game by a score of 30 to 1. Allie Zech acted as scorekeeper and Fred Ottenbacher and Michael Freres, of the Zech & Mann force, were present to see that he was protected sufficiently in case of any dispute, but fortunately the game was not marred by any wrangling, even though both teams were set on winning the contest. Ed Armstrong captained the city team and Bill Schuett the Edgebrook aggregation, and considering that neither team had much practice they played like big leaguers, and it was a contest worth going miles to see. The following was presented to the umpire before the game, which insured a square deal to all: Should you arouse the ire of either team in giving a blind man's decision it has been moved and seconded by all the players to assassinate and bury you on the spot and place the empty refreshment kegs on your grave as a monument and warning to your successor. The umpire heeded the warning. "Nuff sed."

A. Henderson & Co. have engaged Joe Marks to represent them in northern and eastern territory, and he will be in their employ on and after September 16. Mr. Marks is well and favorably known to the trade and will give a good account of himself in his new position. Guy Reyburn, one of the members of A. Henderson & Co., will continue to represent his house in the west and south, and Mr. Henderson will be on the job as usual at headquarters, which is a sufficient guarantee that all orders entrusted to their care will receive the same careful and prompt attention as in the past.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report an unusually good season with the sales during the month of August, showing an increase of more than $1,000 over the same period of 1915. This firm is handling a large regular supply of choice American Beauty roses, which are in good demand and clean up completely every day.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are pleasing their trade with a fine grade of roses, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell, which they are cutting in quantity. Mr. Pyfer reports the arrival this week of a large importation of Dutch and French bulbs at the Pyfer & Olsem establishment at Wilmette.

A. T. Hey is now one of the A. L. Randall Co.'s traveling representatives. His connection with this concern will not interfere with the A. T. Hey Floral Co.'s business at Maywood, which is going along as usual and is in charge of competent help.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses, and Heaton Nichols, of Joliet, motored here September 7, returning home the same evening.

Erne & Klingel are handling a large supply of fancy asters which compare most favorably in quality with the best stock that has been offered in this market this season.

Ed Vilter is back from a two weeks' vacation in Michigan and is again attending to his duties as shipping clerk at Zech & Mann's establishment.

Chas. W. McKellar says that with the exception of a few Cattleya Harrisoni, he has nothing to offer in orchids, which are very scarce.

Mrs. John J. Richter, with J. J. Leborius, Duluth, Minn., is spending her vacation with relatives at Highland Park.

George Collins, superintendent of Henry Smith's greenhouses at Grand Rapids, Mich., was here on a visit this week.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., is calling on the eastern trade.

Remember that we are headquarters for American Beauty roses and can supply you with what you need all through the season at reasonable market prices.

Harry Breitmeyer and Wayne McLaughlin and wives, of Detroit, Mich., spent several days here last week, when most of their time was spent in visiting the leading retail stores and greenhouse establishments in this vicinity. Mr. Breitmeyer is general manager of John Breitmeyer's Sons and Mr. McLaughlin is associated with him in business. They are both promising young fellows and much more will be heard of them and their concern in the near future.

Wietor Bros. are looking forward to a brisk fall season and are starting to cut a fine supply of roses, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney and Sunburst. Their chrysanthemums and pompons are in splendid condition, and while they have not started to cut any of either yet, they will have their usual large supply to offer this season and will maintain their reputation as the largest chrysanthemum growers in the west.

The White House Florist, 140 South Wabash avenue, has been featuring some unusually fine chrysanthemums the past few weeks, which have been in good demand at retail, and were some of the finest flowers seen so far this season. Mrs. Wm. Kotsonis is again on duty at this store after spending a delightful vacation with relatives at Mt. Union, near Alliance, O.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner have a fine display of baskets and other supplies at their store, which is attracting the attention of the city buyers and has resulted in many sales. Mrs. Thos. Fogarty was a welcome visitor at this

William Graham, manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., wife and daughter, will spend their vacation at Philadelphia, Pa., leaving some time next month. They will remain long enough to attend the marriage of their son and brother Hugh to Miss Catherine Haire, Tuesday, October 24.

Ed Eisner is now in the employ of Schiller the Florist and does the buying in the market for the three stores of this concern. After he is through with the market he helps out Reinhold Schiller at the downtown establishment.

The state fair opens at Springfield September 15. J. J. McComb, 3327 Potomac avenue, Chicago, is superintendent of horticulture and John W. Shaw, Harrisburg, Ill., is superintendent of floriculture.

W. H. Johnson, of Crookston, Minn., was in the city this week buying supplies for the new store that he will open at 7 South Sixth street, Minneapolis, Minn., September 16, under the firm name of Johnson & Co.

Allen Humanson is calling on the trade in Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky for the Hilmer V. Swenson Company, dealers in special advertising service for retail florists.

Ed. Kalisch, of St. Louis, Mo., returned home Saturday, September 9, after spending several days here on pleasure and business.

The A. L. Randall Company's new catalogue, "Modern Flower Shops," is ready for distribution. It is well illustrated and covers store fixtures pretty thoroughly with a complete write-up of Paul C. Schultz's magnificent Randall equipped establishment at Vincennes, Ind. The catalogue is free and will be mailed to anyone upon request. Casimer Guya, of the cut flower department, is back from a pleasant two weeks' visit at Mayfair.

Emil Reichling says that eight houses of Richmond and seven houses of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which have been resting at the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, will be started off for Christmas this week. Miss Marguerite Kane McNulty, who keeps the Reinberg books, is back from a delightful lake trip to Mackinac Island and Buffalo, N. Y.

J. A. Budlong is handling an increased supply of roses this season, which, together with their usual large supply of stock from their own range, will enable them to take better care of their customers than ever in the future. Their list of roses comprises a great many of the newer varieties, besides all the old favorite standard sorts.

T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, will leave Friday, September 15, for the east, where he will stop at all the principal cities, particularly Philadelphia, Boston, New York and Buffalo. He is well known in the east and is anxious to meet all of his old friends.

The new store of the Chicago Florist at 35 East Adams street will present a much better appearance as soon as the finishing touches are added and will compare favorably with other loop stores. The proprietors are well pleased with business so far and are all ready to handle a big fall business.

Miss Lewis and Mrs. Krieger, with Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, have returned from their vacations and are again on duty. Miss Lewis visited in Colorado and Mrs. Krieger in Wisconsin and both report having had a most delightful time.

Andrew Chronis reports an improvement in the trade at the Alpha Floral Co.'s South Wabash avenue store this week starting with Saturday, September 9, when the sales showed a marked increase and have been good ever since.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in roses of all kinds and report a brisk demand for same. The shipping demand continues to be brisk at this house and the city trade is showing a big improvement this week.

Louis Wittbold says that the George Wittbold Co. has bought seven of the M. Weiland greenhouses, 25x200 feet, at Evanston and will remove them to Edgebrook, where their other greenhouses are located.

Carl Erickson, of Princeton, has placed an order with the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Company for a new palm house, 32x42 feet, and two greenhouses, one 32x100, and another, 38x100 feet.

Miss Esther Candrian and Ed Ahles, of the A. L. Randall Co., were married Wednesday, September 6, and are now making their home at 1315 Cornelia avenue.

Miss Lena McCauley, secretary of the Horticultural Society, will talk on the "Garden Beautiful" before the Englewood Culture Club, September 15.

W. J. Barnes, well-known retail florist of Kansas City, Mo., is here on a business trip, which is his first visit to this city since 1881.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg, who has been in the east since she attended the Houston convention, returned home this week.

August Poehlmann was elected president and treasurer of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. at a meeting held last week and Adolph Poehlmann, vice-president and secretary. John Poehlmann, Jr., was elected a member of the board of directors. This firm is cutting a splendid supply of American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which are in splendid demand. Otto W. Frese says that stock in general has improved wonderfully in quality, especially the roses, since the cooler weather set in. Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. McGee, 5327 Ellis avenue, have the sympathy of the trade in the loss of their nine-year-old son, Alan James McGee, whose death occurred from injuries sustained Saturday, September 9, when his clothes caught fire from a gasoline explosion and he was severely burned about the body, dying shortly afterwards. The funeral was held Tuesday from the Presbyterian church, with interment at Oakwoods cemetery.

Julius Keller's wife and twelve-year-old son were found dead at their home in Hubbard Woods, Tuesday, September 12, with every gas jet in the house wide open. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in Mrs. Keller's case and accidental death in that of the boy. Mr. Keller was a landscape gardener and has been missing since the tragedy.

The Briggs Floral Co. is enjoying a splendid season at both of its stores, 228 West Madison street and 801 Sheridan road. D. Papatony, the proprietor, pays strict attention to business and is ably assisted by Steve Notes, who looks after the north side establishment.

John Michelson, of the E. C. Amling Co., is on an eastern business trip which will include a visit to several of the large violet growing establishments at Rhinebeck, N. Y.

L. P. Harley, of Hartford, Mich., manufacturer of decorative foliage and natural prepared foliage, called on the trade here this week.

Chicago Florists' Club.

There was a good attendance at the September meeting of the florists' club, held at the Morrison hotel on the 7th inst., President Henderson in the chair. This was the first gathering after the summer recess, meetings having been suspended during July and August. In response to a request from the local committee, having in charge arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors during the convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, to be held at the LaSalle hotel, this city, September 26-29, President Henderson appointed Fred Lautenschlager, E. F. Kurowski and P. J. Foley to co-operate with that body. Two new names were placed in nomination for membership, Emil Schnake and Martin Amling, Maywood, and Fred Longren was reinstated.

The feature of the meeting was a paper by Allie Zech on how to overcome the low prices of department stores in the sale of cut flowers. Mr. Zech's remarks, which will be found elsewhere in this issue, produced an interesting discussion in which John Michelson, Reinhold Schiller, George Asmus, Guy W. French, Peter Pearson, A. Henderson, August Jurgens and others participated.

Mr. Michelson said the main cause of low prices in this market was the enormous supplies coming to this central market from all points in times of plenty, and strongly urged the growers to withhold all low grade stock at such times, sending only the choicest to market, poor flowers not paying for packing and shipping when there is a glut.

Mr. Asmus thought a good deal could be done in the way of improving the quality of the stock and work offered, giving the customer what he demands in quality and service, regulating the prices to make a fair profit. He also urged the great value of flower shows in the education of the public to the proper use of flowers and to an appreciation of quality.

Messrs. French and Pearson advocated thorough advertising of specialties by their growers, believing this course would increase the demand of the legitimate retail florist and the public.

Mr. Henderson said the department stores could hardly be blamed for their low-priced flower sales and that similar action of the management of these institutions in other lines was beneficial to the legitimate dealers.

A. Herrington of Madison, N. J., was a welcome visitor and made a short address on the Pittsburgh flower show, to be held in that city next June under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny County. Mr. Herrington is manager of the show and requested the co-operation of club members, distributing copies of the preliminary schedule.

Reinhold Schiller has undertaken to provide a speaker on florists' advertising for the next meeting.

Milwaukee.

QUALITY OF STOCK SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

With very favorable growing weather, for the days are warm and the nights cool, the supply of indoor stock, especially roses, has increased enough so that there is no shortage to speak of any more. With a shower now and then, the late asters are showing a marked improvement in quality, but in comparison with other seasons, they are not what they might be; there are more than enough poor ones coming in. All kinds of lilies, as well as green goods, are holding their own. The supply of new carnations is still very limited, and the same can be said of chrysanthemums.

NOTES.

The florists' club meeting September 7 was well attended and enjoyed by most present as it was full of ginger and not, as in the past, a dull affair. Much agitation regarding the state fair, which takes place this week, was in evidence, and we hope the results will be satisfactory. John Ruppel, who conducts a retail store at North avenue and 35th street, was elected a member.

The Cudahy Floral Co. is just coming in with its first crop of American Beauties. This is about the only firm in the near vicinity of this city who still grow American Beauties on a large scale. Their supply of Ophelia and Cecile Brunner roses is also increasing day by day.

John Bourgaize, of Racine, Wis., who in the past was a buyer and frequent visitor in this market, committed suicide September 8, by hanging, in his greenhouse. He was 60 years old. Up to this time it could not be learned what induced him to do the rash act.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. cut their first carnations and October Frost chrysanthemums on September 11. They report the arrival of French bulbs, while the Dutch varieties, owing to decreased transportation facilities, are still on the way.

The Wauwatosa Floral Co. is consigning its first Golden Glow chrysanthemums to Holton & Hunkel Co. The latter firm is cutting a good daily supply of Pink and White Killarney, besides good Russells, Ward and Ophelia roses.

with the Gust Rusch & Co. This firm reports business good, cleaning up every day.

H. W. Koerner, the gladiolus and dahlia specialist of Wauwatosa, is again cutting quantities of gladioli of good quality these days.

Nic Zweifel and family returned September 6 from Cedar Lake, where they spent the best part of the summer. E. O.

TRADE SLIGHTLY ABOVE AVERAGE.

Moderate rains have at last broken the "dry spell" and greatly helped surviving outdoor stock, although much of the damage was beyond remedy. Business for August will probably be found slightly better than average for that month, which is not saying much for business at that, funeral work being the main item. Social affairs are picking up, and prospects are fair for a good autumn and winter season.

NOTES.

The improvements at Chas. P. Mueller's Main street store are making good progress. They include the extension of the store building 60 feet to the alley. This provides much additional workroom and storage space. Above this, and reached by stairs leading from the store, is a splendid conservatory, 25 feet wide, covered with an iron truss-framed roof glazed with ground glass. The heating for conservatory and store will be supplied by a new boiler set in the roomy basement. Large doors at rear will permit the auto delivery cars to enter the building for loading and shelter.

Mrs. Frank Cluff has returned from several weeks' vacation in the Rockies, her trip including Yellowstone park and other points of interest.

W. H. Culp & Co. are showing an interesting line of art flower bowls, holders and vases.

Chas. P. Mueller has added a line of canary birds and cages at his Douglas avenue store.

GOOD QUALITY STOCK IS SCARCE.

The supply of flowers of the highest grades is below the demand; quite a lot of inferior stock, but which like the "also rans," brings very little. Anything white goes out at once and the cry is for more; the man with a patch of Double White petunias could this season, have satisfied his heart's desire out of the profits—they are old-fashioned, but would have fitted in almost anywhere this year. Good asters are still scarce. Good inside stock is coming from a number of growers, but it hardly ever sees the refrigerator, there never being enough for the orders. Roses are improving in quality and several new growers are starting in each week. Very good American Beauties are seen and sell pretty well. Ophelia is still a leader, and Shawyer is also good. All white roses are portioned out on arrival. Gladioli have sold very well this season and still continue in demand. Easter lilies soared last week, getting up to $12.50, and even $15.00. It was said the warm weather of the week before brought all the crops in at once. They promise to be easier this week. The first Golden Glow chrysanthemums are in, later than usual. Dahlias are now to be had in limited quantities; the regular demand will open up next week and from then until frost, they will have their day and dominate the market. Lily of the valley and cattleyas are still scarce and are held for the elite. Cosmos is fine and a great help.

September 11.—The week opens with much heavier shipments, all lines of stock seeming to be much more plentiful, particularly roses, the growers apparently thinking to be able to dispose of their flowers on a market that has for so long been bare of so many other things. Asters are also much more plentiful, there being large shipments of greenhouse stock. Easter lilies, so scarce last week, are now to be had in quantity and the quality is fine.

NOTES.

Mr. Liggett, chief of the S. S. Penock-Meehan Co.'s plant department, says that a number of the florists of this city stand in their own light in almost throwing choice stock away or selling it at ridiculously low prices. Scarce and quick moving plants of this season, have been, Pandanus Veitchii and Ficus elastica; of the former well established plants in 6-inch pots will readily bring $1 each, yet some growers are satisfied to let them go at 50 cents. Ficuses that should bring 50 cents are sold as low as 25 to 35 cents, when the full prices are just as readily obtained. In these days of increasing cost of labor, and everything that enters in the carrying on of the business, it is hard to see why men with intelligence enough to grow good stock should not be able to realize its value. Better stiffen up the back bone a little, there is a cold, hard winter on the way.

John A. Rupert, of the H. A. Dreer force, reported a cessation of shipping when danger of the strike menaced, but now orders are going out by the carload to reach destinations before the cold weather sets in. Retail florists, particularly, are ordering ahead, seeming to anticipate a splendid season.

Dahlias are now a feature with the Leo Niessen Co.; but little stock is carried. Orders received one day are filled at the farm and delivered in original cases with the dew on the next morning. Choice American Beauties and other roses are also a feature.

The M. Rice Co. is moving into its new building and hopes to be housed from top floor to basement by September 25. This new structure is up to date in every respect and in its erection the firm has taken a great stride forward.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., 1129-1131 Arch street, 1129 Appleton street, and 113 North 12th street, cover a lot of ground and still the cry is for more room. Their last shipload of Japanese goods is wonderfully fine.

The types became unmanageable in last week's report of the club meeting. It should have read, nomination for treasurer, George Craig, and for secretary, David Rust and Fred Cowperthwaite.

Stuart Miller does not desire as yet to be counted in with the big fellows, except that his orders go out just the same. Good Easter lilies are a feature.

Pansy and cyclamen seed is selling at a lively rate over the H. F. Michell Co.'s counters. Great quantities of bulbs are also handled daily.

Edward Reid is strong on white roses, which have been very scarce. Good asters are also featured.

Guaranteed Two-Year-Old, Low Budded

BEEES' ROSES ARE AMAZ

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

MARKET LACKS GINGER.

The business of the past week was dull. Having made a poor start on Labor day, there was but little ginger in it throughout the week. A strike on the street car lines has now been dragging along for several days, but there has been no great inconvenience to business. Nearly everybody seems to be wanting higher pay. Even our modest New York contemporary wants more money. Excepting roses, which are more plentiful and are somewhat cheaper, all good stock is bringing good prices. Lilies hold up to $8 and $10 per 100, lily of the valley, $4 and $6, and asters, $2 to $4. Gladioli are not as plentiful as they were a few weeks ago and prices have stiffened, the best stock wholesaling at $2 per 100 and upward. It is yet warm weather for chrysanthemums and dahlias, but there is a movement in both, although the supply of chrysanthemums is very limited. So far as we have been able to observe, and judge from reports that have come in, the carnation crop, or a part of it, in this state and in New Jersey, will be late. Many plants were lost in the field and there has been considerable loss since planting. Many plants were small when taken up and all growers know the difficulty in coaxing along a small carnation plant. At this writing the number of growers who would buy good carnation plants is much larger than of those who have them to sell. We believe that some of the Long Island growers have good crops but we have heard of no surplus worthy of note. At several ranges recently visited, the chrysanthemums look promising, but we do not expect to see many in the market this month. The plant auctions have started, and from now on, plants will be coming to the front.

September 11.—The week opens with rather quiet business. American Beauties and the inferior stock of tea roses are much cheaper. Lilies and lily of the valley are firm. The orchid crop is beginning to arrive and prices are falling. Good asters sell well, but there is considerable rubbish in asters as well as some other stocks, that is practically unsalable.

NOTES.

At a time when a lot of men are striking, or threatening to strike, and when supposedly business men are uttering mournful wails about the "high cost" of everything and incidentally, trying to "soak" the public to make it up, it is interesting to find a man who is not complaining, but by enterprise and attention to business is making good. These were our thoughts a few mornings ago when we called on Robert MacNiff, president of the MacNiff Horticultural Company. We found a real artist at work on a sign 8x12 feet. He had finished a Dutch boy, life size, carrying a pan of tulips, which were painted in natural colors. In large letters was the following: "European powers have placed an embargo on bulbs and plants during the war. Holland must look to U. S. for the disposal of her products. You can buy the finest Holland grown bulbs and plants at less than production cost." This sign was placed on a blank wall at Greenwich and Vesey streets in full view of the elevated railway.

We are perfectly willing that our New York contemporary shall think that it is the leader of thought hereabouts, but we will not stand for it upsetting the calendar and turning back the wheels of time. It states, issue of September 9, that the dahlia show opens in this city, "Tuesday, September 15." Now, we know our calendar is a perfectly good one for it was sent us by Benjamin Hammond. It says that September 15 falls on Friday. We will add, that it has been generally understood that the dahlia show would open Tuesday, September 26, and continue to the 28th.

The strike of the street car employees has developed into a menace to business, and to life and property. The public does not seem to be greatly concerned over the merits of the controversy as neither the corporations nor the unions have come into it with clean hands. The public does, however, seriously object to the interference with its business. A good police force is all that is standing between the public and anarchy.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., Sixth avenue and 26th street, report steadily increasing business in bulbs and plants and feel encouraged over the outlook for their auction business, which started on September 12, and will continue as announced in another column. Miss Marie Kneudell, whose efficiency is well known, has charge of the office affairs.

At the wholesale store of Paul Meconi, Sixth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, we have recently noticed a fine variety of stock. He is now strong on orchids, gardenias and all the leading varieties of roses, such as Francis Scott Key, Russell and Ophelia. He has also good carnations, for the season, and a complete assortment of other stock.

In the forenoon of September 8, and up to 3 p. m., the temperature was up to 90 degrees. At 3 o'clock a thunderstorm, with a strong wind and a deluge of rain swept Manhattan and Brooklyn, and in five minutes the temperature was down to 77 degrees. The rain was very welcome as everything was drying up.

J. Jacobs, of the Marguerite Flower Co., 1192 Broadway, Brooklyn, who was recently operated on for appendicitis, is said to be doing well. He is in the Jewish hospital. During his illness, Max Zornow, a brother of his partner, is filling his place as buyer and manager for their several stores.

At the retail store called the "Blossom" which is on Livingstone street, Brooklyn, and conducted by Trepel & Bershad, we have recently noticed considerable activity for the season. Edward Lewis is the wide awake manager of this store, and the veteran Abe Hanig is buyer.

Edward C. Koenig, the retailer of 148 East 59th street, recently returned from an extended automobile trip through New England. He was ac-

Have you ever stopped to consider how much good display means to any article that is for sale? A bouquet of your flowers arranged as you know how to arrange them in one of our boxes would tempt anyone to come in and buy them. Give us a chance to prove this. We have the boxes; we will ship them upon receipt of your order; and you will thank us for the suggestion.

New York Florists' Club.

After a vacation of two months, this club renewed its activities on the night of September 11, in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building. There was a good attendance and much interest was manifested. Joseph A. Manda, the historian of the voyage from New York to New Orleans by steamer, and thence to Houston, gave an exhaustive description of the voyage, of the royal reception accorded the delegates by the New Orleans and Houston clubs, and many interesting details of the Houston convention. Secretary Young and J. R. Lewis also gave interesting talks on the convention. Votes of thanks were tendered both the Houston and New Orleans clubs for their handsome treatment of the New York delegates. The flower show committee, for the spring show, reported progress.

The meeting was noteworthy for the presence of many of the veteran members of the club; Patrick O'Mara, Charles Weathered, Frank Traendly, John B. Nugent, Charles H. Totty, Harry A. Bunyard and A. L. Miller were all there and enlivened the meeting by their sallies of wit and humor. A. L. Miller who, it will be recalled, is vice-president-elect of the S. A. F., was tendered a vote of thanks for his very liberal distribution of cigars and cooling refreshment.

President Weston appointed Patrick O'Mara, Frank Traendly and Walter F. Sheridan a committee to prepare resolutions on death of W. F. Kastling, and Chas. H. Totty, Peter Duff and Charles Knight a committee to prepare resolutions on death of Wm. Tricker.

Winifred Rolker, New York; C. Lowther, New York, and Henry Schmidt, North Bergen, N. J., were proposed for membership. John Canning, gardener for A. Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., exhibited Salvia farinacea, white and purple.

The house committee furnished refreshments.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

WINTER-TOP onion sets are scarce and have advanced in price.

HOWARD M. EARL, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., is making a California trip.

L. L. MAY, of St. Paul, Minn., has greatly improved in health since his return from Milwaukee, Wis.

ASTER seed specialists in New York state report the crop outlook unfavorable because of drought and insects.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Seed Co. has received 116 cases of bulbs from Rotterdam via S. S. Ryndam.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, September 13, were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $5.25 per 100 pounds.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has returned to the city from his country home, greatly improved in health.

VISITED CHICAGO: Roland Bolgiano, formerly of Baltimore, Md., now of Los Angeles, Calif., accompanied his daughter to Wellesley college.

A. J. BROWN, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., and J. Chas. McCullough, of Cincinnati, O., left Chicago September 9 for California.

GLADIOLUS growers generally report the bulb crop below usual sizes. It is thought that the crop of strictly first-sized bulbs will run one-third less than last year.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—John W. Graham, secretary and treasurer of the Philadelphia Lawn Mower Co., and brother of the president, Walter E. Graham, died September 6.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, who has just returned from a trip of inspection of the California flower seed farms, says that the conditions as he found them were an eye-opener to him.

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, September 11.—A. J. Brown, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and J. Chas. McCullough, of Cincinnati, O., arrived today. They were favorably impressed with seed growing conditions here.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are going into warehouses very fast with probably 25 per cent. already housed. The condition of the sets is excellent. Prices are unsettled but advancing. Whites and reds are scarce.

CELERY SEED for use in the arts has recently advanced 10 cents per pound, the present price being 26 to 30 cents. Last year celery seed of this character went to 45 cents a pound and some of the trade, at least, believe it will reach if not pass that figure before the new crop becomes available.

W. H. CROSSLAND, for the past 19 years associated with Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., is now with the Courteen Seed Co., of Milwaukee, Wis.

French Bulb Prospects for 1917.

Toulon, August 25.—Next season's conditions are difficult to foresee. For one thing, from those growers who have not yet been mobilized a certain number will be called under a revision of the lists. These will abandon their growing operations and no one can predict the result. On the other hand, even if these operations are continued with the same quota of growers under present conditions the result continues doubtful. All bulbs of large size were short this season and orders have been completed in full only by resorting to the use of stock one centimeter smaller than usual. So even if the weather conditions prove favorable what crop can we expect in the face of such a famine of proper sized planting stock?

Dutch Bulbs.

The Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association of Haarlem, Holland, writes us as follows, August 24:

"Owing to the unfavorable weather during the month of June, the bulb crop has not reached the average and consequently the stock of saleable bulbs is not as large as during normal years. The size is now smaller and jumbo's are hardly to be had. It is true, the above is not only to be attributed to the bad weather, but also to the unprofitable prices of recent years. Further, living has become more expensive and consequently wages have risen, so that the growers were obliged to decrease the bulb acreage and increase that of vegetables. Notwithstanding the fact that the export of bulbs to England is prohibited, the surplus is much smaller than in previous years and even a shortage of good market sorts is possible. It is quite improbable that there will be surplus shipments on a large scale at low prices this season and fair-minded dealers in bulbs can not but rejoice at this fact."

New Jersey Seed Law.

The New Jersey seed law, effective November 1, 1916, contains the following paragraphs:

The provisions of this act concerning agricultural seeds shall not apply to lots of agricultural seeds which shall have affixed to the outside of the container of such seeds a written or printed label in the English language, in legible type or script, containing a statement specifying that such agricultural seed is "not clean seed" or that it is "not tested seed."

INTENT OF THE LAW.

In effect the law is purely regulatory, there being no prohibition as to the sale of any kind or quality of agricultural seeds. It is an attempt to place the sale of seeds on a basis of quality as expressed in terms of purity and germination. Other factors, such as appearance and price, are of extreme importance and must be considered in purchase, but these are matters not subject to regulatory measures. There is no relief from the individual responsibility that always existed, nor is there any assurance that crop loss can not occur because seeds are purchased under these conditions.

The law provides that agricultural seeds shall be labelled according to specifications stated, and holds the dealer responsible for the accuracy of such statements. This will enable the purchaser to inform himself as to what he is buying, and also will benefit the dealer who desires to sell high-grade seeds but who at the present time has to compete against low prices for low-grade seeds which carry no statement as to quality. Undoubtedly, the publicity which must be given to quality will keep many lots of seed off the market that now pass unquestioned.

Copies of the law and information regarding it may be had on application to John P. Helyar, State Seed Analyst, Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J.

Seed Importation Act Amended.

The seed importation act of August 24, 1912, prohibits the importation into the United States of those seeds subject to the act when they are adulterated or contain three per cent or more of weed seeds, or when clover and alfalfa seed contains more than approximately 90 seeds of dodder per pound. This act was amended August 11, 1916, by including the seed of ryegrass and vetch in addition to those seeds enumerated in the original act and by prohibiting the importation of seeds which contain less than 65 per cent of pure live seeds, except that the seed of Kentucky blue grass and the seed of Canada blue grass may be imported when it contains 50 per cent or more of pure live seed. The amendment fixing a minimum quality for imported seed is intended to keep out of the United States seed of low germination as well as seed containing large proportions of chaff, both of which have been imported in large quantities in recent years.

The regulations for the enforcement of the seed importation act published as Treasury Decisions No. 35363, May 6, 1915, and as service and regulatory announcements, bureau of plant industry, No. 2, May, 1915, are being revised to conform with these amendments, and it is expected that they will be promulgated to be in effect on and after November 1, 1916.

To All Florists Using French Bulbs:

Vaughan's Seed Store advertisements and catalogues offer these bulbs by stated measure and in regular cases. Others report seeing advertisements of this stock which do not give measurements of the bulbs.

Why not get samples of French Paper Whites and the like this season before you place orders?

Vaughan's prices, grading considered, will average over fifteen per cent lower than those of our competitors, because bought early by our own agent in France and paid for in cash or on short terms.

Our present price of $7.85 per 1000 for the largest size of Paper White Grandiflora now obtainable, proves this statement.

Advance contract orders booked by us for Paper Whites will be filled with the larger sizes.

Write for our delivered prices on Lily Bulbs. Vaughan's Formosum run larger in all grades than those of other dealers.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

An interesting feature in tomato forcing under glass is the experience of John Dodds, gardener to John Wanamaker, Philadelphia. Of several beds planted, one did much better than the others, although all received the same treatment. The reason was finally determined to Mr. Dodds' satisfaction that the advantage the more prolific bed had over the others was in a steam pipe, which ran the length of the bench next the glass; this being convenient the wire supporting the vines had been attached at the top to this pipe. In the more or less constant expansion and contraction of the pipe, the wire supports of the vines had been lightly shaken which had been sufficient to pollinize the flowers, and the vines thereby set much more fruit than those of the other beds. K.

Vegetable Growers' Convention.

With plans practically complete for the ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, which will be held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, September 26-29, all indications point to an interesting and well attended meeting of the organization. The programme will embrace four principal topics for discussion as follows: "Marketing Problems," "Better Seeds," "Greenhouse Problems" and "Extension Work for Vegetable Growers." A speaker of well-known reputation has been assigned by the programme committee to handle each topic. On Wednesday, the second day of the meeting, a tour of inspection will be made of some of the greenhouses and gardens on the north side of the city and on Thursday morning a visit will be paid to one of the large Chicago markets at a time when the distribution of vegetables is at its height. The convention will close Friday morning with the election of officers. The annual banquet will take place Friday evening at 6:00 o'clock.

Fall Army Worm Causing Damage.

The fall army worm, a hairless striped caterpillar about one and one-half inches in length, which attacks grass, corn, sorghum, kafir, millet and alfalfa is reported to be causing injury to crops in Oklahoma and Kansas, according to the United States department of agriculture. Spraying with standard insecticides, cultivating the ground wherever possible or when the pests are on the march, plowing a deep furrow ahead of them through which a log can be dragged, thus killing the larvae, are among the means of control suggested.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: P. M. Koster, of Koster & Co., Boskoop, Holland, making his twenty-fifth tour of the American trade.

A BILL passed by the last legislature and signed by Governor Harris designates the Cherokee rose as the official emblem of the state of Georgia.

GULFPORT, MISS.—Wm. Mehl, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., has been appointed landscape architect at the Mississippi centennial exposition, which will open December 10, 1917.

OAK PARK, ILL.—James Rex, 11 years old, is leading the contestants in a campaign to rid the locality of tussock moths, having submitted more than 10 pounds. The first prize is $10.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—J. Wilkinson Elliott has returned from Europe, where he visited France and England in search of novelties for the great summer show to be held in this city next June.

Philadelphus.

Few genera of hardy shrubs give as much beauty to summer gardens as Philadelphus, or, as it is popularly called, mock orange or syringa, and to few genera of cultivated plants have so many important additions been made in recent years. As early as 1811 English gardeners cultivated only two species, and 12 years later only 11 species were recognized by botanists. Now there are established in the arboretum some 30 species and a large number of varieties and hybrids. The beauty of these plants is found in their white flowers; the fruit, which is a dry capsule, has as little beauty as that of a lilac. There is nothing particularly interesting in the habit of any of the plants, and the leaves fall early in the autumn without change of color. As flowering plants, however, not many shrubs surpass them in beauty, and the importance of the group is increased by the length of the flowering season, which in the arboretum extends through six weeks. Philadelphus has gained most by the art of the hybridizer, although the handsomest, perhaps, of the old world species, P. purpurascens, is of recent introduction, having been discovered only a few years ago by Wilson in China. The first of the hybrids to attract attention was raised in France before 1870 by Monsieur Billard and is sometimes called Souvenir de Billard, although the oldest and correct name for this plant is P. insignis. This is one of the most beautiful of the large-growing syringas and one of the last of the whole group to flower. A hybrid between two of the American species appeared a few years ago in the arboretum and has been named P. splendens. This is a large-growing and very vigorous plant with unusually large, scentless flowers, and one of the handsomest plants in the collection. Another supposed hybrid is P. maximus; this grows to a larger size than other syringas and plants from 20 to 30 feet high can sometimes be found in old Massachusetts gardens where this plant is not rare. One of the greatest gardening triumphs was achieved by Lemoine at Nancy, when a few years ago he had the happy inspiration to cross P. coronarius, the mock orange of old gardens, with the dwarf Rocky Mountain P. microphyllus, a shrub with small leaves and small, very fragrant flowers. The first plant obtained by this cross was named Philadelphus Lemoinei; it is a perfectly hardy shrub four or five feet high and broad, with slender stems which are now bending under the weight of fragrant flowers which are intermediate in size between those of the two parents. Many distinct forms of this hybrid are in the collection.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 23, 1916.

Mountain Laurel Roots for Pipes.

The sale of a large quantity of mountain laurel roots from one of the national forests in the Appalachian mountains is reported by officials in charge, who say that the roots will be used in the manufacture of pipes. On account of the present scarcity and high price of French briar, a number of American pipe manufacturers have been on the lookout for a substitute, and the forest products laboratory of the United States department of agriculture has conducted a number of experiments to determine the availability of other woods. It is reported that mountain laurel root burns out more rapidly than briar, but forest service experts have to an extent found a method of hardening the wood. It is said that in 1915 the value of briar "blanks" shipped to this country was almost $300,000, and in addition a large number of finished pipes were imported.

NICOTINE MFG. CO.
 ST. LOUIS

Jersey City, N. J.

Charles Bolling has a very neat range and grows a variety of stock, chrysanthemums being now noteworthy. He also forces many bulbs, a feature of his place being a cold storage house where bulbs are rooted, thus obviating the necessity of using a pick axe to get out the boxes in winter.

John F. Madden is both a grower and retailer. He has a considerable glass area at the cemetery, Montgomery street, growing bedding plants and a variety of other stock. At present, he has a fine stock of chrysanthemums coming on. He is a heavy buyer in the wholesale district of New York.

May F. Kendall, the Jersey avenue retailer, though young in years, may be classed as an expert in the business. She has a nice store and we found her busy. She has recently returned from an enjoyable vacation in the region of the Great Lakes.

James A. Sullivan, 277 Grove street, has a good store and does a fine business. He is well known and popular in the wholesale district of New York.

Notice of the sudden death of Mrs. Charles Wrege will be found in our obituary columns.

The business at 499 Summit avenue, formerly conducted by the late Edward Bogie, is now in charge of James Bogie, a brother. A. F. F.

WITH THE GROWERS.

W. H. Elliott, Madbury N. H.

The longest rose house in this country is that of W. H. Elliott, at Mad-bury, N. H. It is 1,450 feet in length and 60 feet wide. In front of this is another house, 52 x 812 feet. There are no frills on these large structures, they having only the necessary construction and materials to house the plants and preserve the summer time heat necessary for their growth, but are substantial and efficient to a marked degree. These houses are divided into sections, each of which has a man in charge; there is nothing but paths dividing the section, the temperature of the house being the same in all parts.
The plants are grown on the benches about two feet from the ground. These are three feet six inches in width, and contain three rows of plants, the center row being set so as to come in between those on the outside. They are sixteen inches apart in the rows.

New ground beds to take the place of the tables are under construction at one end of the house. These are to be of cement sides, the bottom of the bed slopes from the edges to the center; first there is a tile drain and then rough cinders and filled in on the top with cinders of a finer grade on which is placed the soil.
With such beds there is nothing to decay or need repair, and results are said to be just as satisfactory. On such a place one expects to find stock in large quantities. Ophelia appears to be favored most, 15,000 plants being grown. Hadley comes second, with 10,000. There are also 6,000 Christy Miller, 8,000 Sunbursts, 6,000 Single White Killarney, 5,000 Alice Stanley, 2,000 Wards, 5,000 Cecile Brunners and a goodly number of the Irish single roses, which had paid very well.
Hadley had proved itself a money maker, running high in the returns, but Cecile Brunner, the smallest bud of the lot, had turned in the best score card.
The season has been very good, better average prices being obtained than for a long time. Beds that had been resting since the middle of June are now being watered and pruned back. The growers here cut down to about nine inches of the soil and trim away all weak wood, leaving three good canes. Old soil is scraped clean, then scarred rather deep with a steel pronged hand fork to disturb the top roots. The bed is then mulched with manure, fresh sod soil and a little bone meal, which the disturbed roots can get hold of quickly.

When asked about insect pests, J. S.
Elliott, the proprietor's son, said that the leaf roller was now giving them more trouble than anything else.
Eggs deposited on the leaves soon hatch out, and the young worm eats away and finally, rolling a leaf around itself, goes through the various stages until it becomes a mature miller and starts the process over again. The best way to combat them is with candles in dishes of oil, which set in the houses at night, catch a great number of the millers and keeps them down in this way. They are not bothersome in winter, being a hot weather pest, as is also the thrip, which spoils many flowers during the summer months.
The force at this establishment have found nothing effective against them as yet.

Water is obtained from an artesian well, 375 feet in depth; a gasoline engine operates the pump. An auxiliary supply, which was first used and is still available, also brings water from the river one and one-half miles away.
Four hundred horse power boilers heat the place, burning from 1,800 to 2,000 tons of coal in the season.

The roses are graded here, starting at 9 to 11½ inches, next 12 to 13½ inches, then 15 to 17½ inches and so on up to 24, and when special roses were obtained in quantity these were graded about six inches apart when over 24 inches. Mr. Elliott said that their first year roses had done best for them the past season. As soon as the young rose plants are ready to be shifted to a larger size pot they are planted in about 2 inches of soil in the rose benches 4 inches apart each way. When ready to be planted permanently they are cut out with a large butcher knife and lifted with a shingle. This they find much more advantageous as the plants grow stronger and thriftier and with less labor than with a shift into a larger pot. There is a farm of some 400 acres here and a dairy of 75 cows. There is always an abundance of manure, which Mr. Elliott believes in applying liberally. An interesting feature was a table of Sprengeri, 800 feet long, from which, after it had its growth, they had cut all winter. It was one of their best paying benches.

All the stock, both from here and at the Brighton establishment, is sold in the Boston market by A. R. Hutson, Mr. Elliot's agent. The roses are packed here in the regulation way on parchment paper, 25 to a sheet, then iced and laid carefully on one another until a box is filled. They carry well and are handled better in the market than by any other method that has been tried. W. H. Elliot was, on July 21, enjoying his visit to the Maine woods, where he finds rest and quiet every summer about this time. His son, J. S., is now foreman, and from the condition of the houses, is very capable, and one of the rising young men of the craft.

M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.

This famous establishment has long been noted for its fine carnations. Princess Dagmar, the best and largest of the crimsons, was born here, and as a show variety is still the finest in its class.

The carnations here are grown on benches with tile bottoms with a steam pipe under each bench, so as to provide against "wet feet," which are very injurious to the plants under greenhouse conditions, especially when during the pressure of a crop of flowers. Cement benches are also seen here with vitrified drain pipes for legs. These are efficient, neat and easily unite with the cement.

A propagating house, 25x140 feet, with four benches, which in the season are kept full of cuttings, gives an idea of the extent of this branch of the business. Mr. Patton attaches much importance to his soil; a compost of sod and cow manure, after being allowed to stand a year, is put through a Kasting soil crusher, which disintegrates and mixes thoroughly the soil, manure and fibre. He believes that the mixture should be very friable, so that all the particles are easily accessible to the roots of the plants. The machine, which is run by a gasoline engine, is a great labor saver.

All the stock is grown outside; about 40,000 plants were seen in the field, set out the middle of May, and looked in splendid condition. They break better and make finer plants out of doors. They have no trouble in lifting in the middle of August, when the plants are planted on the benches. Any that are out late are not injured by the early frosts, except that the buds on them are destroyed. Varieties grown are: White Wonder and Matchless, which two they bank on; Peerless Pink, a dark shade they have found very good; Beacon, their best red; Pink Delight, Enchantress Supreme and Alice, for pink Benora is also one of their best, and they have a pure white sport of this variety which they value very highly. Sunbeam, a new light pink on trial, has been found free and of good color. Mr. Patton believes that soil has much to do with carnations; some careful growers cannot get results with a variety that give splendid results with others and he attributes this to the light or heavy soil of the locality.

Several houses are given over to Maidenhair fern. Hybridum is the main crop, and there is seen a quantity of H. A. Dreer's California, which is considered very fine, and while not furnishing quite so many fronds, the better price makes up the difference. Quite a block of cypripediums were also found to be a good crop.

Snapdragons, one of the specialties here, has this season, or at least is now, very badly infected with rust and this is the condition that exists, Mr.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

"Bide's Recruit" Grown by M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.

Patton says, with all the growers about Boston. It is attributed to the extremely humid and wet weather of the season, but it is hoped to get plants in condition before it is too late in the fall. Even a lot of young stock that had been purchased from a distance, which was apparently clean, had become so affected that it was necessary to throw them out.

A feature at this establishment is a house of a new English forcing tomato, called Bides Recruit, as shown in the illustration herewith. This had been planted from 3½ inch pots on April 2, and in July the first of the crop was ready. It make a very solid, round fruit, setting 12 to 14 to a truss, which hang down in clusters something like grapes, only that the fruit is in pairs, one below the other to the end. The vines were loaded with fruit, —setting— from four to six clusters to a vine. Mr. Patton says they do best when the temperature does not go below 60°. They find this a very good crop to add to and follow the carnations, there being a ready sale for all they raise at good figures. Two new houses, King construction, each 42x200 feet, are going up to replace two smaller structures that had outlived their usefulness. There is now about 60,000 feet of glass. It is a very nicely arranged place, with a central shed and everything as neat and orderly as is possible to make it. Two sons are a great assistance to the proprietor, although at this time, Capt. Harold J. Patton is with his company, doing service on the Mexican frontier and Mr. Patton and his other son show their loyalty to the flag by working hard to make up for his absence.

North Philadelphia Growers.

John Kuhn, of Fifth and Tabor streets, one of the best all around men in the business, is like all such of his fellows who have attained this distinction, a hard and intelligent worker. Established as a grower some thirty years ago, on a three-acre plot away out in the country, the city came his way and the grounds are now in a populous center of homes with well kept grounds, which offer a market for nearly all he grows at retail. Mr. Kuhn is a lover of hard wooded plants, making a specialty of heaths and acacias. A whole house is given to Acacia pubescens planted out, some of which have a spread of 15 feet. He never has enough of their splendid sprays to meet the demand. An acre of outside stock for summer cut flowers includes a liberal space for asters, which have always done well here, but this season were a failure. Cutting the main stem open, the pith was seen to be apparently chewed up and much of the space hollow or filled with discolored matter, apparently the work of a worm, but while the evidence was there, he has never been able to find one on which to vent his wrath. His other stock has suffered considerably from the dry weather of August, the rainfall of which is officially declared to be less than one inch, while normally it should have been nearly five. The housed carnations look well as do his chrysanthemums, while poinsettias and begonias, splendid stock, were seen in quantity. The whole place exemplifies the fact that hard work and prosperity go hand in hand.

Wm. Koehler, of Bridge street, Frankford, is in luck this season with his asters, some 9,000 plants of which fill three houses. There are 6,000 in 4-inch pots, carrying from four to six flowers, each on long stems, useful for cutting or as pot plants for decorating. They were planted from 2½-inch pots the middle of July. The variety is Dreer's Late Branching, a perfectly formed flower of medium size, always double, without showing center. They have quality plus, and in this season of failure to the outside stock, almost glitter with their golden prospect. Primula obconica, dwarf peppers and cinerarias, young, healthy stock, were seen in quantity. Asparagus plumosus is also a specialty. Much of this is sold at regular wholesale prices to a department store by the wagon load when ready, and the cry is constantly for more. Mr. Koehler finds this much more satisfactory than peddling a dozen or so here and there for the same price all over town. He still keeps to his wagon delivery. He knows of two retail stores who for years with their horse and wagon managed to get along. Now, without any perceptible increase in their business, each have two autos, and he facetiously said that if it took two cars to do the work of one horse he would still stick to "Old Dobbin."

W. C. Jennings, of Olney, is a rose specialist. There is where the Jennings Improved Iron Gutter was originated, Mr. Jennings using it in a range of ridge and furrow or connected houses. These have now been up 15 years, and while not strictly modern as compared with 1916 models, the stock grown is in very satisfactory condition. The feature is a block of some four thousand Prima Donna roses, which, planted in June, are already giving returns, there being a good demand for the flowers. The plants are making a strong, vigorous growth which promises well for the future. A prize found in their package is a pink sport, a lovely shade of which much is expected. Several houses of Maryland are in full flower, while others of Double Pink Killarney and White Killarney, one planted eight years ago and apparently as good as ever, are being rested and groomed for cutting in late November. Fresh horse manure has been found very beneficial as a mulch during the season. Cement ground beds are now used as a foundation for tables. Mr. Jennings having found it easier to handle his stock as regards timing and unfavorable weather for drying out the beds by this method. His houses, about 25,000 feet of glass, are economically heated from an adjoining laundry plant, making use of the boilers at night, which would ordinarily be banked. Two old 20-foot houses are to be replaced in a short time by one of the modern structures, 40 feet in width; there is much more air space to heat in the larger house, but practical men have told him that the expense of heating is one-third less as the larger body of air retains the heat so much longer.

The Florex Greenhouses.

At North Wales, Pa., the mammoth houses of the Florex Gardens, are always interesting to the visitors. More than 140,000 roses covering acres and acres, are seen growing here under these immense roofs as in a field, those in the center of the house seeming to grow and flower as well as on the outside rows next the eaves. The beds for several years were raised but six inches above the ground with board edges; now, when changes are made the height of the bed is put one foot above the walk or floor or level of the ground. In the hot summer months the temperature runs high; the double row of sash along the ridge for ventilation is there, but could not safely be made as large in proportion as those of smaller houses. The stock, however, appears very vigorous and strong, and many of the beds, which had been dried off and cut back, were breaking nicely. Fine tall plants of Sunburst were seen. These cannot be pruned like the Killarney. The principal sorts grown are Sunburst, Maryland, White and Pink Killarney, Prince E. C. de Arenberg, Shawyer, Hadley, a new pink like Mrs. Russell, but under number, which is thought much of, George Elgar, Sweetheart and a few others. Prince E. C. de Arenberg and Shawyer, of the newer ones, are much liked, the returns being very good.

A lot of sweet peas were up and had their first pinch. They were growing one to a 3-inch pot. The seed had been soaked 24 hours, then set in the pots and covered with sand and there were very few misses. Only the best orchid varieties were sown; they go into the house before September 1 to remain until spring, when tomatoes follow immediately. The summer crop of tomatoes were just being taken out August 16, to make room for the peas. The two crops from this house paid handsomely the past year. They are great economists here, grinding up the ashes from their buckwheat coal and spreading it on the land. At their neighbors, the Lansdale Mushroom Co., where many vegetables are grown under glass, the soil for the benches is composed of one-half ground up cinders, one half compost, from which soil they get the best results.

It was interesting to see the men repairing a roof damaged by hail. Wearing rubber shoes they walked up and over the glazed sash bars or asticles to a V-shaped shelf some ten feet in length and a foot wide, which seemed to stay where placed and would support the weight of several men. It looked like nerry work, but was said not to be dangerous to either the men or the panes of glass. About 3,800 tons of buckwheat coal are required to keep the houses going for the winter season. A large house of carnations recently planted looked very well. The magnitude of the place is shown in that the force totals over 60 men, which are kept constantly employed. K.

THE CARNATION.

Encouraging Growth of Young Plants.

The plants benched in July or early in August are now in fine growth. These bright September days, with cool nights, are just what they need, giving fine color and texture to the foliage and growth. The next month or six weeks is one of the critical periods in the encouragement of the growth of the plants for a bountiful supply of flowers during the mid-winter months. Every healthy, vigorous shoot the plants can be induced to make at this time means so many more long stem flowers later on. Do not neglect any part of the general routine work in the care of the plants. Attend to the watering as it is needed, being careful not to allow the soil to get either extremely wet or over dry; there is considerable more moisture in the atmosphere and less drying period with each day than a week or two ago, so that the soil retains the moisture better and takes longer to dry out. This should be a guide for doing any of the necessary watering or syringing earlier in the day, so that the foliage of the plants and the walks of the houses are well dried up before night; wet foliage and damp, close conditions about the house at night will cause disease among the plants quicker than anything else.

The fresh, live soil usually has a generous amount of weed seed in it, which sprouts up quickly under the treatment necessary for the newly planted bed. These weeds should be kept cleaned out as soon as they become large enough to handle and not allowed to remain long enough to form a mat around the plants as well as choking off the air and light from the soil. Do not allow any rubbish to accumulate in the walks or underneath the benches—keeping everything clean about the houses as well as the plants is one of the essential parts of good culture.

The plants are growing fast, pushing their roots out into the soil, making it quite important that the beds be put into as even a condition as possible. A wet surface and dry underneath is detrimental to the growth of the plants and one of the causes of stem rot. After the soil has been put into a condition that the water will pass freely through it, the beds will dry out evenly and the grower has his plants under control.

The question of continuing the topping of the shoots depends on the size of the plants, the variety under consideration, and the time the first heavy crop of flowers is wanted. Varieties with heavy foliage and slow growth should not be topped after September 15, but red varieties, with growth similar to Beacon, and from which the principal aim at this time is a heavy crop for Christmas, should receive their last topping the last days of September. If flowers are wanted in a few weeks, the most forward plants should be allowed to come into bloom, but unless there is a sure demand for the flowers it is a poor plan to time a heavy crop of carnations to come in when the chrysanthemum season is at its height. Short stem flowers are also usually a drug on the market during October. Careful growers take these facts into consideration and govern themselves accordingly.

Attend to the work of supporting the plants; they are much easier to ring or wire up now than they will be two or three weeks hence when larger and the branches more brittle. Any needed repairs or broken glass should be attended to before the fall rains set in and the nights become cold.

Solid Benches and Cement Walks.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I desire to know if greenhouses with cement footings for benches are practical or satisfactory; that is ground benches, for carnations and general work? Do they require more or less heat and fuel than wooden benches? Would you advise them for roses? I do not mean cement benches, but ground benches with cement footings for walks.

P. F. S.

Washington.

While many small growers use solid benches, especially in the hottest part of the country, we prefer to use raised benches for ordinary forcing crops, such as roses, carnations and chrysanthemums. Especially where the temperature is but little above the zero mark, fairly good results have been secured with carnations and chrysanthemums, but we prefer raised benches for most crops.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Featuring in the Retail Store.

When an important occasion arises, great preparation is generally made to be in readiness for the event so that the greatest result, either in business or pleasure, shall be enjoyed. The newspapers always feature the happenings of the day with more or less startling headlines that call the attention of their readers to the story in such a way that they are sure to give it at least a glance, and if interested, read it to the end. The greatest of all the featuring is found in the columns of the department store advertising, almost every article offered being put forward in as attractive a manner as the skilled men in charge can present it. The special drives put forward at certain seasons, generally to enliven a dull time, such as the August furniture sales, are especially featured, great preparations being made to attract the attention of buyers.

This plan of pushing business is not confined to the large store; many other branches of importance, but of small magnitude when compared to the great emporiums, find it profitable to adopt such methods, to attract the attention of the public and enhance their sales. The most successful stores in all the cities and large towns of the country now adopt this plan of featuring everything they offer. The tailors, the hat stores, haberdashers, druggists and gift stores and many other lines continually follow one feature after another until the people are bewildered with the great opportunities spread before them. The firms who manufacture specialties, which are universally advertised, augment this with window displays by special artists, who by appropriate poster and other advertising matter, and an artistic arrangement, show off the goods to the best advantage and greatly increase their sale.

Why should not the retail florist adopt this featuring of the goods he has to sell and attract and interest the public by such up to date selling methods in securing new customers? There are some live wires, who have seen the light and greatly profited by the adoption of this system. Week end sales of roses at times of great production at reduced prices have resulted in a great increase of business to the retailer and made a welcome outlet for the supply house. These special sales provide a splendid opportunity to the dealer who will handle them in an intelligent way; they are of especial advantage to put life into a dull or sluggish time. By laying out a campaign for the year, certain plants and cut flowers will be found available at various seasons. They can be handled in quantity and show a very good profit in these special sales. A very slight reduction is necessary in some cases and in others, while the price may be more inviting, the necessary percentage of profit must be maintained. Good showy window cards and price tags are as essential as the stock; they are the "Silent Salesman" of the business, always on duty, but never counting in the pay roll. Never mind the ethics of the price card; it should be on everything in the shop, so plainly figured that the customers can wait on themselves at busy times, many sales being made when the regular price tag shows the cost to be much less than expected. When displayed on the goods in the window, so that "all who run may read," it is effective to many who had no intention of buying, but being attracted by the artistic arrangement of the plants and the price, become customers. Regular stock should be given prominence wherever possible. Choice roses, if placed in deep high handled baskets, with zinc containers, have an added attractiveness when lifted out of the case to show customers. The arrangement gives a decorative effect that is not possible in the fibre or vase of any kind; they are also easily handled and take up but little more room in the case.

Every part of the store that is not constantly in use should have its equipment of featured goods. A wall space or corner, a table here and there, arranged with something inviting, choice jardinières or up-to-date vases or flower holders, an attractive something in made up baskets on the end of the counter to be called to the at-

Hardy Chrysanthemums.

Paper by Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., read before the Lawrence, L. I., N. Y., Garden Club, September 14, 1916.

I am here today to talk on hardy chrysanthemums, the queen of late autumn, for we find her reigning supreme when the early winter blasts have killed almost all other flowers. And chrysanthemums are practically the only plants blooming to brighten up our beds and shrubbery, and the uses that they can be put to are almost unlimited. It is a flower that can be adapted to almost any locality and and the large flowered ones were all the go, and the old time pompons were practically forgotten.

About 15 years ago I took a notion that these discarded hardy chrysanthemums were entitled to a front place among our autumn flowers, and set about accomplishing the same, but was told by a number that I was a crank, that pompon chrysanthemums were a thing of the past, and there was no place for them. I persisted in my efforts to reintroduce them, however, and results show whether I was right or not. Nearly every florist the country over now uses them, and very few chrysanthemum decorations are thought complete without them whenever they can be obtained. When I had made up my mind to introduce them, I found that there was very few varieties obtainable, a poor collection, but having set my mind on having a good collection, we secured all the varieties that were to be found anywhere and we crossed and recrossed the varieties, raising a large number of seedlings, (thousands of them for several years), until we secured one of the best collections that up to that time the world had ever known. As soon as we had a good collection, we commenced to advertise, people woke up to their possibilities, and soon hardy chrysanthemums were everywhere.

One of our first exhibitions was in the Macey building, New York, and gardeners and visitors were amazed at their beauty. I believe the next year we made another exhibit in New York where the Chrysanthemum Society of America held their show and meeting. Up to this time the society had not recognized hardy or single chrysanthemums, and on the floor at that meeting I demanded recognition, and it was granted and from that time, premium lists were not considered complete without they contained classes for pompons and singles.

To have the finest of flowers, many florists have whole greenhouses planted in them, as it is found that for extra fine work the field grown plants are often damaged by rains or early frosts; that while standing in the beds, etc., they will look fairly well, but when gathered they do not compare favorably with those grown inside for cut flowers, or design work.

LUDWIG FLORAL CO'S SAXONWALD GREENHOUSES AT CASTLE SHANNON, PA.

tention of the uncertain customer, are all points of interest to the visitors and necessary in the up-to-date store-keeping of today. In fact, there is nothing worth carrying in stock so commonplace that it cannot, in its turn, be given a place of prominence in such a way as to bring its merits before the customers. In a great many retail stores, the arrangement of goods on sale is lamentably poor. Many new things, baskets or flower holders, novel in their way, that are not however standard, are useful to brighten up the stock, but comparatively few men display them properly or even know how best to fill them. Nothing should "hang around" if it does not appear to take; it should be worked off at a reduced price before it gets shopworn. Some storekeepers never carry fancy goods over from one season to another, their price being constantly reduced until they are disposed of even at a loss, whatever is received being counted as so much saved. Let the merchant who has a desire to improve his store along these lines, make a tour of inspection of the modern drug or gift stores or some of the department palaces and notice the very complete manner in which the various goods are displayed and offered for sale. He will find plenty of ideas which will be of great value when modified to suit his requirements.

one easy of propagation and growth, and on this account is taking with the masses wherever fall adornment and beauty is required. People are beginning to find out there are varieties that are hardy and vigorous enough to withstand almost the severest of our winters, while there are others that are only suitable for conservatory or greenhouse growing. What varieties do best in your particular locality is a test and problem that you can work out far better than an outsider can tell you.

The hardy chrysanthemum, as the writer knew it, was an old time favorite, the first mention that I can find of it being about the year 300, and with myself from boyhood up, I have always liked it. Well do I remember, as a child, the clumps in my father's garden. Then came a craze,

TRADE SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT.

We have had cool weather during the past week, which seems to have put more life in the flower business. Trade has been very good in both the wholesale and retail lines and indications are that it will continue. There are enough American Beauties to meet the demand, but lilies have dropped off considerably. Asters are arriving much better and stronger. They clean up well each day, except the shorter stems, which are only sold for funeral work. Dahlias are coming much better and are in demand. It seems as though the flower buyer takes to this popular autumn flower more and more each year. The shades and types are beautiful. Some short stemmed carnations are to be had. Greens and smilax are not plentiful.

NOTES.

Edw. McCallum and Mr. Kennerdell, of the Tarentum Floral Co., visited the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.'s range at Bakerstown and from there to the Harmony Nurseries, Evans City; then to the McCallum Co.'s establishment at Allison Park, and winding up at J. L. Wyland's. They saw some very good looking places and were pleased with the trip. Carnations and roses were the most noticeable; also a house of Mrs. M. R. Morgan chrysanthemums at the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., which are fine. Uncle John Wyland has his houses looking fine with carnations.

Gus Ludwig and wife left September 11 for an extended trip to California, stopping to see their daughter in Chicago. It has been some years since Gus has had a vacation. Gilbert Ludwig has charge of the store during his absence.

Mr. Daschbach, manager of the Kaufman floral department, is planning a dahlia show for next week in connection with their fashion show.

J. J. Fuchs, of the south side, has been very busy with funeral work the past week. His artificial department keeps him busy all the time.

Wm. Colligan, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, called on the trade this week. "Bill" was a former Pittsburgh boy.

Zieger Co., of the East End, have a fine display of dahlias and crotons.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, held on the evening of September 13, was the best attended meeting of the season, and a most interesting session was the result. A letter was received from Henry Gibson, tendering his resignation as secretary of the society, owing to the fact that he was about to move to a point too remote from Glen Cove to carry out the duties of his office. The resignation was laid on the table and Ernest Westlake was appointed secretary pro tem for the remainder of the year. During his term of office, Mr. Gibson proved to be a genuine hustler and a most capable official, and we deeply regret losing his services. He carries the best wishes of all his fellow members to his new location.

James Gladstone, Harry Goodband and John Ingraham were appointed by President McDonald to act as judges of the exhibits and they turned in the following report: Best muskmelon, Joseph Robinson, first; six ears of corn, Frank Petroccia, first; 25 lima beans, Frank Petroccia, first; six ears of corn, Honeysweet, thanks of the society to Frank Petroccia.

The final schedule for the chrysanthemum show was read and adopted. It contains 53 classes, covering a considerable variety of exhibits and should bring forth a great many entries. In all but a very few classes the competition is open to all. Final arrangements were made for the dahlia show to be held October 5 and James Gladstone was appointed manager of the same with Thomas Twigg as assistant.

An essay on "Mushrooms and Their Culture" was read by Joseph Robinson and proved to be very interesting and full of practical information. Mr. Robinson described the various types of edible fungi and also told of many distinguishing characteristics of the poisonous varieties. Two essays were received from the National Association of Gardeners, one on "The Diabroticus," by Robert Sell of Texas, and the other on "The Maranocetua," by Percy Snow of Pennsylvania. Both were very favorably received.

Dayton Florists' and Gardeners' Ass'n.

The second annual outing of the Dayton Florists' and Gardeners' Association was held at the Country club and proved a most enjoyable affair, being attended by more than 100 of the members, their families and friends. An excellent programme of sports of all kinds had been arranged for the enjoyment of both old and young, the feature being the baseball game between the florists and the gardeners, which resulted in a victory for the latter, the score being 8 to 6. The only mishap of the day resulted during the game, when Horace Frank, the umpire, was hit with a ball. Total damage, one black eye, which is fast becoming normal again. The accompanying illustration shows the happy group.

Floriculture at Wisconsin State Fair.

Owing no doubt to the agitation of the Milwaukee Florists' Club through its committee, its president, and last, but not least, A. Leidiger, who acted as assistant superintendent on the grounds, the floricultural display at the Wisconsin state fair, which was held at Milwaukee September 12-16, excelled any previous year both in quality and number of exhibits. The place of display was ideal, except for the fact that too many of the displays were placed on the floor instead of being arranged on elevations. The weather was fine for the flowers, though not for the state fair officials, and most of the displays, both cut blooms and designs, kept well. Fred Vogel, Jr., (Jas. Livingstone, Gr.) staged an exceptionally well grown group of perennials and A. F. Kellner Co. had a group of palms; also a group of ferns, which for effect were far ahead of anything of its kind shown. E. C. Lowe, of Sunny Point, again had his usual large display of perennials. The awards in the professional classes follow:

Collection of greenhouse plants not less than 25 varieties, to cover not less than 50 square feet—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; Aug. F. Kellner Co., 2nd; C. C. Pollworth Co., 3rd; A. Klokner, 4th.

Display of palms covering not less than 50 square feet—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st; Holton & Hunkle Co., 2nd; Aug. F. Kellner Co., 3rd; A. Klokner, 4th.

Display of ferns covering not less than 50 square feet—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; Aug. F. Kellner Co., 2nd; C. C. Pollworth Co., 3rd.

Display of foliage plants covering not less than 50 square feet—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; C. C. Pollworth Co., 2nd; A. Klokner, 3rd.

Specimen nephrolepis—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; Ernst Eberhardt, 2nd; C. C. Pollworth Co., 3rd.

Specimen palm—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st; Holton & Hunkle Co., 2nd; A. Klokner, 3rd.

Most artistically arranged floral wreath not less than 21-inch frame—J. C. Arnold, 1st; Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., 2nd; Ernst Eberhardt, 3rd; Rudolph Preuss, 4th.

Most artistically arranged basket of cut flowers—Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., 1st; Ernst Eberhardt, 2nd; A. Klokner, 3rd; J. C. Arnold, 4th.

Display of not less than 200 gladioli blooms—E. C. Lowe, 1st; Ernst Eberhardt, 2nd; A. Klokner, 3rd.

Display of not less than 150 dahlia blooms—Ernst Eberhardt, 1st; J. F. Fitchett, 2nd. Best 25 red carnations—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st.

Best 25 light pink carnations—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st.

Best 25 pink roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st; Holton & Hunkle Co., 2nd.

Best 25 white roses—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st; Holton & Hunkle Co., 2nd.

Best 25 red roses—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; C. C. Pollworth Co., 2nd.

Best 25 any other color roses—Holton & Hunkle Co., 1st; C. C. Pollworth Co., 2nd.

Best 25 Easter lilies—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st; Holton & Hunkle Co., 2nd.

Best 12 chrysanthemums—C. C. Pollworth Co., 1st.

Best display of perennial phlox, not less than five named varieties—E. C. Lowe, 1st; Ernst Eberhardt, 2nd; A. Klokner, 3rd.

Best display perennial helianthus, named varieties—A. Klokner, 1st; E. C. Lowe, 2nd.

Best display perennial delphiniums, named—E. C. Lowe, 1st; A. Klokner, 2nd.

Best display hardy gaillardias—Fred Vogel, Jr., 1st; Ernst Eberhardt, 2nd; E. C. Lowe, 3rd.

DAYTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL OUTING, AUGUST 30 1916.

Los Angeles.

GOOD SUPPLY BUT DEMAND WEAKENS.

The weather during the past week has been considerably warmer, but no damage has resulted so far to outdoor stock. Carnations are coming in plentifully and the quality is good. Assters are also arriving in goodly numbers. The same can be said of choice dahlias but they seem to move without difficulty. A few lily of the valley were seen during the past week but the supply is scarce. Roses are improving. On the whole, business is not as good as it has been for several weeks previous. Many are away at the beaches and mountain resorts, and trade is confined to funeral work and the ordinary run of bouquets.

NOTES.

J. W. Wolters has been busy getting out funeral work. He is also fortunate in having a supply of lily of the valley, which is scarce at present. Fred Dostal, one of the staff at this establishment, is taking his vacation in the deer country. We will report results later.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson were among the busy people during the past week, despite the general dullness. Morris Goldenson has returned from his camping trip and reports a fine time. Albert Goldenson is now enjoying his annual outing.

Howard & Smith have been doing considerable funeral work of late and also report a good demand for bouquets and ferns. Made up baskets of asters and perennial phloxes seen here were attractive and appeared to sell well.

Carl Cropp, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, spent several days in this vicinity on his recent trip to the coast, leaving here for San Francisco.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., have been displaying a fine lot of roses, especially Pink Killarneys and American Beauty. Business is reported a little quiet.

Seki Bros. & Co., are showing extra fine chrysanthemums considering the earliness of the season. Counter trade seemed to be good.

N. Y. and N. J. Ass'n. of Plant Growers.

The first autumn meeting of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held September 14, at the offices of William H. Siebrecht, Jr., the secretary and attorney for the association. After the meeting, the members and a few friends journeyed to Coney Island, as is their custom at this time of the year. Automobiles to transport the party were provided by A. L. Miller, J. H. Fiesser, William H. Siebrecht, Jr., H. Baumann, Roman J. Irwin and H. Harris. The party journeyed through Forest park, Highland park, Prospect park and Ocean parkway to Coney Island. At about half way, the customary stop was made at Trommer's brewery to sample the quality of the brew.

At Stauch's pavilion at Coney Island, the party showed considerable interest in the accommodations which could be made in the event of that place being selected for the purpose of entertaining the delegates and their friends at the 1917 convention of the S. A. F. A very hearty and well-served dinner was thoroughly enjoyed. That was nothing unusual, but rather the customary thing at Stauch's. After dining, the party inspected Feltman's, and made a tour through Luna park and several of the other places of amusement, and then returned home in the automobiles.

Those who participated were A. L. Miller, J. H. Fiesser, Walter F. Sheridan, F. R. Pierson, Daniel Wittpenn, William H. Siebrecht, Jr., Messrs. Lehnig and Winnefeld, H. Baumann, H. Baumann, Jr., Roman J. Irwin, H. Schmidt, Louis Schmutz, Jr., H. Harris, H. Darlington, Alfred Zeller, Hermann Schoelzel, T. W. Langan and Frederick Klenk.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

A well attended and interesting meeting of the above society was held in its rooms in Hubbard hall, Greenwich, Conn., September 8, President Seely in the chair. Several new members were enrolled and a number were reported on the waiting list. The fall show committee reported progress and several very substantial additions to the premium list were announced and filed. The displays of the evening were very choice, although not as numerous as usual. The judges reported the following awards: Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., high commendation for display of dahlias and special mention for seedling dahlias; William Graham, certificate of merit for Rose Ophelia and vote of thanks for Centaurea Americana; Anton Pederson, certificate of merit for seedling tomato, Stamford Beauty, a new variety which seems good and a great yielder, is large and well formed with solid, well-colored fruits; Andrew Whitelaw, vote of thanks for display of Yellow Ponderosa tomatoes. After the regular routine of business was disposed of, the members enjoyed a social session. The next meeting will be held October 13, at which time a display of dahlias and other seasonal flowers will be in order.

P. W. POPP, Cor. Sec'y.

Worcester, Mass.

William Luby, formerly designer and salesman for H. E. A. Lange, and William Estabrook, a well known carnation grower, with greenhouses in North Worcester, have formed a partnership and bought the stock and business of Fisher, the Florist, 537 Main street. Alterations are under way in the store and new, up-to-date fixtures will be installed. The many friends of the partners in the new enterprise wish them all kinds of success.

That Fred Madaus has received his share of the prosperity that has struck Worcester is very evident, for he has found it necessary to seek new quarters for his growing trade. He may now be found at 370 Main street, next door to his former location, where he has nearly twice as much floor space as formerly. A new delivery car is another sign of good times at this enterprising florist's establishment.

R.

Rhode Island Horticultural Society.

The September show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the ball room of the Narragansett hotel, September 12-13, and seemed to surpass anything in its class that had been attempted so far. The displays of dahlias were excellent and there was a fine showing of gladioli, for which the Carmichael Orchards of Shannock were awarded first prize. George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., took several prizes in the dahlia section. There was also a fine display of fruits and vegetables attractively arranged, M. Jannotti, of Johnson, R. I., being awarded several first prizes for excellence. The show was voted a splendid success and the November exhibition, which will be held at the same place, is eagerly looked forward to. Much credit is due the officers of the association and Chairman Eugene Appleton.

Highways and Byways.

Kankakee, Ill.—The Schaefer Floral Co. is growing 10,000 chrysanthemums and 9,000 carnations, but says these will not be sufficient for its need the coming season from the present looks of things.

Mattoon, Ill.—Rumor has it that John W. Shrader will take a partner into the business about the first of the year.

Champaign, Ill.—John E. Yeats has moved into attractive new quarters and has everything in fine order for the fall business.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The recent cool weather has given a decided impetus to retail business here.

Paris, Ill.—John Helfrich has an up-to-date store and says business is good.

OBITUARY.

Seth Low.

Seth Low, twice mayor of Brooklyn, later mayor of the consolidated cities now known as Greater New York, 12 years president of Columbia College and for 33 years a member of its board of trustees, died at his country home, Bedford Hills, N. Y., Sunday, September 17, aged 66 years. For the good he has done, and for the interest he had always shown in every good and useful work, including horticulture and agriculture, the name of Seth Low is one which every true American should honor. We have been taught, and justly so, to admire the men born in log cabins or under similar humble conditions, who have risen to high places, but Seth Low was not one of them. He inherited large wealth, but instead of living in idleness and luxury, he devoted his time and much of his fortune to the betterment of his fellow men.

Mr. Lowe was a liberal patron of horticulture and the products of his beautiful place at Rye, N. Y., have frequently been seen in the flower shows in New York. He is survived by a widow, but no children. Two nieces and a nephew shared his home.

William Necker.

William Necker, an undertaker, with headquarters at Union Hill (Weehawken), N. J., who also conducted a florist business in connection therewith, died September 12 in the North Hudson, N. J., hospital, following an operation. He was 45 years old. He was well known in the wholesale cut flower district of New York. In the past he attracted considerable attention by professing to fight what he called the "undertakers' trust;" also by advertising stock for sale in his undertaking enterprises, he having had branches in New York and vicinity. He is survived by a widow and four children.

A. F. F.

JEFFERSON, WIS.—One house, which will be operated by A. Rathjen, is being built here.

NEWARK, N. J.—A five per cent dividend has been declared for the creditors of H. C. Strobell & Co.

ELGIN, ILL.—J. H. Wilson is building two new houses at 427 Summit street and is going into business for himself.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Henry C. Ostertag, well-known florist, has been appointed a member of the board of police commissioners.

LEAD has made another advance of seven cents per pound.

SOME retailers say they have no trouble getting fancy prices when stock is scarce.

OUTDOOR flowers were finished for the season by the light frosts of last week in many sections.

IMPORT problems are puzzling all lines this year, florists, seedsmen, nurserymen and dealers in supplies.

FERN fronds gathered in the woods for florists' use are reported somewhat small but of good keeping quality.

GLADIOLUS growers who have had an opportunity to figure receipts and expenses say there has been no profit in the cutflower business this season, probably due to the excessive heat and drought of the past summer and delay in getting out the bulbs, caused by continuous wet weather at planting time.

Hail Damage.

A terrific hail storm which swept Hartford City, Ind., September 7, destroyed nearly all the glass at the establishment of the Hartford City Floral Co. The loss was covered by insurance in the Florists' Hail Association.

Coal Advances.

The Black Diamond says: The coal situation is getting tense. Southern Illinois operators announce a 10 cents a ton advance, effective September 20, on all domestic sizes, and the remainder of the state and Indiana will follow suit. Orders booked are sufficient to clean up the entire supply on local docks and leave additional demand upon all rail trade. This means that the west is short of coal now as a result of car and labor shortages and lack of storage during the past summer. Agencies are telling retailers who may need anthracite by December 1 to order now. Some smaller concerns advanced prices 25 cents and premium of $2 is predicted by October 1. Screenings or fine bituminous, which sold a year ago at 42½ cents at mine, now sells for 95 cents.

Rankin Missing.

Lewis P. Rankin, who for several years was foreman for William A. Leonard, of Lansdowne, Pa., and who two years ago purchased the greenhouses of William Foster at Westerly, R. I., and later opened a retail shop in that city, has mysteriously disappeared. He left home Tuesday morning, September 12, to go to New York on business. He visited the S. S. Pen-nock-Meehan store, remarking on leaving that he was going to attend an auction sale of plants. This was the last seen or heard of him since that time.

He is 43 years old, six feet tall, dark hair, blue eyes and square cut jaw, and weighs 167 pounds. He wore a blue suit and dark soft hat. He also wore a masonic pin. There was no reason as far as known for his willfully leaving town. Any word as to his whereabouts will be thankfully received by his family. K.

Useless Multiplication of Fertilizer Brands

The Federal Trade Commission, in its letter of submittal, transmitting report on the fertilizer industry, has the following under the above head:

"Under present conditions the use of brand names in the sale of mixed fertilizers may be necessary. At least, experience has shown in one case that the sale of fertilizers by formula alone in competition with branded goods was not successful. The multiplication of brands, however, especially by the larger companies, has been carried to absurd lengths, partly as a result of the demand for special formulas, but mainly because of the operation of numerous controlled companies, each with its own line of brands. In several states the seven largest companies, including their controlled companies, registered more than one-half of the total number of brands registered. In the state of Vermont out of a total of 185 brands registered in 1914 by all companies The American Agricultural Chemical Co. registered in its own name and through subsidiaries 101 brands. Consequently, the same formula is sold under numerous brand names. In South Carolina, for instance, the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., in the season of 1913-14, registered 41 brands of 8-3-3 goods—i. e., 8 units of phosphoric acid, 3 units of ammonia, and 3 units of potash under its own name—and 33 brands of 8-3-3 goods under the names of its controlled companies, making a total of 74 brands of fertilizers of substantially the same composition."

Crabb & Hunter Floral Co.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—The business of the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., which has been in the hands of the Grand Rapids Trust Co., for some time, will be closed out. The trust company writes as follows: "We are about closing out their business, including their greenhouses, stock, store and fixtures. We have given the matter a careful trial and found it impossible to make any money running their business and have concluded to close it up."

Cleveland Flower Show Correction.

In our report of the open air flower show, held at Cleveland, O., September 2-9, which appeared in our issue of September 16, John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York, were reported as exhibiting an Abyssinian banana plant, which was an error, their display consisting of an excellent showing of lilies and spiræas.

State Fairs.

The following is a list of coming state fairs with the names and addresses of the superintendents of the horticultural and floricultural departments so far as obtainable:

September 15-23, Springfield.—Illinois State Fair. J. J. McComb, 3327 Potomac avenue, Chicago, superintendent of horticulture; John W. Shaw, Harrisburg, Ill., superintendent of floriculture.

Kansas City, Mo.

INDICATIONS OF BIG FALL TRADE.

Business is showing an increase daily and the supply is good and is showing improvement. Gladioli are still in the lead and are selling at prices ranging from two to seven cents. Lilies are of better quality and the supply is about equal to that of last week. Roses are somewhat more plentiful and the grade is better, especially in Ophelia, Sunburst and Mrs. Russell, with American Beauties about the same. Dahlias have made their appearance and are of fair quality, but the stems are short. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and considering the season, are good. With the annual fashion show starting September 25, followed by the American Royal live stock show, October 3, a big increase in orders for decorations is looked for as well as large bouquets and corsages. The first frost was registered September 14, but from all reports in this vicinity, was light and little damage was done.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes has returned from Chicago, where he spent a week purchasing a line of palms and decorative plants. Business has been very good. On September 11 orders were received for 58 funeral designs, and on September 16 he redecorated the Emery, Bird & Thayer store for its fifty-third anniversary, which will be followed by a special decoration for the fashion show.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a fine line of California grown gladioli in addition to chrysanthemums and asters. Roses are more plentiful and better in quality. The shipping trade here is showing steady gains and looks very promising.

Manager Parker, of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., is remodeling and brightening up the store in preparation for the coming season, which is expected to be a busy one. This firm is beginning to cut roses.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting good roses and reports everything in good shape in the greenhouses and stock improving with the arrival of cool weather. Wm. L. Rock is enjoying a ten-day fishing trip.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely, of Kansas City, Kan., has returned from the lake and is prepared for another good year. She will be one of the entrants in the flower parade to be held on that side of the river.

The fall demand for bouquets and basket arrangements in addition to a steady call for funeral work keeps Arthur Newell's staff busy. He reports stock more plentiful.

H. Kusik & Co. have a good line of asters, lilies and gladioli, with the rose supply getting better daily. Trade is improving and supplies are moving better.

Wright & Ragan, of Hickman Mills, are building two new houses, each 27x200 feet, which will be devoted to carnations and chrysanthemums.

Chas. Biederman & Son have a fine showing of stevias, ferns and chrysanthemums. "Billy" says everything is coming along in fine shape.

Mr. Chandler, of the Elmhurst Nurseries, is bringing in some good dahlias. They are about the first seen here this season.

ALLEGANY, NEW YORK

Providence, R. I.

Stock in all the seasonable varieties has been very plentiful during the past week, but gladioli are now shortening. Asters continue to arrive in large numbers. A few sweet peas were seen but they were not of good quality. The rose crop is heavy and good stock can be bought at low figures. Carnations are making their first appearance, but what few there are of them appear to be good. The demand for pot plants has been unusually good this summer. The flower shops seemed to have boomed this branch of the business this season and have found it profitable to a certain extent, proving that if a thing is pushed it can be sold, and sold at a profit. Ferns, palms and rubbers had a good call and araucarias were also popular.

STOCK IS VERY SCARCE.

The cold spell which set in September 13 caused a sudden shortening up of stock and a grand cleanup in the wholesale market the following day. Much of the outdoor stock suffered considerably from frosts, which, although light, were sufficiently severe to damage most of the exposed tender stock to such an extent that there will be few, if any, outdoor flowers available here from this date. Roses are in short supply and in good demand, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty, which clean up at an early hour at high prices. The other varieties of roses are also moving quickly at advanced prices and many of the dealers report having trouble in filling all their orders. A few asters are reaching the market but are disposed of quickly and the same holds good for carnations, which are also on the short side. Orchids are as scarce as ever and command good prices. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful and is in brisk demand. Chrysanthemums are moving better than they have been but the receipts are not very large and

ATTENTION! GROWERS OF CARNATIONS

PRODUCERS of high grade Carnations will find it to their advantage to consign their stock to us for we have a good market for same and need a larger regular supply. If you grow any other miscellaneous stock along with your Carnations, you may ship it to us also. You may start shipping immediately or as soon as your stock is ready to cut.

STEADILY INCREASING SUPPLY

while some good stock is seen there are many inferior blooms being offered. Some of the California growers are shipping chrysanthemums direct to the local retail florists through a representative who makes the rounds once a week. Another concern is shipping to one of the wholesalers and while some of the stock reaches here in good condition there is considerable loss and it is a question whether it pays the growers to cater to this territory. Lilies are having a good call and there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of. The shipping trade has been exceptionally heavy the past week and while the city trade has improved some it is not what it should be yet and the local retail florists in general report that outside of one or two brisk days the sales for the past week have been nothing to speak of. One of the leading wholesale florists says that in comparing his sales with last year he finds that the supply of stock in general the past week was away below the same period last year, but that prices were better and the total sales as far as dollars and cents are concerned, compare most favorably.

NOTES.

Herbert Stone has resigned his position with Mrs. Williams of the Atlas Floral Company, to accept a position with A. H. Schneider, well-known Oak Park florist, who will take him in as a partner in the near future. Mr. Stone has also been in the employ of W. J. Smyth, A. Lange and the Bohannon Floral Co. and needs no introduction to the trade. Mr. Schneider is fortunate in securing his services, for he is without question one of the best all-around storemen in this vicinity.

The American Bulb Co. has sold quite a number of the patent folding canopies that it had on exhibition at the Houston convention, which are big time savers for any florist who has many wedding decorations to arrange. A. Miller and Samuel Seligman are back from out-of-town trips, and it is rumored that Miss Emma Small and Vincent Neil, of this establishment, will be married in the near future.

John Michelsen, with the E. C. Ameling Co., has returned from an eastern business trip, which included a visit to the violet growing establishments at Rhinebeck, N. Y. He reports finding the stock in splendid condition and all arrangements made for his firm for the coming season's supply.

John Kaspar and wife, 4005 West Twenty-sixth street, celebrated their silver wedding Saturday, September 16. They were agreeably surprised and tendered many beautiful presents when a party of friends dropped in that evening and joined them in celebrating the event.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have made a number of changes at their store, which will give them more space than formerly, including a separate receiving and shipping room. Mr. Pyfer reports business as rushing with a grand cleanup in stock every day.

The Armitage Floral Shop, 2065 Milwaukee avenue, had a dollar day Thursday, September 14, which proved to be a great success. Ferns and palms were their leaders and sold out completely before the store closed for the day.

Chas. Bloom, a brother of Sam Y. Bloom, 822 East Sixty-third street, will open a new store at Clinton, Ia., in the near future. Buchbinder Bros. are furnishing the store fixtures, including a Buchbinder refrigerator.

Robert Schwass and wife, of Des Plaines, are rejoicing over the arrival of an eleven-pound baby boy, last week. Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Garland are the proud grandparents.

Fred Wolfram, proprietor of the Warrington Flower Shop, had the decorations for the Caldwell wedding in Oak Park, September 19, which called for quite a supply of stock.

Zech & Mann's store looks fine and dandy since Fred Ottenbacher gave it a new coat of paint. Nick Wuestenberg joined the force at this establishment this week.

W. J. McGee is back from a two weeks' vacation and is again attending to his duties as cashier and bookkeeper at the John Kruchten Co. store.

John Schoepfle, 933 Belmont avenue, wife and daughters, Julia and Gertrude, are back from a pleasant visit in the east.

Joe Erringer will be in the employ of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department starting next Monday, September 25.

C. Snyder, of the El Paso Carnation Co., El Paso, Tex., wife and daughter Grace are the guests of relatives here this week.

William Johnson is back on the job at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, after enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Allie Zech, Emil Kroll, Matt Mann and George Damm visited the growers at Maywood, September 14.

Henry Wittbold had several large decorations last week at Marshall Field & Co.'s store.

Fred Haupt, of Louisville, Ky., made a trip here in his automobile this week.

G. W. Smith and wife, Cleveland, O., passed through the city this week on their way home from a five weeks' visit at Cody, Wyoming. They report having had a delightful time and bagged a couple of elk on one of their hunting trips and are taking a fine spread of antlers home with them. They had a pleasant visit with J. E. Quallich, of the A. L. Randall Co., who is an old Cleveland boy, and it is needless to add that the meeting was a most pleasant one.

E. F. Winterson bought the Wrenn farm, consisting of six and one-half acres fronting on Green Bay road and adjoining Fritz Bahr's property at Highland Park, and will erect a residence on it in the near future. He traded in his old property at Highland Park, consisting of five and one-half acres, and paid $15,000 besides. Mr. Winterson and Mr. Bahr are the best of friends and nothing will please the two well-known florists better than to be neighbors.

Miss Anderson, formerly with Poehlmann Bros. Co., and Sandy Clifford, were quietly married last Saturday, September 16, and have the best wishes of their many friends for a safe and happy voyage down the sea of matrimony. Mr. Clifford is proprietor of the old Frank Otto store at Winnetka.

N. J. Wietor reports a great improvement in trade at Wietor Bros.' store with an exceptionally brisk demand for roses. They are cutting a good supply of Ophelia and Sunburst, but there is no surplus now when the store closes for the day, owing to the unusually tight market.

J. A. Budlong is supplying the trade with a fancy grade of Ophelia and Sunburst roses in addition to an extra fine supply of Baby Doll roses. This firm filled a large number of orders for Springfield florists this week, who evidently are making exhibits at the state fair.

Oscar Metz, 5525 Harper avenue, bought 35 acres of land and three greenhouses at Ninety-first street and Colfax avenue, September 15. He will continue to operate his old place but will rent the greenhouses located on his new property.

The Atlas Floral Co. is remodeling its East Randolph street store, which will allow more room and give the place a much better appearance. Miss E. Lamparter joined Mrs. Williams' force this week.

The Kenilworth Nurseries bought 15 acres of land last week adjoining its present place, consisting of 20 acres. This concern also owns nearly eight acres of land in Rogers Park, which has increased surprisingly in value the past few years.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving a fine supply of roses in all the leading varieties, but the heavy local and out-of-town demand enables them to find a ready market for the steadily increasing cuts.

Miss Fawcett, who is engaged in the retail florist business at Melbourne, Australia, was a visitor in the wholesale market this week.

Joe Marks, with A. Henderson & Co., will start out on his first eastern trip this week for this concern.

The annual meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America will be held at the Hotel LaSalle next week, September 26-29, and from all indications, it looks as if it will be largely attended. On Wednesday, September 27, the visitors will be taken for an inspection trip to north side greenhouses and gardens and luncheon will be served at the Wayside Inn, Morton Grove. The local committee in charge of affairs, consisting principally of well known people in the allied trade lines, are going to have their hands full in entertaining the visitors and would greatly appreciate it if all those in the trade who own automobiles would assist them next Wednesday by furnishing their machines and drivers so the large crowd can be handled conveniently. The chauffeurs will be taken care of as far as luncheon, etc., are concerned and everyone who wishes to help a good cause along and show the "I Will" spirit should get in touch with Fred Lautenschlager, Philip J. Foley or E. F. Kurowski as early as possible. It might not be amiss to mention here that every time any assistance was asked for any worthy cause that all the gentlemen in charge of the local convention affairs were always among the first ones to open their pocketbooks, and if there is such a thing as appreciation in this beautiful city now is a chance for everyone to prove it and notify the committee that their machines will be at their disposal on this occasion.

M. C. Gunterberg visited the violet growing establishments at Rhinebeck, N. Y., while she was in the east and reports that the plants in general look unusually fine this season compared to former years. Starting about October 15 she will have her usual large supply to offer as in previous years. She had a splendid time in Washington, D. C., where she was royally entertained by W. F. Gude and family and Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. Even President Wilson shook hands with her.

Alfred Dietsch, chairman of the trade exhibit committee, says that space is selling well for the annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, to be held at the Hotel LaSalle, next week, September 26-29, and that the allied trade lines are well represented, especially the greenhouse manufacturers. Anyone wanting space should call him up immediately, Lincoln 1183, or drop him a line in care of A. Dietsch Co., 2642 Sheffield avenue.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a splendid supply of stock of all kinds, particularly roses and chrysanthemums, but the demand is so heavy that it keeps Otto W. Frese busy trying to make 1,000 go around where 2,000 are needed. The sudden cold spell placed all the wholesalers in the same position but the receipts are steadily increasing and a few more days of favorable weather will find plenty of stock to go around.

Johnson & Chronis wish to announce to the trade that there has been no change in their concern and that any rumors to the contrary are merely gossip and probably originated when Mr. Johnson's nephew started in business recently with a Mr. Spetz in that neighborhood. A likeness in business cards passed around the market by the new concern strengthened the rumor.

Bassett & Washburn have sold practically all their field grown plants of Belle Washburn and what few are left will just about take care of the stragglers orders that are arriving. Mr. Washburn reports a heavy shipping demand for cut flowers of all kinds with a shortage of stock in all lines,

COMING BACK

Our customers are all coming back to us this season. This is proof that our stock, prices, etc., are entirely satisfactory. which holds good for the market in general.

The Alpha Floral Co. devoted a special window to Jessie McCutcheon Raleigh's good fairy statuettes, September 16, which seems to be the hit just now. Andrew Chronis reports that they sold surprisingly well and while he expected to dispose of a few and use the rest for show they had to fall back on those in the windows to fill the orders.

Peter Reinberg is in good crop with roses, but Felix Reichling reports that it is impossible to fill all the orders, although the regular customers are being well taken care of. Everything is selling well at this establishment but the heaviest demand seems to be for Mrs. Chas. Russell, American Beauty, Ophelia and Sunburst roses.

T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, sold a Buchbinder refrigerator to Dale & Nicholas, of Hancock, Mich., before he left for the east and writes since he has reached Philadelphia, Pa., that he is having a delightful time.

Buchbinder Bros. sold a large display refrigerator to A. H. Schneider of Oak Park this week. Sidney Buchbinder reports business as fine and says that they have had to increase their store force to keep pace with the orders.

Percy Jones is having a good call for chrysanthemums, which are being handled in quantity in addition to a complete line of other stock. H. Van Gelder reports trade as fine with a splendid outlook for a brisk fall business.

The Raedlein Basket Co. reports business as exceedingly brisk and is busy mailing its fall catalog, which contains illustrations of many of the new designs it is offering for the first time this season.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a brisk demand for American Beauty roses, which they are handling in quantity in all grades and will have a large regular supply all through the fall and winter months.

The annual autumn festival of the South Shore Country Club opened September 20 and will continue for the rest of the week. The flower booth is particularly attractive.

Visitors: Mrs. R. Buck, Washington, O.; Miss Hellenenthal, Columbus, O.; A. L. Glaser, Dubuque, Ia.; Wm. Haselmann, Independence, Kans.; Chas. Siebrecht, Winona, Minn.; Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS ABOVE AVERAGE.

The temperature dropped to 49 degrees one night this week, something very unusual at this time of the year for this locality. With the cool spell that is being experienced, all indoor grown flowers are looking better than they have for some time. Business is fairly satisfactory. Florists report that this September is showing a better record for business than usual.

At the coming state fair, which opens September 23, the florist firms of Furrow & Co. and the Stiles Co., will each make extensive floral displays.

Clyde Batten, of the Stiles Co.'s staff, is back from his vacation.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

September weddings and a good number of funeral orders have created a brisk demand during the past two weeks, which has been added to by the improvement in the quality of stock. Prices are very good for September. Roses are more plentiful but carnations are scarce and are quoted as high as $6 per 100.

NOTES.

A florists' club was organized September 14 at a dinner given by Mrs. Alice Flick Shive, of the Flick Floral Co. Meetings will be held once each month. The next meeting will be held October 2 at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store, 301 West Main street.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are showing some handsome yellow chrysanthemums, the first of the season. They also offer fine Ophelia, Sunburst and Russell roses.

The Doswell Floral Co. arranged a handsome blanket of Russell roses and Clematis paniculata among other funeral pieces last week.

Miss Markey has returned to Markey Bros., after a vacation spent at Whitmore lake, near Ann Arbor, Mich. Miss L. L. Nelson, secretary to W. J. & M. S. Vesey, is spending two weeks at Auburn, Ind.

FALL OPENINGS BOOST DEMAND.

Business last week was what might be called fair, although at times it was inclined to be somewhat quiet. This week, however, fall openings in several of the large stores are creating a heavy demand and the week should close with a good record. The first frost of the season came on September 16, but no serious damage resulted. Cool weather has checked to some extent the flow of stock into the market. Roses are fairly plentiful and carnations are arriving in quantities sufficient to meet all immediate requirements. Both Easter and rubrum lilies are plentiful and asters are in fair supply, while some excellent dahlias and cosmos may be had. Other offerings include chrysanthemums, gladioli, a limited supply of lily of the valley and calendulas.

NOTES.

Mrs. William Mayhall narrowly escaped serious injury September 18, when another automobile ran into her Buick "Light Six," which she was driving. The other car was much the worse for the collision while the Buick was scarcely scratched and Mrs. Mayhall received nothing more than a severe shaking up.

Joseph Enneking, Fred Gear and the E. G. Hill Floral Co. had orders for large fall opening decorations this week.

Wm. Chisholm, formerly of Indianapolis, has joined the E. G. Hill Floral Co.'s force.

The Wm. Murphy Co. is featuring some very good carnations.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent calendulas.

E. G. Gillett is showing an excellent lot of roses.

TRADE INCLINED TO BE QUIET.

Business in general the past week was not brisk; in fact, some retailers claim it was slower than for some time past, but then, "state fair week" never brought much extra business to the florists, for the beautiful outdoor flowers in private yards can easily be used for entertaining purposes, and for the last time we can say that there was more than enough stock, especially outdoor cut flowers, to meet all demands, and the quality of most of it was good. The assortment consisted of larkspurs, celosias, gaillardias, annual gypsophilas, tritomas, gladioli, dahlias and asters. But the unexpected happened, for we had our first frost September 15-16, and around the outskirts of the city nearly all soft wooded stock suffered more or less in low, unprotected places. Salvias, geraniums, cannas, begonias, etc., present a sad appearance at this writing. On Sunday morning, September 17, the local weather bureau phoned to most of the florists, forecasting a frost for that night. Consequently it was a case of hustle all men all day to get things under cover. It might be said that should we get a severe frost at this time conditions would be worse than this summer. Then stock was short with the usual summer demand, which is not any too great. Outside of roses, the supply of indoor cut flowers is very limited, so a killing frost now would cause endless trouble for some time to come.

NOTES.

Field grown carnation plants never were so scarce here as this season. Plants in general were not as large as usual at housing time and most of the growers had to double up, hence the shortage. A. Reinhardt, of North Milwaukee, had quite a few to spare and reports having had no trouble to move them.

Leon B. Thorpe, late with the Greenwood Carnation Co., was united in marriage September 6 to Miss Adeline Kiehnau, of Brown Deer, and immediately left for the east on their honeymoon. We extend our best wishes for a happy future.

After spending his two weeks' vacation fishing at Cedar lake, Walter Holton reported for duty September 18 at the Holton & Hunkel Co.

Extending through this week most of the large department stores will hold their fall openings, which will help those florists who cater to that line of work to keep busy.

H. W. Koerner says that on Sept. 16 his dahlias were more affected by the frost than the gladioli the night previous. He consigns all his stock to Gust. Rusch & Co.

C. C. Pollworth entertained Geo. Asmus of Chicago, who was a visitor, September 14.

Visitors: H. Horman, Medford, Wis.; H. Rhodes, Hartford, Wis.; Jno. Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis.; James Mathewson, Sheboygan, Wis.; Alfred Sylvester, Oconomowoc, Wis.; Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Meyer, of Janesville Floral Co., Janesville, Wis.; Henry Benz, of Racine Flower Shop, Racine, Wis.; R. Turner, Kenosha, Wis.; Geo. Asmus, Jas. Foley and M. Hilmers, Chicago; Herman Staeps and wife, Elm Grove, Wis.

Louisville, Ky.

A feature in the floral section at the Kentucky State Fair which was held in this city September 11-16 was an easel which was exhibited by W. L. Korb, 2720 Greenwood avenue, and which captured the silver cup for best design. The frame was made of beech branches and the picture was represented by flowers arranged on a green background. It was one of the most original designs ever shown at a state fair here. In the palm section the New Nanz & Neuner Co. was awarded the first honors, a prize of $50, the Kunzman Floral Co. being second.

Henry Pittelas has rebuilt most of his houses. He is now cutting some fine Kaiserin roses.

Local florists report trade very good, but suffer to some extent from a scarcity of stock.

FUNERAL ORDERS BULK OF BUSINESS.

Business has been somewhat slack during the past week, the best part of the demand being for funeral work. Stock is much more plentiful than it has been for two weeks. Asters are arriving in larger quantities and the quality is much improved. Gladioli are getting poorer each week and will soon be a minus factor. Sweet peas are scarce and are poor in quality. The lily of the valley supply is increasing but the price continues high. Excellent Harrisii lilies are to be seen. All roses are good in quality. Ophelia being especially fine. Gaillardias, larkspur, helianthus and buddleia are also among the plentiful items as are asparagus and fancy ferns. Smilax is very scarce.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was held in the club rooms September 12. Charles Crossman gave an interesting discourse on seeds. He said before the war that his firm used to import more than 2,000 pounds of seeds a year, but at present could not secure more than 100 pounds during the 12 months. Harry Bates and John Dunbar gave interesting accounts of their trip to the Houston convention and the many interesting features of the annual meeting of the S. A. F.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons recently had a most attractive window arranged with helianthus in various types of receptacles.

E. P. Wilson spent September 14 at Silver Lake, on the occasion of the outing of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Hiram Wilson is confined to her home seriously ill, but it is hoped she will soon be about again.

Bert Elliott has returned from a fishing trip at Conesus lake, and reports a good catch. CHESTER.

STOCK SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT.

With the cooler weather, stock is much improved, the colors being brighter, roses, particularly, show more vigor, the buds being firmer. American Beauties are fast getting into higher grades and sell very well. Ophelia is looking up and promises to be an even greater factor than last season. The shorter grades of all the varieties, and a great many are now thrown on the market, are hard to move and go in quantity at any price to save them from the chute. Dahlias are now making their presence felt; they are fine and for the next three weeks will be the quantity flower—the one staple that all the trade should keep to the front. The stock is fine, and now that there is cooler weather, augmented by the recent heavy rains, there will be a supply sufficient for all orders. Push the dahlia; there is money in them for everybody that will handle them with up-to-date methods. Easter lilies are more plentiful, with quality the best. Cosmos is seen by almost the wagonload; it is a bread and butter proposition for everybody at this season. Asters are a little more plentiful, but the market takes all the good stock at fair prices. Cattleyas are still scarce and are held firmly at record prices for the season. Lily of the valley is soaring, $8.00 being the price for anything worth having. Where it will get to the coming winter is a problem. Golden Glow are coming in from several growers, but are not in great demand. Hydrangea paniculata from young field grown plants is good stock, taking the place of the higher priced white asters. All the outside flowers, such as delphiniums, snapdragons, etc., are coming strong since the rain and find a fair market.

NOTES.

Robert Craig, in one of his recent reminiscent moments, stated the interesting fact that John Dick, the leading importer and grower during the sixties, forced the first lily of the valley during the winter months and sold it as a great novelty in the New York market. It was purely accidental, however, on his part. A lot of clumps or pips had been imported for planting out one fall, but arriving after the ground was frozen, were placed under a bench in one of the houses to keep until spring, and later was discovered to be coming into flower. It was moved up above and when in condition, was marketed as above at a good price.

James M. Thoirs and Raymond Thoirs, of Camden; Herman Zimmer, of Collingdale, and Robert Kift returned on Tuesday last from an auto ride to Rochester and other New York points; they reported a very interesting trip, seeing some fine field asters, particularly at James Vick's Sons, at Rochester, where acres in splendid bloom were up to standard.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving many orders for velvet plush or velour for window backgrounds; it is much in favor in the best stores in their window decorating.

The Joseph Heacock Co. has opened up their city store in Ranstead street, Irrington, N. J.

At the extensive range of E. W. Fengar, there is a great stock of chrysanthemums coming on, all in fine condition. Carnations are also looking well for the season. This is a finely equipped range and Foreman Persson keeps things moving. A leading feature is the great stock of bedding plants now in the field. Though from various sources we have heard complaints that outdoor stock has not done well this season, it looks fine at

BEE'S' ROSES ARE AMAZING

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

SUPPLY INCREASES BUT DEMAND LIGHT.

Business continued dull during the past week. The weather turned warm in the middle of the week, the temperature, September 14, going up to 86 degrees with corresponding humidity. That, with a combination of other circumstances, was unfavorable to business. The epidemic of infantile paralysis that prevails here will keep many families away from their city homes until much cooler weather arrives. The street car strike not only interferes with travel throughout the city, but having also reached the brick and bottle throwing stage there are careful and timid people who go about as little as possible. To sum up, there has been a considerable increase in the supply of stock with no increase in the demand, if anything, a falling off.

September 18.—There is a little more life in the market this morning than during the past week, but it is hard to tell what a day may bring forth. The weather is much cooler, and light, but not killing frosts are reported from various northern points.

NOTES.

A meeting of the board of directors, Horticultural Society of New York, will be held in the Museum, New York Botanical Garden, at 2:30 o'clock September 23. A meeting of the society will take place in the lecture hall, at 3:30 o'clock, followed by a public lecture at 4 o'clock, by Dr. F. W. Pennell on "Through the Mountains of Utah and Colorado." The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. There will be an exhibition of dahlias, also in the Museum, September 23, 2 to 5 p. m., and September 24, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

A. H. Langjhar, the wholesaler, spent a part of the past week calling on New Jersey dahlia growers. Among other places, he visited Hammononton and Williamstown Junction. It is at the latter place that L. A. Peacock's dahlia farms are located. He states that at this place the crop looks fine. An irrigation system has recently been installed which has been very beneficial as there has been a six weeks' drought. Mr. Langjhar is selling stock from the Peacock farms.

One of the interesting globe trotters, frequently met in the florist business, is James Halikias, a buyer for Trepel & Bershad of Brooklyn. He was born in Greece, but came to this country when a boy. When 16 years old he left New York for Cape Town, South Africa, where he had an uncle. His uncle offered to start him in business, but after remaining a year he got homesick for New York. He can talk interestingly of the Zulus and other tribesmen that he saw at the Cape.

James Dalglish and Arthur Ward of J. H. Small & Son's, Washington, D. C., store, have recently spent some time at the Madison avenue store. Mr. Dalglish, after a short stay, went to Massachusetts to superintend an elaborate wedding decoration. Mr. Ward, who is an all around mechanic, as well as a florist and decorator, has been assisting in interior improvements in the store. The Madison avenue store has just put on a very fine, new Maxwell car for delivery.

Frank Millang, the well known wholesaler of the Coogan building, who for the past year has resided at Yorktown Heights, Westchester county, has removed his family to Forest Hills, L. I. At this place, fine houses have been erected and many improvements made by the Sage Foundation, the funds being furnished by Mrs. Russell Sage. It is also at Forest Hills where tennis is played for the championship of America.

A force of workmen is busy on the store of Henry Hart, 1000 Madison avenue, putting in a new front, the business being temporarily carried on in the building at 998. Elaborate plans have been prepared for the reconstruction of the other store.

Frank L. Deery, manager for Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., has returned from a yachting trip. On September 14 this firm had a large amount of funeral work for Plainfield, N. J. There was a pall of pink and white roses and a number of fine designs.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has announced change in time of their auctions from 11 a. m. to 10 a. m., the large stocks being handled and in order that the complete list may be sold, making it necessary to start the sales one hour earlier.

Interesting and welcome visitors, September 15, were J. A. Peterson and wife of Westwood, Cincinnati, Ohio. They had been touring the east in their motor car and were thus independent of strikes. They had visited many points of interest.

Andrew Eckrich, for many years buyer and manager for the late Charles E. Grunewald, continues the retail business at 924 Madison avenue. He is an active and capable man and will doubtless be successful.

In addition to their store at 2216 Broadway, Pappas Brothers have a fine store at 315 West 110th street.

A. Meyer, 1062 Madison avenue, has been making extensive improvements in his store.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., report that their stock of plants on hand at the beginning of the past week was about sold out. They received another large consignment September 18.

A. E. Booth, who has spent the summer at Asbury Park, N. J., has returned to the wholesale district and resumed his position with B. S. Slinn, Jr., in the Coogan building.

Charles Futterman, manager for Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, is rejoicing over the arrival of a young daughter at his home, September 12.

F. Frederico, formerly a salesman for B. S. Slinn, Jr., is now with H. W. Baylis in the Dailedouze-Asmus department of the New York Cut Flower Co.

Alexander Donaldson, who is now located at Englewood, N. J., is bringing to market fine stock of the chrysanthemum, Early Frost.

George L. Rondires has now a fine retail store at 2164 Eighth avenue, and in addition to cut flowers, keeps a fine stock of plants.

It now appears that through the efforts of Mayor Mitchel and Oscar S. Straus, chairman of the public service commission, no sympathetic strike of longshoremen, boatmen and other trades will be called to aid the carmen. The labor leaders have promised not to call out more men; at least not until another attempt is made to settle the differences between the street car companies and their men.

The Holland-American Line freight steamer, Poeldyk, entered the harbor on September 17, bringing 12,000 cases of Dutch bulbs. The Noordam of the same line, came in September 18, a part of her cargo also being bulbs. There were consignments to practically every seedsmen in this city and many to brokers; also, consignments for Boston, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Calling recently on John Scheepers & Co., Inc., we were shown a handsome silver medal which was awarded them at the Newport, R. I., show, August 17, for a superior strain of begonias. They also took first prize at the Cleveland show for lilies and received honorable mention for Spiraea America. They also had an exhibit of hyacinths, tulip and lily bulbs of fine quality.

Louis A. Noe, the well-known grower of American Beauties, at Madison, N. J., was in the city September 18. His houses are now sending in good stock. He and his head salesman, Matthew Sampson, have recently returned from a successful fishing trip on the St. Lawrence river.

READY FOR FALL BUSINESS.

The local florists are prepared for what is anticipated will be a busy fall season. Several cool days and a little rain have improved the outdoor stock and enhanced the quality of the early indoor flowers. The variety is large and should meet the requirements of the most fastidious. The offerings include American Beauty, Maryland, Shawyer, Ward, Killarney and Francis Scott Key in roses, qualities varying from $1 upward per dozen, asters, gladioli, cosmos, calendulas, and the first of the dahlias which have arrived; also, tritomas and some chrysanthemums which are on sale, but the sales are not numerous, due to the small flowers and weak stems, together with their poor keeping qualities. Some good orchids are to be seen, but not in any quantity, and lily of the valley continues scarce, the retail price being $1.50 per dozen.

NOTES.

The local florists have been unusually afflicted since June in the deaths of those dear to them. First came the passing of William F. Kasting, then the beloved wife of Wm. Legg, valued secretary of the florists' club, and last, Mrs. Captain Johnson, who, before her marriage, was Miss Rachael M. Rebstock, who had a store on Main street for about 10 years, until her marriage four years ago. She was very successful in her business. She had enjoyed good health until about three months ago. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her brothers, Joseph M. and Stephen J. Rebstock, are engaged in the florists' trade in different locations in this city.

Several of the stores have brightened up for the season, among them being those of S. A. Anderson, the Lenox Flower Shop and Felton's Shop of Flowers.

W. J. Palmer is still in northern Canada, where he goes to recuperate each year.

Sewickley Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society, held in Odd Fellows' hall, Sewickley, Pa., September 12, was well attended. The exhibition scheduled for September 22-23 came up for discussion and the final committee on arrangements was appointed.

William Thompson, Sr., arranged a display of orchids and Thomas Sturgis exhibited a collection of gladioli and some very fine seedling dahlias of the Indian family type. Both gentlemen were given a vote of thanks. After the business session, the reports of the field day held August 30, were gone over, the outing being voted a success in every way. The society extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. William Thaw for her kindness in granting the freedom of her estate to the members for that day. Applications were received from five new members.

Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, September 20, were as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $4.75 per 100 pounds.

EUROPEAN flower seed reports of August 20 indicate extreme drought during midsummer and deluge of rain at time of writing.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The W. F. Pitts Seed & Nursery Co. has opened a well-equipped establishment at 326-328 Market street.

OWENSBORO, KY.—The Rapier Seed & Grain Co. will replace its building recently destroyed by fire with a modern $10,000 structure.

SECRETARY KENDEL is mailing the official report of the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held at Chicago, June 20-22.

BEAN crop estimates in central Michigan are being scaled down 50 per cent following two hard frosts this week. Prices for 1917 are likely to equal those of 1916.

VISITED CHICAGO: George H. Dicks, representing F. Cooper Taber & Co., London, Eng.; Edwin Bishop, manager of T. W. Wood & Sons' Milford farm, Richmond, Va.

BULLETIN No. 406, of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., is on distinguishing characters of the seeds of Sudan grass and Johnson grass, with illustrations.

MT. PLEASANT, MICH.—The recently formed Michigan Seed Farms, composed of members of the Harris Bros. Seed Co., of this place, will take over the growing and wholesale end of the business.

NEW YORK.—The American Seed Tape Co. has been formed in this city with a capital of $500,000. G. A. Mead, A. J. Case and H. E. Monahan, 134 West Thirtieth street, are among the organizers.

NEW YORK.—I. L. Radwaner has moved to his new establishment at 83-85 Water street, where he has 14,000 square feet of floor space with a complete line of seed cleaning machinery; also, up-to-date laboratory equipment.

SEATTLE, WASH.—W. H. Lilly, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., will leave October 5 on the S. S. Empress of Russia from Vancouver for Japan to investigate conditions in connection with the buying agency this firm has had there for a number of years.

In a report by Consul General Thomas Sammons at Shanghai, China, to the United States department of commerce it is stated that bean exports of both yellow and broad beans showed a decrease of $1,598,087 in value in 1915, indicating further diminished quantities shipped to countries at war in Europe.

COSMOS, DOUBLE.—The new double cosmos, which comes in white and pink, is a very desirable new type and if this strain can be had in the early flowering form it will be one of the most desirable annuals for cut flowers. Some early flowering plants have already made their appearance.

Newark, N. J. Seed Trade.

The S. A. Rogers Co., 14 Branford place, has issued a special fall list of seeds, bulbs and plants, which they handle.

At the seed store of J. F. Noll & Co. we found President Alexander Forbes busy and cheerful and an air of prosperity prevades the establishment. President Forbes is much interested in the prospective workings of the new law relating to the testing and inspection of seeds, which goes into effect, in New Jersey, November 1. Fred S. Peterson, of the staff of this store, and well known in the trade, was taken violently ill on September 4. The trouble was diagnosed as appendicitis, and he was removed to the Alexian Brothers' hospital, Elizabeth, and operated on. He is now recovering.

The seed stand, 10-11 Centre market, formerly conducted by the late Edward C. Eaton, is now leased by Ferdinand F. Baumer.

At the store of the J. F. Wilson Seed Co., Orange street, everybody was busy and cheerful.

Bean Outlook.

LeRoy, N. Y., September 18.—Our western New York districts have as yet had no general killing frosts. On the night of September 2 some low, exposed spots were somewhat touched by frost. We do not understand that Michigan has had damaging frosts up to this date. The outlook for the bean crop is very discouraging. This state will, unquestionably, give the smallest yield in many seasons. The planting was made late and the extreme heat and drought has retarded proper growth and development and the greater portion of the crop is still unfit for harvest and does not seem to be maturing as rapidly as it should, doubtless owing to the light rains which we have recently received and that seem to tend to produce a second growth on many plants. The Michigan crop also is short and it would seem as though the bean yield would be far below a normal crop.

Grand Rapids, Mich., September 18.—We have had no frosts as yet that have done any damage. The bean crop in Michigan for commercial purposes is turning out much better than expected two or three weeks ago, which has been caused by the favorable weather we have been having. In some sections it is almost double what it would have been if we had had unfavorable weather during the last three weeks or since the first of September. The garden bean crop is shorter than usual. However, this is also better, due to recent conditions.

Sheboygan, Wis., September 18.—Our information at this writing is that the bean crop in Michigan has been only slightly damaged by the recent frost, but that in Wisconsin it has been damaged from 30 to 40 per cent. In some cases the late varieties made no crop at all, but some of the early varieties are fairly past danger.

To All Florists Using French Bulbs:

Vaughan's Seed Store advertisements and catalogues offer these bulbs by stated measure and in regular cases. Others report seeing advertisements of this stock which do not give measurements of the bulbs.

Why not get samples of French Paper Whites and the like this season before you place orders?

Vaughan's prices, grading considered, will average over fifteen per cent lower than those of our competitors, because bought early by our own agent in France and paid for in cash or on short terms.

Our present price of $7.85 per 1000 for the largest size of Paper White Grandiflora now obtainable, proves this statement.

Advance contract orders booked by us for Paper Whites will be filled with the larger sizes.

Write for our delivered prices on Lily Bulbs. Vaughan's Formosum run larger in all grades than those of other dealers.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

HARTFORD, CONN.—W. W. Hunt & Co. have resumed business at their former location, 24 State street, which was closed temporarily.

THE Michigan Agricultural College experiment station, East Lansing, has issued Special Bulletin No. 78, entitled, "Christmas Tree Plantations," covering experiments with Norway spruce since the station plantation was established in 1909.

WHEN in need of stock or supplies of any kind in a hurry it will be a great advantage to have a copy of the latest edition of our Trade Directory at hand for names and addresses. The price of the latest (1916) edition is $3 per copy, postpaid.

Apple Forecast by Varieties.

The forecast of the total apple production as reported September 1, by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States department of agriculture, is 67,679,000 barrels of three bushels each, as compared with 76,670,000 barrels estimated produced last year, a decrease of 12 per cent. The leading varieties and estimated production in barrels are as follows: Baldwin, 9,302,000; Ben Davis, 9,245,000; Winesap, 3,794,000; Greening, 3,739,000; Northern Spy, 3,602,000; Wealthy, 2,863,000; Rome Beauty, 2,770,000; Jonathan, 2,432,000; York Imperial, 2,403,000; Grimes Golden, 2,050,000; Oldenburg, 2,001,000; Stayman Winesap, 1,380,000; Limbertwig, 1,318,000; Pippin, 1,277,000; Tompkins King, 1,174,000; Fameuse (Snow), 1,005,000; Golden Russet, 1,002,000; Yellow Bellflower, 766,000.

Holland Shipments.

In a recent communication received from C. Grootendorst, secretary of the Protective Association of Holland Nurserymen, Boskoop, in regard to a recent report that the Holland-American Line had already taken off several boats, that in all probability more would follow, and that when shipping time arrived there would be little in the way of ocean transportation facilities, the association requests us to state that such reports are highly exaggerated, as the steamship company has only taken off one boat, the S. S. Rotterdam, and has no intention of taking off any others. The Holland-American line has given the association the assurance that the transportation of plants and bulbs will be given the same necessary care as in the past and with sailings as regular as possible.

The delay which caused a shipment of plants to arrive at Washington, D. C., in a practically worthless condition, was according to the association due to a strike which tied up the S. S. Ryndam from March 28 until April 4. This has been satisfactorily settled and chances of future labor troubles are very slight.

N. Y. State Federation of Hort. Societies.

A meeting of the State Federation of Horticultural Societies was held at the state fair in Syracuse, September 14, 1916. Vice President E. A. Bates of Syracuse, presided. There was a good attendance at the meeting, and various reports were given on the work of the different committees during the past year.

A committee consisting of Messrs. McCarthy, Thorpe and White was appointed to draw suitable resolutions on the death of the late president, Wm. F. Kasting.

It was the opinion of the federation that its work would be more effective if there were more meetings during the year. It was therefore voted to hold an annual meeting at the New York state fair grounds in Syracuse during state fair week, a second meeting at Cornell during farmers' week, a meeting in New York City during the spring flower show, and a fourth meeting with some society of the federation at such time as the president might designate.

It was voted to provide for an executive board to consist of the president, secretary and treasurer of the State Federation of Horticultural Societies and the president of each affiliated society in the federation.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, president; Dr. E. A. Bates, Syracuse, first vice-president; George McCarthy, Syracuse, second vice-president; C. H. Vick, Rochester, third vice-president; George E. Thorpe, Syracuse, fourth vice-president; F. A. Danker, Albany, fifth vice-president; E. A. White, Ithaca, secretary; W. A. Adams, Buffalo, treasurer.

It was voted to appoint a committee of the federation to confer with the horticultural council in regard to an appropriation for a horticultural building at the New York state fair. The members elected to this committee were President Pierson and Messrs. Bates, Lumsden, Workman and Thorpe.

E. A. WHITE, Secretary.

The Glory Fern (Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa)

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

This splendid Fern which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over a half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense can not be used at all. Since its introduction some 5 or 6 years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand. With this in mind we have prepared this season an extra large stock, which is in prime condition and we now offer select.

3 inch pots, $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000

4 inch pots, $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100

6 inch pots, $1.00 each

For a Complete list of seasonable stock see our current Wholesale List.

The above offer is intended for the trade only.

GARLAND MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
DES PLAINES, ILLINOIS
 LOUIS WITTBOLD, President.

Jersey City, N. J.

When one can reach Jersey City in three minutes from New York, by the "Hudson Tubes," what is the use of staying away? Furthermore, the city has many interesting features that are worthy of mention. The great factories of Colgate & Co. are located there, and it may be stated that Colonel Austen Colgate, a liberal patron of horticulture, is now a candidate, subject to the republican primaries, for governor of New Jersey. There may be more than one Patrick O'Mara, but we only know the Patrick O'Mara, of Peter Henderson & Co., who is also well known to the florists and seedsmen throughout this country, and, though during business hours he is found in New York, his home is in Jersey City. It will therefore be noted, that regardless of the ammunition makers, careless railroad brakemen and barge captains, there are good reasons why Jersey City should remain on the map.

William Entenmann, 308 Ocean avenue, has a neat range and an attractive store. Being located at the entrance of New York Bay and Bay View cemeteries, he has a good retail trade, but also grows fine stock that is sold at wholesale. Noteworthy at present is an exceptionally fine stock of poinsettias coming on. He has 2,000 plants in six to twelve-inch pans and about 1,500 in four and five-inch pots. He also has a good stock of chrysanthemums, which will be followed by geraniums and other bedding plants.

Peter Henderson & Co. have an extensive range and gardens, or trial grounds, in Jersey City. On our last visit, September 16, a noteworthy feature was a field of cannas in great variety and in splendid bloom.

Robert Leach, 676 Garfield avenue, has a great stock of chrysanthemums coming on and will also have bedding plants for the spring trade. His range is located in the zone of the recent great explosion and was damaged to the extent of $1,000.

Philip Dosch now has the range at 29 Wegman parkway, formerly conducted by John Leach, who has retired from business. Mr. Dosch is a hard worker and is now showing a fine stock of chrysanthemums.

Gotthardt & Son have a considerable glass area and a good store at 319 Ocean avenue. Being directly opposite the cemetery, they also have a large retail trade.

Many good features were noticed in the parks and private estates of the city. A. F. F.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—An addition to cost $5,000 will be erected at the range of Hembricker & Cole.

Newark, N. J.

The weather of the past week was hot and dry, for September, and consequently unfavorable to retail trade, but with funeral work, an occasional wedding and sales of bunches and plants, all the florists have had something to do.

At Wolfinger's we found the force busy on a large order for funeral work, and no one was busier than the genial manager, William Strahan. At this store we met, unexpectedly, the cheerful and industrious Robert Shock, representing M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia. He reports that his firm will soon occupy their new building, on Spring Garden street.

On September 13, Philips Brothers arranged a fine wedding decoration at Flemington, N. J., a considerable distance from Newark, which shows that the name and fame of the Broad Street florists is scattered broadcast, so to speak. E. R. Schureman, buyer for this store, has been on a two weeks' vacation.

At the store of W. R. James, Bloomfield and Mt. Prospect avenues, we found many good features, one of which was a large collection of plants in all sizes, very tastefully arranged for display.

Ernest Radaney, another Central avenue florist, located near the cemetery, has a prosperous retail business and also grows a variety of stock. He has a very active assistant in Mrs. Radaney.

F. A. Kuehn, 633 Central avenue, keeps quite busy fitting up his greenhouses for a winter campaign. He has a nice stock of ferns, chrysanthemums and bedding plants coming on.

At Begerow's we noticed very clever features in plants and plant arrangement in their show windows. This firm has considerable glass area and grows a variety of stock.

George Penek is another Broad street retail florist who is active in the business and a frequent buyer in the New York wholesale district.

Henry A. Stroebell is to be commended for taste, both in the furnishing of his store and the arrangement of plants and flowers. A. F. F.

Vegetable Growers' Association

Ninth Annual Convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, Hotel La Salle, Chicago, September 26-29, 1916.

Programme Full of Interest.

With a programme replete with papers and discussions of exceptional interest, the ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was called to order by Vice-President Howard W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., in the absence of President M. L. Ruetenic, Cleveland, O., at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, Tuesday morning, September 26, about 250 members being in attendance. The meeting will continue until Friday, September 29, closing with the annual banquet that evening. The visitors were welcomed on behalf of the city by Edward E. Gore, representing Mayor Thompson, on behalf of the Chicago convention committee by Chairman Fred Lautenschlager, and on behalf of the vegetable growers of Cook county by A. Geweke, president of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' and Farmers' Association, E. A. Dunbar, of Ashtabula, O., treasurer of the national association, responding. Following the annual address of the president, the reports of the secretary and the treasurer, and the convention announcements, a recess was taken until afternoon. The Chicago convention committee, in charge of the arrangements, has left nothing undone to insure the fullest measure of success for the convention, both as regards matters of trade interest and entertainment, the local growers and allied trades co-operating in the welcome with that spirit of open-handed hospitality that has made Chicago famous as a convention city.

Vice-President Selby in his address remarked that the increased prices of supplies and labor are proving a serious problem to the growers and that they are not making adequate profits on their crops, as prices have not advanced with the cost of materials. The wholesale markets, he stated, are working more closely with the growers than before and the prevailing get-together spirit is beneficial to both.

A. Geweke in his reference to the importance of weights and measures stated that being a national issue the association should take some action with regard to it at this meeting.

Fred Lautenschlager spoke enthusiastically of the success of the convention and told the visitors that everything possible would be done to make their stay as pleasant and interesting as possible.

E. A. Dunbar, first president of the association, urged those present to attend as many conventions as possible as there is almost always something to be learned with regard to new vegetables and methods.

Secretary Severance recommended that a change be made in the constitution which would broaden the scope of the membership and that a committee be appointed to submit plans for this work at the next meeting.

An invitation to hold the next annual convention at Springfield, Mass., was read and referred to the executive committee.

At the afternoon session L. R. Jones, professor of Plant Pathology, Wisconsin Experiment Station, Madison, gave an illustrated lecture on "Certain Diseases of Truck Crops and Their Control." Henry G. Bell, Chicago, gave an illustrated address on "Soil Fertility in Relation to Market Gardening."

The address "Refrigeration in Relation to Marketing Vegetables," by Arnold H. Goelz, Chicago, was also very interesting and with the other two took up the entire afternoon.

The programme for the remaining days includes an inspection tour of north side gardens and greenhouses, among them the large cut flower range of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, with dinner at the Wayside Inn, followed by a demonstration of the Beeman tractor on a nearby vacant lot. For later sessions, papers and addresses are promised as follows: "Better Seeds," C. E. Durst, Urbana, leader; Report of Committee on Nomenclature and Varieties of Vegetables, C. E. Durst, secretary; "The Seedsmen's Attitude Toward Nomenclature," Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; Report of Committee on Seed Inspection and Certification, D. N. Shoemaker, Washington, D. C.; "The Relation of the Seedsmen's Disclaimer to the Purchase of Vegetable Seeds," A. B. Stone, Madison, Wis.; "Seed Selection and Plant Improvement for the Vegetable Grower," A. T. Erwin, leader; "Greenhouse Problems," R. L. Watts, State College, Pa., leader; "Marketing Vegetables," H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., leader; "Extension Work for Vegetable Growers," C. W. Waid, East Lansing, Mich., leader.

The annual banquet of the association will be held at the Hotel LaSalle, Friday, September 29, at six p. m.

The Trade Exhibits.

The trade exhibits and the vegetable displays completely filled the large roof garden of the hotel and were at all times a center of interest and the number of visitors who attended kept the courteous representatives in charge of the various booths busy imparting information. The exhibits were not only numerous but included a wide range of products—from a refrigerating machine in operation to displays of vegetables grown by the school children of Cook county, all of which were excellent. The trade displays included the following:

Truck Crop Diseases and Their Control.

Illustrated address by L. R. Jones, professor of plant pathology, Wisconsin State experiment station, delivered at the ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, Chicago, September 26-29, 1916.

The disease question is each year increasing in importance for the truck grower. The longer a crop is grown in the same region, the greater its accumulation of disease. It has already, in certain truck crops, become a quesand rotation are the big factors with disease resisting strains, where obtainable. The cabbage is subject to a number of serious diseases and these have proved the limiting factor in continued success with this crop. Certain of these, notably black rot and black leg, are due to germs introduced with the seed. Fortunately, it is easy to avoid much of this danger by seed disinfection. For this purpose soak the seed

The most serious disease, however, known as yellows, can not be controlled by seed treatment. This yellows disease is caused by a fungus parasite (Fusarium), which lives in the soil and attacks the roots of the plants. Once introduced it will persist for years in the soil, so that even long crop rotations do not fully overcome the difficulty. Soil so infested is "cabbage sick" and cabbage culture has proved no longer profitable upon it. This condition exists most strikingly in certain sections of southeastern Wisconsin where cabbage growing was formerly most successful.

Trials with various remedial measures by the plant pathologists of the Wisconsin Agricultural College have continued over some six years in the Racine-Kenosha district. No scheme of fertilization, soil sterilization or cropping has proved practicable. Fortunately, however, by continued selection from the Ferry Hollander or Danish Bullhead a strain of cabbage has been perfected which is highly resistant to the disease. This has been grown successfully on even the "sickest" old cabbage fields with almost perfect immunity from yellows, whereas the commercial strains alongside were practical failures. Thus in 1914, when the disease was very bad, the following results were secured on the trial grounds near Kenosha:

Field I.—Commercial: 56% lived; 31.5% headed; 1.75 tons per A. Resistant: 100% lived; 100% headed; 18.3 tons per A.

Field II.—Commercial: 36% lived; 17% headed; 2.25 tons per A. Resistant: 100% lived; 95.5% headed; 19.2 tons per A.

This disease resistant strain is being called the Wisconsin Hollander. About 100 pounds of the seed was distributed last spring to over 100 cabbage growers, and planted largely on "sick" soil. The yellows has been usually bad this summer, but this seed has given a good crop when commercial strains alongside were partial or complete failures. All that seems necessary to insure commercial success now is to continue to get this seed from plants grown on "sick" soil, otherwise it may tion of conquering the disease or discontinuing that crop. The recommendation that commonly suggests itself when one wishes to control a disease is to spray with something. As a matter of fact, relatively few truck diseases yield to spraying. For apple disease—scab, bitter rot, black rot—proper spraying is a specific remedy. This holds indeed for most orchard crops and spraying is the panacea for certain potato blights and rot. But with leading truck crops, bean, celery, cucumber, pea, etc., spraying is of minor importance, or altogether useless. The points to emphasize in a general way are clean seed and sanitation, including crop rotation. The peculiar possibilities of selecting disease resistant varieties or strains will be stressed later.

The onion is a case in point. Its worst diseases are borne on the seed or sets and persist in the soil. Yet we wish to grow onions without rotation. For the smut, formalin should be used as a soil disinfectant by attaching a drip tank to the seeder, applying formalin in the drill. This simple measure may double the yield. Use one pint formalin to 16 gallons water at the rate of one gallon to 185 feet of row, 200 gallons per acre. In addition, it is to be noted that with this and also with smudge or anthracnose and the rot the germs are distributed on the bulbs from diseased fields. The practice of plowing under old bulbs as fertilizer on the onion soil is decidedly unsanitary and sure to bring trouble sooner or later. Put them on potatoes or other fields.

With the cabbage, there is a greater variety of diseases, but, here again, clean seed—disinfected—clean seed bed for 20 minutes in a solution containing one part of standard formaldehyde (40 per cent solution, also known as formalin) in 250 parts of water one ounce formaldehyde to two gallons water. Then rinse well with clear water and promptly dry the seed. After such seed disinfection, it is of the utmost importance to choose clean soil for the location of the seed bed. This means that the seed bed should be made in a new place every year.

deteriorate. The growers of the Racine-Kenosha district are attending earnestly to this and have just harvested over 300 pounds of seed from resistant heads selected last year. Several thousand heads have been selected and will be stored for seed growing next season.

This practical success with the Wisconsin Hollander has led the way to similar work with the kraut and some other domestic types. It has been easy to succeed in this way with the Volga and Houser, and the results of this summer indicate that the same will be true with the more valuable kraut strains, All Seasons and Brunswick. Since the yellows is widespread in the kraut growing regions this will prove of more general interest even than the Hollander.

Seed Selection and Improvement.

Paper by Professor A. T. Erwin, Iowa agricultural experiment station, Ames, delivered at the ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, Chicago, September 28-29, 1916.

Our subject involves two propositions. The first is that there is room for seed improvement and second, that, selection is an important agency to this end.

In the brief time allotted me I shall endeavor to discuss the latter subject in its more practical aspects, particularly from the standpoint of the individual truck grower. The present is a day of specialization. To learn to do some one thing, and do it well, is the trend of the times. In harmony with this trend the seedsman has made for himself a place and as a distributing agency he occupies a necessary and important position in the organization of horticultural industries. However, there are certain phases of seed growing which the individual grower should depend upon himself rather than some one else to perform.

May we state briefly some of the reasons why. First, it makes his work more certain. He knows for sure that he is planting the particular variety he wants. The "far off oxen is likely to have long horns." We recently visited a noted watermelon region. They were producing a good type of Tom Watson and yet a considerable proportion of the growers were buying new seed each year. Some of them were lured by beautiful photos and superlative adjectives, and others thought they could buy seed cheaper than they could grow it themselves. A grower will get out of his seed just about what he puts into it. If it costs him time and money to grow good seed, it surely will his seedsman, too, and to expect otherwise of the dealer is an unreasonable assumption on the face of it. In consequence of looking to some one else to do a thing they should have done themselves, a number of growers were billing out mixed cars and soft rined melons. Even where there was only a sprinkling of the latter, the dealer still found his chance to scale down heavily on quality.

Gardening is in many ways strictly a local proposition. The development of local strains of a standard variety offers an excellent and profitable field of investment. In the Pleasant Valley region of southeastern Iowa, a large acreage is devoted to onions. Growers report this season that there was a difference of 10 days between the time of maturing of the home-grown seed and seed of the same variety secured from the east. Often a few days' difference in the time of getting onto the market means the difference between breaking even and a nice margin of profit. There is also an excellent field in the development of local disease resistant strains. In sections of the corn belt the cabbage yellows disease was unusually severe the past summer. In fields where there was as high as 90 per cent loss, an occasional plant could be found which was perfectly healthy and happy under these conditions. There is conclusive evidence that seed grown from these resistant mother plants will produce an equally resistant type under the same conditions. This is true, however, only when the crop is grown under similar conditions. Strains resistant to cabbage yellows developed under Dr. Jones in the Racine-Wisconsin district exemplify this fact. The Racine strains, when grown in Iowa, show a decided resistance over the common type, yet do not hold up as they have in Wisconsin. Under the radically different climatic conditions of the corn belt this is to be expected, hence the problem is in a measure a local one. The development of rust resistant strains of asparagus may be cited as another example of the possibilities along this line.

This year on our potato experimental plots, we had some 10 acres in which the seed had been quartered and the four quarters from a given tuber planted in succession. The summer was terrifically hot and certain diseases were unusually abundant. Here was a curly dwarf hill. Tracing back there were the three others all from the same mother tuber, a degenerate family. "As you sow so shall you reap" is not a figure of speech in the garden business.

Seed growing is also an important means of maintaining market standards. Monday morning we have a lot of cracks and over-ripe cantaloupes.

They are fine stock, but have stood one day too long. Shall we take a chance on getting by with the lot or junk them? Neither, clean them up for seed. In this way you will realize a fair return and most important of all, you will not impair the reputation of your pack. The latter is one of your most valuable assets and should be most zealously guarded.

Tomatoes are becoming plentiful and your market is being overstocked. Turn a part of the supply into seed and let the market clean up. By this method coupled with co-operation of the larger local growers, ruinous prices can be avoided. This plan has of course its limitations. Seed of any given class of plants should be grown only in the regions where they reach a high degree of perfection. We have used the term local strains rather than new varieties, advisedly. We already have too many varieties and the markets must be standardized. We need better strains of our best varieties. To make the best better should be our motto.

In a word, we believe that every gardener should grow his own seed of those kinds which reach a high degree of development in that region. By doing so he can be more certain as to what he is planting. He can develop local strains of superior merit as to earliness, hardiness, disease resistance or other characters of value as his conditions may demand. In times of a surplus he can protect his local market and also the reputation of his pack by working his product into seed to be disposed of to the seed dealer rather than to the public as fresh vegetables. By so doing he is also converting a perishable product into a more stable form.

No item connected with gardening is more important than that of good seed of the right variety. So far as practicable the grower should look to himself rather than some one else for this supply. Do it yourself and then you will know it is done right, or at least, if it is not, you will know who to blame.

Acacias.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Can you give any information about acacias? When does the sap begin to run? Which do you consider the finest of the acacias? Which are the most difficult to propagate and what is the best temperature?

SUBSCRIBER.

In your inquiry I take it that you mean the regular greenhouse acacia, of which the following are probably the best and most extensively grown. Acacia armata and A. Drummondii for common pot culture and A. pubescens for trelliswork. They may be propagated either from seed sown under glass, as soon as ripe, or from cuttings made from half ripened wood in June under glass, kept shaded and cool without bottom heat. They are rather slow, but sure to root.

Your question, "when does the sap begin to run?", suggests the possibility that you mean the Rose acacia or Robinia hispida, the similar but more treelike growing R. viscosa. Both of these can be propagated from root cuttings out of doors, although seed can readily be had of the R. viscosa. The further handling of the stock is the same as with any other shrub or tree.

American Dahlia Society

New York Show, September 26-28.

The annual exhibition of the American Dahlia Society opened under the most favorable conditions, splendid weather, a great variety of fine stock and a fine attendance. The competition was keen enough to make the show interesting. The gold medal was won by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., that firm's display, arranged with grasses by George W. Kerr, being very fine. W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass., was awarded first prize for 100 flowers of cactus varieties, also first for the best collection of 50 kinds. Other first prize winners in the commercial classes were John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, L. I., N. Y.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Harold Cottam & Sons, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.; John M. Hunter & Sons, Englewood, N. J., and C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn. There were meritorious exhibits by Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons, White Marsh, Md., and George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I. In the gardeners' classes, Mrs. J. Mathieson, Huntington, N. Y., James Kerby, gardener, received the first prize for 50 varieties. P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was awarded a number of first and special prizes. Wm. P. Carpenter, Ft. Thomas, Ky., secured important first prize in the amateur class, and F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., was awarded six first and three second prizes in the same section.

At the business meeting all the officers were re-elected. Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., president; J. Harrison Dick, Brooklyn, N. Y., secretary; F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., treasurer; Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; J. B. Norton, College Park, Md., and W. W. Wilmore, Denver, Colo., vice-presidents. The affairs of the society were shown to be in good condition.

The selection of the next meeting place was left to the executive committee. At six p. m. an informal but very enjoyable dinner was served at the Hotel Navarre to about 40 including officers, judges, members, their ladies and the press, President Vincent closing this function with a short but humorous address.

The judges were Peter Duff, Prof. Norton, John McMichaels, Alexander McKenzie and James Fraser.

President Vincent's Address.

Ladies and Gentlemen, members of the American Dahlia Society, I welcome you to this our second annual meeting.

We are not yet a year and a half old, but have the strength and vigor equal to some of the older floral organizations. Now, with two successful exhibitions to our credit, we feel well recompensed for the exertions we have made, and if success is to be continued, of which I have no doubt, it is in your hands. We have every assurance and belief that you will do your part to back up the officers.

As your retiring president I heartily express my appreciation of your kindness toward me and the good work done by all of you during my incumbency of the office. I request you kindly to continue in the good work and do your very best for those you may elect, as I assure you I will continue to do my little. Much of our success is due to our worthy secretary, and William A. Eagleson, secretary of the American Institute, and the other officers.

The premiums offered at this meeting, we think, are very appropriate and numerous. The Institute has done grandly by us; also the trade, and other kindred organizations and individual members, for which we are all truly thankful.

NOMENCLATURE.

I would recommend the continuance of our present nomenclature committee, who have already done good work. They have a big task before them and it will possibly take several years before they can say it is complete. There is much to be accomplished, both in classification and in the elimination of duplicate varieties. Many are misnamed or similar varieties raised by growers who did not know that a similar variety already existed. There was no society in this country at the time of our inception to look after these matters or adjudicate upon a new variety. There has been also a few, and we are glad to say a very few, unscrupulous dealers who tried to mislead the public by giving new names to old or worthless varieties, thus misleading buyers and doing the dahlia cause harm. But with the education we are giving our members we will soon educate the buyers. With the description of new varieties given in our bulletins from time to time, they will know at once, when the plant blooms, if they have the true variety or not.

MEMBERSHIP.

It is my opinion that it would be advisable to amend the by-laws in relation to new membership and dues. There is a great deal of objection to the initiation fee. I think that $2 for active and $1 straight for associate members, or $10 for club membership (affiliation) would bring us in more money than we are likely to get by sticking out for the membership fee.

AFFILIATION WITH THE S. A. F.

A number of our members worked hard to get a sufficient number of S. A. F. members so that we would have the 100 required for representation with that body, but failed. We need this to put us on a par with other societies. All good work needs some little sacrifice from the individual. Will you, as a member of this society, help us in this? It has to be done previous to January, 1917, to entitle us to representation for that year.

DAHLIA TRIAL GROUNDS.

We have two trial grounds in different sections of the country. One is at the New York experiment station at Geneva, under Prof. F. H. Hall; the other at the St. Paul (Minn.) experimental farm, under Prof. Le Roy Cady. Prof. J. B. Norton of the Maryland agricultural station, and others are experimenting with numerous varieties and all types. We think that we will be able to give the dahlia world, in our quarterly bulletins, some interesting and valuable information during the coming year, and anyone having anything interesting to communicate is invited to send it to the publisher of the bulletin.

Secretary Dick's Report.

The support that the American Dahlia Society has received since its inception in New York, May 10, 1915, has been eminently encouraging. To the end of August, 1916, the total paid-up membership was 244, being 169 active members, and 75 associate members.

The first annual show was held September 24-25 in the Museum of Natural History, New York. With all flowers that are cultivated entirely out of doors there is always a large element of risk, owing to periods of bad or unfavorable weather. It happened that the period of three weeks immediately preceding the exhibition was the hottest and driest of the whole summer and autumn, terminating in violent thunderstorms with rain, which destroyed the flowers of several of the large growers. Despite these drawbacks the show was a good one and was attended by 35,000 visitors.

Early in the present year a change was made necessary in the secretaryship of the society, owing to the increasing pressure of Joseph J. Lane's business duties. Mr. Lane did yeoman service in his part in getting the society started and placing it on a good running basis, and the committee publicly acknowledged its indebtedness to him. Since March the duties of the secretarial office have been undertaken by J. Harrison Dick.

The society has made progress in the work which it was established to promote and conduct. A quarterly bulletin of information has been published. By and through this the members are kept informed of what is being done, not only in the society, but in the dahlia world generally, and the notes on the cultural treatment of dahlias have been much appreciated. Four issues of the bulletin have appeared. Copies have been distributed both by the society and by members to many dahlia lovers who have not yet joined our organization. The greater our membership the bigger and better will the bulletins be. They cost considerable to publish and only in proportion to the increase in membership can the volume of the bulletins be augmented. Trials of dahlias have been undertaken and reports will be published. The thanks of the executive committee is tendered to the directorates of the two experiment stations and to Professors F. H. Hall and Le Roy Cady.

An affiliation scheme whereby local dahlia clubs or associations can receive certain substantial privileges and assistance on payment of the nominal sum of $10 annually, was put in operation early in the summer. The Short Hills (N. J.) Garden Club, and the Oyster Bay (N. Y.) Horticultural Society, have become affiliated, and negotiations with this object in view are in progress with others.

Lloyd E. Shirley, of Garland Mfg. Co.

A scheme of points for judging dahlias has been prepared and will be placed before the members for their suggestions. It is hoped that an authoritative, practicable scheme will be endorsed and adopted.

The carefully prepared scheme for the classification of all the types of dahlias was published in March, and has been adopted by many of the leading commercial growers in their catalogues, as well as by others. It is the wish of the committee that this classification arrangement be regarded as official and be adhered to.

The definition of "Amateur" as applied to our exhibitor members has also been published and its adoption at the annual meeting is recommended.

An artistic certificate of merit has been prepared. This will be awarded to dahlia novelties at the society's exhibition or at the exhibitions of its affiliated societies, or at such other exhibitions or meetings as your executive committee endorses. An original medal of pleasing design has been made in silver and bronze respectively. It is hoped that later this medal will also be struck in gold.

In some parts of the country the past growing season has been very trying, even resulting in heavy losses owing to the rotting of the roots by the prolonged rains. In other sections, as in Michigan and the middle west, a drought seriously crippled the growth of the plants at midsummer. Despite these penalizing difficulties the interest in dahlias at this time is surprisingly great. New dahlia clubs are springing up, shows are being arranged, numberless seedling dahlias are being bred and raised, the use of dahlias for gardens and as cut flowers for December is increasing, and there is evidence on all sides of the great need of a strong, guiding, leading, authoritative society devoted to the interest of this noble flower, and this is furnished in the American Dahlia Society, national in its aims, its character and its membership.

State Fairs.

The following is a list of coming state fairs with the names and addresses of the superintendents of the horticultural and floricultural departments so far as obtainable:

September 23-30, Sedalia.—Missouri State Fair. J. C. Evans, Olden, Mo., superintendent of horticulture and floriculture.

September 25-29, Trenton.—Trenton Inter-State Fair. Arthur J. Farley, New Brunswick, N. J., superintendent of horticulture and floriculture.

September 25-30, Helena.—Montana State Fair. M. L. Dean, Missoula, Mont., superintendent of horticulture and floriculture.

September 25-30, Salem.—Oregon State Fair. J. E. Reynolds, Salem, Ore., superintendent of horticulture; Edyth Tozier Weathered, Salem, Ore., superintendent of floriculture.

September 26-30, Douglas.—Wyoming State Fair. Mrs. H. G. Peters, Douglas, superintendent of floriculture.

October 2-7, Salt Lake City.—Utah State Fair. Wm. O. Knudson, Salt Lake City, superintendent of horticulture and floriculture.

October 5-14, Birmingham.—Alabama State Fair. Mrs. J. B. Reid, 212 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., superintendent of floriculture.

October 9-14, Richmond.—Virginia State Fair. W. C. Saunders, Richmond, Va., general manager.

October 10-13, Hagerstown.—Maryland State Fair.

October 14-19, Dallas.—Texas State Fair. T. I. Wood, superintendent of horticulture.

October 16-21, Raleigh.—State Fair of North Carolina. Professor W. N. Hutt, Raleigh, N. C., superintendent of horticulture and floriculture.

November 1-6, Shreveport.—State Fair of Louisiana. L. N. Bruegerhoff, Shreveport, La., secretary.

November 2-11, Macon.—Georgia State Fair. Carling Schatzman, superintendent of horticulture and floriculture, care of Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga.

November 13-18, Phoenix.—Arizona State Fair.

November 14-18, Baltimore, Md.—"Maryland Week." Fifth Regiment Armory. Thomas B. Symons, secretary, College Park, Md.

December 4-13, Jackson.—Mississippi State Fair.

THE ROSE.

Fall Preparations.

Early September finds the growers in the eastern coast states with a night temperature of 48 degrees outside. Pretty cool, eh? Just cool enough to make it necessary for the rose grower to have a little steam heat circulating along about 3 a. m., with a sniff of sulphur in the houses which are allowed about six inches of air through the night. Look out for these cool mornings; do not let the houses go below 62 degrees. Call in the night fireman and give him careful instructions. The danger lies at this time in allowing too great a difference between the day and night temperature; 95 to 100 degrees at noon and 50 degrees at night is not at all beneficial to the plants, and unless one wants a serious setback all around, it is advisable to start the boiler. The careless grower might say: "Oh, it will soon be hot enough again," and "This cool spell is only 'a flash in the pan,'" but remember to take advantage of these cool spells and use a little sulphur on the pipes, bank the fires early, or, if the weather permits, one can allow the fires to go out; but by all means keep the condensation off the foliage in the early morning and even the temperature up somewhat when the temperature outside hovers around 60 degrees or below.

Early planted stock should now be far enough advanced to show a few good blooms here and there. Do not let many come in at this time, but carefully pinch back all the smaller plants regularly, being careful to build up the plants of equal size and productiveness by the latter part of October or November, especially the young stocks.

Early planted stock on raised benches, if going good, should now be filling the soil with roots and will perhaps require a light top dressing. This condition can quite easily be determined by examining the soil at the surface. If the surface is hard, and the roots are near the surface, a light top dressing of shredded cow manure can be applied to good advantage, or some old thoroughly rotted cow manure or any old hotbed manure that can be broken up quite finely. A light layer just sufficient to barely cover the soil will answer unless there has been much setting of the soil. Often where the soil has not been firmly packed when filling the benches, it will settle an inch or more. When this happens, a layer, half soil and manure, well mixed, should be used to bring the surface up to the required point, which is about an inch from the top edge of the bench siding. Unless the plants are perfectly healthy and in good color, it would be advisable to fill up the space gradually, using just a small amount of the compost from time to time, noticing the effect on the plants.

All young stock (or old, carried over stock for that matter) should be kept tied up in good shape right along; do not squeeze them in so doing, but tie them rather openly. Putting one tie to each plant is not much of a way, either. If it takes six ties to a plant, let it have six ties, but by all means avoid crowding the foliage and sweating the plants into a dose of blackspot or a loss of foliage.

The carried over or pruned plants in the solid borders should be kept pinched right along and will require a good mulch along about the second pinch as a rule. This should be of good cow manure, preferably about half decomposed. Apply when the soil is in a condition to take a fairly good watering, but not by any means on the dry side. Give the mulch a good washing in and, to avoid waste, water down the mulch almost as fast as it is being put on and when it comes to mulching, this work should be done quickly, using as much help as possible to complete the task quickly.

At the first sign of green fly, in fact, before there is a sign of the little pest, one should fumigate lightly. If this is done very early in the morning, and the house closed for an hour or so and this done quite frequently, the expense of fumigating for the entire season will be a minimum one. We strongly advocate the use of the fumigating paper for this work as being the cheapest in the long run and absolutely the safest. At this season one should have the powder gun handy, and do not wait for mildew or black spot to make their appearance, either; a dusting of grape dust at least twice in 10 days will usually keep the foliage clean until the sulphur can be applied to the steam pipes regularly. Also, use a little air-slacked lime, dusted around under the tables and the plants at the base, especially the American Beauties or any variety that is subject to spot. Keep the walks clean, allow no dripping faucets, and do not forget to do all the painting inside and out while the weather is yet fine. For this work right now, the overworked word, "Preparedness," does seem to apply to the rose grower, who takes time by the forelock.

Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Dallas, Tex.

The accompanying illustration shows the new establishment of the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Dallas, Tex. An attractive feature is the landscape scene on the wall, the carpet bedding and sunken garden being in beautiful colors, as are the green shrubs, trees and lawn, while in the perspective, the figure of the lady coming down the path leading from the house appears most life-like. While the painting of this attractive mural decoration was in progress, the audience who watched the clever artist often numbered as many as 500, the location being a very prominent corner. The interior of the store, the decoration of which will require about 30 days more to finish, will have for the color scheme old ivory with a light margin of green. It will be one of the finest flower shops in the South.

Dahlia Show at San Francisco.

A dahlia show will be held under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, the California State Floral Society and the California Dahlia Society at the Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, Calif., October 3-4, 1916. Prizes will be awarded in 30 classes, with divisions for both professionals and amateurs. Applications for space, etc., should be addressed to H. Plath, manager, 210 Lawrence avenue, San Francisco, Calif.

Gardener Succeeds Knopf Floral Co.

The Charles Knopf Floral Co., well known wholesalers, Richmond, Ind., has been succeeded by William H. Gardener. Stock at this range is in fine condition. Business is very good and all indications point to a splendid fall demand. The new proprietor has no difficulty in finding a ready market for everything grown.

LANG FLORAL AND NURSERY CO.'S NEW STORE, DALLAS, TEX.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

EXAMINING COMMITTEES.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Otis street, Boston, Mass.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 West Twenty-sixth street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wietor (chairman), George Asmus, Thomas W. Head. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 7, 14, 21, 28 and November 4, 11, 18, 25.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

Feeding.

Feeding the plants, or in other words, applying liquid manure, is done with the aim in view of stimulating the growth of the plants and improving the quality of their blooms, the success or failure of the operation depending greatly on the condition of the plants and the treatment that has been given them up to this time. Chrysanthemums are heavy feeders and require a liberal amount of fertilizers to produce high grade blooms, but unless the growth of the plants is strong and healthy, with the roots alive and active, the feeding can very easily be overdone and results in a great deal of harm to the plants.

The expert grower of exhibition blooms forms his plans when the plants are small and treats them liberally with fertilizers at the different stages of their growth throughout the season. Plants grown under these conditions have now attained an enormous growth of stem and foliage and require very careful handling as only the man who has guided them through the season and knows what ingredients they have been fed with can judge, but it is much the safest after the buds are set on the highly fed plants to continue the feeding in moderation only.

The feeding of the plants being grown to produce commercial cut blooms is an entirely different matter to the feeding of the exhibition stock; the exhibitor will go to the limit with his plants to get size to the blooms and expects to lose some of his flowers. Should his loss be very small, then he considers himself lucky, but the aim of the grower of commercial blooms is one hundred per cent. perfect flowers. To obtain this extreme, caution must be exercised in the feeding of the plants. Commercial stock planted in a rich composted soil the latter part of May or during the month of June, and the beds mulched once during the summer, does not need any feeding until after the buds are well formed; it should then be carried on once a week until the buds show color. Commence the feeding lightly at first with liquid cow manure, using one-half bushel of cow manure to 50 gallons of water when applied with a watering can, and one bushel of cow manure to the same amount of water if applied through a hose by a Kinney pump. We have used one of these little pumps for years and find that on places that do not have a piped manure system, it is one of the most useful labor saving devices.

The fresh cow manure is put in a barrel of water at the end of the greenhouse, allowed to stand for two days. It is then well stirred up and drawn off through the Kinney pump. We have a fine screen fitted up to put in the barrel for the end of the hose to go in so that the coarse material is not drawn into the hose to clog the pump. After the material is prepared, its application to the beds is not any more work than watering with clear water. After the first two waterings of liquid cow manure, a three-inch potful of nitrate of soda is used along with the manure. When the buds are half formed we have found it a good plan to gradually let up on the liquid manure and give the beds a light top-dressing of pulverized sheep manure, or dried blood. This we find sustains the plants when the manure water is withheld after the buds begin to show color.

Among the commercial varieties well advanced in bud, which were given a manure watering September 11, we note the following: Golden Queen (almost showing color); Crystal Gem, Polly Rose, Marigold, Oconto, Mrs. Paul Moore, Early Rose, October Queen, Alice Day and Chrysolora.

It is very important not to apply liquid manure while the soil is very dry, but water with clear water first and allow it to wait for an hour or two before watering with the manure. The work should be done early in the day and if not extremely hot, bright days should be chosen.

C. W. JOHNSON.

MATTOON, ILL.—A. D. King has returned from a fishing trip and reports excellent sport.

DETROIT, MICH.—Retailers all along the line report light business, mainly due to the scarcity of stock.

HARRISBURG, PA.—The Davenport Flower Shop, 325 Market street, opened for business, September 10, under the management of H. G. Moore.

Washington, D. C.

SURPLUS OF GOOD STOCK.

The supply of stock during the past week has kept in the lead as far as the demand was concerned the quantity being greater than the local market could absorb. Roses, carnations, Easter lilies, dahlias and all seasonable flowers are very plentiful and extra fine in quality. Lily of the valley is the only high priced item, and when quoted at $1 per dozen the retail trade is not inclined to push the sale of it. Orchids are not in very heavy supply but the prices are reasonable.

NOTES.

Miss West, formerly with the Dupont Floral Co., has taken a position with Geo. C. Shaffer. This store also reports business more than satisfactory. They had some very large funeral orders September 23, one wreath being nine feet high and five feet in diameter. This was made of orchids, lily of the valley, Easter lilies and rubrums. The base was of Easter lilies, crotons and cypas leaves.

This is just a "fish story." Wm. F. Gude, while enjoying a short vacation last week, is credited with the capture of a four-foot shark. His friends, many of whom are very fond of shark steak are anxiously awaiting an invitation to a "shark dinner." In a shark of that size there are enough choice cuts of steak to make a fine spread.

J. Harper Heatherington, after a visit to Philadelphia and vicinity, has returned and is satisfied that local stock is better than anything he has seen there.

J. H. Small & Sons are displaying the best carnations in this city. They are grown at their own range.

M. LaBarge, formerly of Burlington, Vt., is now in the employ of the Washington Floral Co.

K. L. Hendrick, formerly of Norfolk, Va., has joined the force at Z. D. Blackstone's.

Visitors: J. Goudy, W. Heacock and W. Lake, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Cutler Ryerson, Newark, N. J.

G. C. D.

CLYDE, O.—The Clyde Floral Co. has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Manuses Bros., florists, bankrupt, expect to pay about five cents on the dollar at the end of the year.

MCCOOK, NEB.—C. H. Brown has sold a half interest in the McCook Greenhouses to N. P. Nelson, formerly of Rexford, Kan.

WICHITA, KAN.—Collette & Hondrox, of Hutchinson, have purchased land here and will build a range to be devoted to vegetables.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—A. H. Dailey has closed his store on Gay street and will conduct his business at his Market street establishment.

WILKES-BARRE, PA.—The county commissioners are planning to erect a greenhouse to care for the plants used in the court house grounds.

HUTCHINSON, KAN.—The Underwood Greenhouse Co. will enlarge its establishment and has registered a bond issue of $50,000 for the purpose.

WEYMOUTH, MASS.—William Humes and A. J. Duffin have formed a partnership and will enter the trade here, having purchased greenhouses.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Bertermann Bros. Co. has made improvements which add to the attractiveness of their already well arranged store.

WAVERLEY, MASS.—The Wm. W. Edgar Co. is making extensive additions at its range, including one new greenhouse.

COMMISSION men in several lines of business keep prices on a profitable basis by retaining control of the product offered for sale.

BASKETS made at home and other forms of wicker work used by the trade are in brisk demand, owing to the curtailed supplies of foreign goods in this line.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee it was decided to abandon the prize feature at the fall show of the association, which is to be held at Bloomington, November 9-10, and the secretary has been instructed to ask all members to make this, our first fall show, one grand success, by contributions of stock for the exhibition. Please bear this in mind and send something and bring yourself along for a fall holiday. Remember this is the semi-annual meeting of your association.

J. F. AMMANN, Sec'y.

AMSTERDAM cable says Emperor William in the German Official Gazette appeals to all Germans abroad to report to the consular offices in order to ascertain whether they are available for military service.

CHAIRMAN ASMUS of the National Flower Show committee is making arrangements to call his co-workers together at St. Louis, Mo., immediately following the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery at Chicago, October 11 and 12.

Azaleas and Other Belgian Plants.

Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, is leaving no stone unturned to insure export of the regular shipments of azaleas, palms and other Belgian plants this fall, but so far there seems but little hope that such shipments will come forward this season. The following letter addressed by Alvery A. Adey, Second Assistant Secretary of State, to Mr. Gude, September 20, shows the situation as it stands at present:

"The department has received your letter of September 15, 1916, relative to the importation of Azalea Indica and other plants of Belgian origin and the difficulties now encountered in connection with these shipments.

"You are informed that instructions were sent by cablegram to the American ambassador at Berlin on September 16, 1916, to endeavor to have the arrangement in effect last year restored so that these goods might come forward for the Christmas trade.

"When a reply is received from the ambassador any information contained therein will be communicated to you."

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

President Wm. F. Gude and Past President Irwin Bertermann, together with the directors and other officers, desire your presence at the meeting called in Chicago, October 11-12 at 9 a. m., at the Hotel LaSalle. The immense growth of our organization, which was instrumental in the selling of five million dollars worth of flowers last year, needs your presence.

Because new by-laws and regulations will be proposed,

Because the increasing of membership dues will be considered.

Because you should show your appreciation of work done gratuitously by the officers in the past by attending.

Because your co-operation and suggestions are necessary.

Because it is going to be a record breaking meeting of the retail trade of this country.

Because every phase of the business will be discussed and much information will be obtained, and,

Because you owe this duty to your business as well as to the F. T. D. If you are considering time and money you will be repaid a good many times.

If absolutely impossible to attend, jot down suggestions or experiences and forward to President Wm. F. Gude before October 5, also notify me in case you cannot attend this meeting.

ALBERT POCHELON, Sec'y.

Imports of Plants and Bulbs.

The treasury department has issued the following notice to the trade under date of September 20:

This office has experienced great difficulty in the examination and appraisalment of nursery stock and bulbs due to faulty and incomplete description on invoices. In order that the time consumed in the examination and appraisalment of these partly perishable goods may be reduced to a minimum, it is suggested that you co-operate with this office by directing the shippers of nursery stock and bulbs to state in detail the following specifications on invoices:

REQUIREMENTS.

That on all invoices quantity of each and every quality or kind contained in each case be stated.

Flower bulbs, bulbous roots, corms, etc.—Under no circumstances should an invoice be accepted for flower bulbs unless accompanied by specifications setting forth the quantity and kind in detail.

Azalea Indica.—Give diameter of plants.

Azaleas other than Indica.—State if seedlings or hybrids. If seedlings, give age and size, and state whether budded or not. If hybrids, give variety, age and size.

Rhododendrons.—State whether hardy or for forcing. If hardy, state height. If for forcing, state number of buds. If a novelty, give name, as "Pink Pearl" or "White Pearl."

Lilacs.—State whether field grown or pot grown. If field grown, state whether for forcing or landscape work. In all cases give height.

The run from Lancaster was made via Quarryville, Conowingo and Belair. The weather was ideal and the scenery unsurpassed by any in the world from an agricultural point of view, and by very few places from a scenic point of view. The distance, 66 miles, was made in a little more than three hours, and at Perry hall we were met by Mr. Vincent and one of the boys who piloted us to their establishment via the shortest and best route.

Parking our machines on the lawn we were marched to the potting shed, where we went through the formalities of introductions to the Vincent family, and where Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., demonstrated to us Lancaster countians the real hospitality of Maryland, with a lunch that satisfied to the full the appetite created by our long run on a cool morning. Mrs. Vincent was voted a charming hostess by all the ladies present and Mr. Vincent given a vote of thanks, three cheers and a tiger by every one, ladies and gentlemen.

Our host then led the party to the dahlia fields, and we were shown not only the largest acreage (close to 100) we ever saw, but also the largest collection I presume in the world, some of those in the trial grounds costing as high as $5 per tuber. A seedling of their own, Chas. L. Seibold, has in addition to its merits as a bloom, the added feature of being the earliest and the freest of their 300 or more varieties. Another special is called Jack's Discovery, and Mr. Vincent in his enthusiasm gave us more information on varieties and culture in an hour than we could have learned in a year any other way. One of the cultural pointers he brought out especially was that late planting was in most cases better than early planting, and June seemed to be the month for planting. They do their planting by machine, and three men and one machine can plant 25,000 per day. Cannas come next to dahlias in quantity and variety, and the canna lovers of the party had quite a feast in examining the many varieties grown.

There was plenty of other stock grown in the fields that proved interesting, but it had nearly all suffered from the cool spring, the heavy rains and the intense heat of August, a combination not often happening the same summer. That the stock was in the fine condition it was, is evidence of the care and attention given every detail in this establishment.

In the greenhouses, the geranium stock was a great attraction to our Lancaster geranium growers and the 300 or more varieties were closely inspected by critical men, but nothing but praise was heard on every side as to the quality of the stock and surprise at the number grown. In addition to these geraniums a general line of bedding stock interested the retail men of our party and the healthy condition of everything was commented upon. In a big establishment like this, one usually finds some places not quite up to the mark, but there was only one little corner in this one, and that was a batch of lantana cuttings that had gone to the bad.

The mechanical end of the place was a side attraction. We found two new 100-horse power boilers being installed and a complete pumping plant that in addition to pumping water, manufactures the electricity for the place. Their box making department for shipping out stock is a little industry of its own.

The buying end of the establishment is in the hands of Richard Vincent, and some little idea of the way it is conducted can be had from the fact that a year's supply of paper was laid in before the raise in price, all of which is cut to size, so that there is no waste.

Pompon chrysanthemums are next to the dahlias and cannas and they promise a big crop of flowers and plants. Mr. Vincent kindly offered to supply us with a display of these flowers for our show November 9-11, and if there was anything left undone toward our entertainment and comfort the writer failed to see or hear of it.

The run home was made with a stop at Quarryville for supper and Lancaster was reached about 7 p. m. by a tired, but well pleased party, without even a "blow out" to mar the pleasure of the trip.

STYLE SHOW WEEK STIMULATES TRADE.

"Style show week" is becoming more and more an excellent flower week, merchants generally using several vases of flowers in connection with their displays. Funeral work has been heavy the past week, cleaning up many short asters, roses and gladioli. Short dahlias, too, are much in demand.

NOTES.

At the monthly meeting of the florists' club, held at the Hollenden hotel, September 11, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Samuel Pentecost, president; Timothy Smith, first vice-president; H. P. Merrick, second vice-president; Al. Barber, secretary; A. C. Fox, treasurer. Two new members, Fred Altknecht, of Wickliffe, O., and Jos. Zowlinsky, of Independence, O., were elected to membership. The next meeting will be held October 2.

The following have been appointed on the various committees for the ensuing year by President Pentecost of the florists' club: Executive committee—H. P. Knoble, chairman; Tim Smith, Geo. Bate, Frank Friedley, O. P. Blackman. Entertainment committee—Walter Cook, chairman; Frank Ritzenthaler, Chas. F. Bastian. Reception committee—H. P. Merrick, chairman; J. M. Fox and Mr. Rapley.

F. A. Brendel will move from his present location on Lorain avenue to 1440 West Twenty-fifth street, near Detroit avenue, this week.

Samuel Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, has an exhibit of supplies at the Statler Hotel.

SEASONABLE WEATHER HELPS BUSINESS.

Cool, crisp weather has had a stimulating influence on trade during the past week, and everything on hand sold well. Asters are getting smaller and poorer every week and the supply on September 23 was light, and the demand was heavy, due to the occasion of decorating the graves. Roses are good but the supply is limited. Lilies are becoming more plentiful and better in quality. Lily of the valley is excellent and the supply has increased considerably. Carnations are still short stemmed but are showing rapid improvement. Both dagger and fancy ferns are plentiful and of good quality. Galax is somewhat poor.

NOTES.

E. C. Kaelber had a very attractive window last week arranged with arts and crafts baskets, the various colorings displayed attractively with asters, dahlias, tritomas, etc. Trellis effects were also a feature, Clematis paniculata in full bloom being used. Business here has shown a good gain during the past few weeks.

George B. Hart's new warerooms are nearly completed. They will be fully equipped with cases for ribbons, shelving, counters, etc. The refrigerator on the ground floor has been enlarged to twice its original size and he will be in splendid shape to care for his rapidly increasing business.

George T. Boucher is attracting attention to his store with a handsome illuminated electric fountain which makes a wonderful setting for fine groups of Boston and Roosevelt ferns.

H. E. Wilson's window shows a handsomely appointed dinner table with a centerpiece of pink roses and favors of sweet alyssum, roses and corn-flowers.

Maurer-Haap Co. is selling early fall planting bulbs, included in the assortment being narcissi, daffodils, tulips and crocuses.

Horace J. Head arranged a handsome decoration for the Stewart-Fisher wedding September 23.

Frank MacLewis of the Unique Flower Shop reports an encouraging improvement in trade.

CHESTER.

Louisville, Ky.

The F. Walker Co. had several large decorations during the past week, among them being the King Solomon Chapter, R. A. M. annual banquet, and the stores of Kaufman, Straus & Co., and the Stewart Dry Goods Co.

E. G. Reimers & Sons Co., Inc., had the fall decorations for the establishment of Selman & Co., one of the large department stores.

Frank Kleinstaub, who broke his arm recently, is getting along nicely, it is reported.

The demand for fall bulbs, peonies and shrubs has opened up strong.

Visitors: A. F. Longren, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., and Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., both of Chicago.

H. G. W.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

The past week was one of the busiest the local trade has experienced for some time. The call for funeral work was heavy and there were numerous orders for social events. A killing frost has caused a shortage of outdoor stock but greenhouse flowers show marked improvement, especially roses and chrysanthemums.

The Flick Floral Co. has been busy with orders for funeral work. Flowers for a pre-nuptial party were also among the orders during the week.

A FEAST OR A FAMINE.

Market conditions in this city are difficult to describe at present. The demand is spasmodic—sometimes the stores will be crowded for a day or two, and then the rush will quiet down for a period. Greenhouse stock is showing improvement, especially in roses. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful and dahlias continue fine in quality. The general opinion among the trade here is that lily of the valley is going to be a very scarce item during the coming season.

NOTES.

The Broadway Florists are attracting attention to their establishment with a clever novelty in the design of a large shoe made up of carnations. The opening at the top held a vase in which were arranged long-stemmed cut flowers. This firm has added two more employees to the staff.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., already feel the stimulating touch of the new fall business. They are making a noteworthy showing of Shawyer, Killarney Queen and Prima Donna roses from their own range.

Mr. Andrews, of the Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson force will sever his connection with that firm October 1, and will leave at once for San Francisco, where he will take up work along similar lines.

The Roslyn Flower Shop, J. A. Norris & Son, proprietors, seem to be getting a good foothold in the cut flower business since their opening in the Hotel Roslyn building.

Seki Bros. & Co. report trade improving. In addition to their regular wholesale trade they had orders for several large wedding decorations recently.

Morris & Snow are holding a flower show this week, exhibiting hundreds of varieties of dahlias for the benefit of their customers.

Mr. Knopf of the Redondo Floral Co. is away for a week and is reported to be attending the Methodist conference at Santa Ana.

O. C. Saakes has had another busy week with funeral work. His stocks of chrysanthemums and dahlias are very fine.

J. W. Wolters reports a good increase in business and considerable activity in funeral orders. G. H. H.

DAHLIA EXHIBITION.

The above named society held a very successful dahlia exhibition in the museum building, Bronx park, New York, September 23-24. As previously announced it was strictly a dahlia show and fine stock was shown. Several meritorious seedlings were exhibited, proving that the dahlia specialists are setting a pace in the introduction of new varieties. In addition to the regular classes special exhibits were made by the following: Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., orchids; John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York, dahlia seedlings; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., vase of Canna Yellow King Humbert and dahlia seedlings; Robt. Petrie, Paterson, N. J., dahlia seedlings; E. D. Adams, Rumson, N. J., dahlia seedlings; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., dahlia seedlings.

The awards in the competitive classes were as follows:

Largest and best collection, not less than six types, flowers on short stems—C. Louis Alling, 1st; Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., 2nd.

Vase of 12 blooms, decorative, one or more varieties on long stems—W. A. Manda, 1st; C. Louis Alling, 2nd.

Vase of 12 blooms, pompon, one or more varieties on long stems—Wm. Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. J., 1st; C. Louis Alling, 2nd.

Vase of 12 blooms, single or collar-ette, or both on long stems—Mills & Co., 1st; C. Louis Alling, 2nd.

Vase arranged for effect—James Linane, Rye, N. Y., 1st; Mills & Co., 2nd.

In the seven classes restricted to non-commercial growers, many splendid displays were made, prominent among those who received the awards being Dr. M. A. Howe, Pleasantville, N. Y.; E. D. Adams, Jas. Linane, Mrs. F. A. Constable, Wm. Schillaber and Mrs. Nichols. A. F. F.

Indiana-Kentucky Florists' Joint Meeting.

The joint meeting of the florists of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Kentucky Society of Florists at Louisville, which was originally scheduled for October 10-11, has been postponed due to "big doings" which are to be held in Indianapolis on those dates, and the meeting will probably be held the week following, possibly October 17-18. As the Indiana florists will arrive at different times during the morning of the first day, a reception committee has been formed and the visitors will be escorted to Anders Rasmussen's establishment at New Albany, where lunch will be served. Following this will be the joint business meeting of both societies, which will adjourn at 3 o'clock and the party will be taken in automobiles for a three hours' ride through the park system of Louisville. At 6:30 there will be a banquet, the place to be announced later, following which there will be speeches by both the Indiana and Kentucky florists, and if a sufficient number of ladies are in attendance there will be dancing.

The second day will be devoted to pleasure exclusively. At 8:30 a. m. there will be a bowling tournament, with singles and doubles, but the principal event will be the team match between representatives from both societies. Lunch will be served on the alleys at noon. At 2:00 p. m. special cars will take the party for an inspection of Wm. Walker's range.

Frederickton, N. B.

The demand for funeral designs has kept up all through the summer, but it has been difficult to keep a supply of flowers of good quality. Asters, for some reason, are poor. The gardens are still looking gay, although there have been light frosts in this vicinity. The weather at present is ideal, although the past several weeks have been extremely hot and dry. The majority of the farm crops are of normal yield and prices are high.

Buchbinder Bros.,
Refrigerator Manf.,
518 Milwaukee Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.,

Gentlemen:-

The display refrigerator you installed for us in our exclusive North side store in 1914 has given such perfect satisfaction that we take great pleasure in giving you an order for another large one for our West Madison street establishment. Your refrigerator has been put to a thorough test in every respect and we find that we have not used as much ice to operate this box as we did for the smaller one and believe it has paid for itself already. It keeps stock fresh longer than any refrigerator we have ever used and the fact that we have given you this second order will prove that we are certainly pleased with your first refrigerator.

Your refrigerator has improved the general appearance of our store to a great extent besides giving us almost triple space which is an item of much importance, especially during the holiday periods when every foot of available floor space is needed.

You may refer any prospective buyers to us and we will be pleased to state the facts just as we have found them and in closing we wish to mention that our dealings with your firm will make this a pleasure indeed.

Respectfully yours,
SCHILLER THE FLORIST.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY EXHIBITION.

Montreal and suburbs in the past few weeks have been busy with their annual fall horticultural exhibitions. Horticultural societies are springing up as fast as mushrooms and their life habit is very much like them, for they seem only to come to life during September and the rest of the year are forgotten. The center of interest was the exhibition held by the Montreal Horticultural Society. This society boasts of being the second oldest on this continent. This year's show was very much along the lines of former ones. A special feature was a cypripedium in bloom. Very few gardeners had ever seen one before. The city gardeners who exhibited it also had a large group of well grown foliage and flowering plants on exhibit. A. Gibb, the city's decorator, scored a special prize. Other large exhibitors were: W. J. Wilshire, gardener to R. B. Angus; R. Miller, gardener to Town of Montreal West; Hall & Robinson, R. Burrows, I. Morreau, Jack & Son, J. J. Trevis, J. Schnebly, J. Watson, W. J. Hughes, Dorval Gardens, Macdonald College. W. J. Wilshire scored high in plants, Hall & Robinson in cut flowers and made-up work, also in mantel and table decorations, I. Morreau in vegetables.

NOTES.

Outdoor flowers are better than they have been since June; no frost so far has touched us. Asters have been bad all summer, but are fairly good just now. It has been a good season for melons, cucumbers and tomatoes. Cut flowers are still very scarce and of low grade. Chrysanthemums are making their appearance, but not in enough quantity to help us out greatly. The retail stores have had heavy Business has been somewhat quiet in this city for the past 60 days, but is now improving, as the best flower buyers who have been away during the summer have nearly all returned and are settled down for the winter. Stock is not very plentiful at this writing, as the heavy rains have destroyed most of the outdoor varieties. There are practically no carnations and no local chrysanthemums, what are seen being California grown. All indications point to a good season's business.

ROSES ARE MORE PLENTIFUL.

Roses are gradually becoming more plentiful but there are just about enough to go around and are selling well at good prices. The quality of the roses in general is showing a great improvement and some particularly fine Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty are being offered. Richmond, Rhea Reid, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Hearst, Mrs. George Shawyer, Prince de Bulgarie, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Champ Weiland, Lady Alice Stanley, Tipperary, Frances Scott Key and Bayard Thayer are arriving in splendid condition and so are the miniature roses, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar, Baby Doll and Fireflame. Chrysanthemums are arriving in larger quantities and are selling well at good prices with no surplus when the stores close for the day. Orchids are a trifle more plentiful but the supply of lily of the valley is none too large. Carnations are becoming a factor in the market, but the supply as yet is limited and the quality of the stock offered is not what one usually finds in the market at this time of the year. A few asters, gladioli and other miscellaneous outdoor flowers are still arriving but the condition of the stock plainly shows that they are the tail end of the crop. Lilies are good property and bring high prices. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful. Boxwood and wild smilax are arriving in larger supply and are having a good call. The retail florists report a big improvement in trade the past week after a very quiet period and everyone is looking forward toward a brisk fall season. The supply houses have been unusually busy and are already displaying their holiday goods. All the wholesale stores will be open until six o'clock again starting next Monday, October 2, and until noon on Sundays as in the past.

NOTES.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a fine supply of American Beauty roses, which continue to be in brisk demand and clean up nicely each day. The firm is well satisfied with business and is having no trouble in disposing of all the stock that it has to offer.

J. A. Budlong is showing a most complete line of roses, which consists of practically every variety grown in this vicinity for the local market. The shipping trade is brisk at this establishment and a daily cleanup in stock is reported.

Frank Johnson and Ed. Galavan, of the A. L. Randall Co., are back from a business trip to New York. Mr. Johnson reports a brisk demand for Randall's electric window fountain and says that 17 were sold in one day this week.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, reports business as good and that three of the firm's largest growers are in fine crop with roses, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell.

Emil Nelson, of Morton Grove, is shipping an unusually fine grade of Richmond roses with heads as large as those of Milady to John Kruchten & Co., where they are attracting much attention.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, had a pleasant visit this week from his old friend, Ed. Reid, of Philadelphia, who is making a visit to his farm in Minnesota.

Bernie A. Zalinger, 175 West Jackson boulevard, had the decorations for Mandel Bros.' fall opening this week, in which American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses played an important part.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that American Beauty roses are in better

O. A. & L. A. Tonner's store is receiving a new coat of paint and when Henry Arnold finishes the job everything will be in readiness for a brisk fall season.

Nick Korson has sold his store at 7 West Monroe street to Nick Speropoulos, who conducts the Wabash Flower Market, at 106 South Wabash avenue.

W. H. Kidwell & Son have a fine stock of Boston ferns and report a splendid demand for same.

Kyle & Foerster are handling wild smilax in quantity again this season, together with other greens and a complete line of cut flowers.

R. J. Mohr, formerly manager at A. Lange's, 25 East Madison street store, is filling a similar position with A. T. Pyfer & Co.

John Kruchten & Co. are busy bunching their first large shipment of boxwood this season.

The annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America now being held at the Hotel LaSalle is well attended and the trade exhibit is the largest in the history of the organization with every foot of space sold. The greenhouse manufacturers and allied trade lines are nearly all represented and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone in the trade to come and inspect their exhibits, which are on display in the roof garden of the hotel. The convention is a great success socially and financially and the local committee deserves many thanks for the efficient manner in which they handled the convention from the start.

The Hansell Grate Company, 654 Railway Exchange building, is making a strong bid for business in this territory and have a fine grate which can be repaired without dumping fire and it is impossible to burn it out. Peter Reinberg has 17 of the Hansell grates in operation and is more than pleased with them.

A. F. Amling Co.'s new range of houses at Maywood, consisting of 275,000 square feet of glass and built by the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., is completed and steam was turned on for the first time September 25. This place is heated by Kroeschell boilers.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting over 2,000 American Beauty roses a day, but at that they have barely enough to go around. Mr. Washburn is well pleased with business and says that stock in general is in big demand with a shortage in almost all lines.

Zech & Mann are offering a good supply of chrysanthemums and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which are bringing good prices and are none too plentiful. Allie Zech reports that business is very brisk, especially the shipping trade.

Vaughan's Seed Store has handled six carloads of French, Dutch, Japanese and China stocks this week, all arriving in a heap, which ordinarily are spread over a month or more. Four more cars are due this week.

Peter Reinberg has had a splendid week's business with a complete clean-up in stock every day. They are in good crop with roses and are cutting heavily in American Beauty, Milady and Mrs. Chas. Russell.

TRADE AHEAD OF SEPTEMBER, 1915.

A surprisingly good September has been enjoyed by the local trade. Some stores have experienced increases from 50 to 70 per cent over the same month last year. This is attributed to no special cause other than the development of the public taste for flowers. Stock of all kinds is scarce. That year-around staple, the white lily, is nearer the famine point than within the memory of many florists. The supply has been drawn upon heavier than usual the past summer to meet the dearth of other flowers which were short crop because of unfavorable weather. Snapdragons have made their appearance during the past week, and bring from $1.50 to $2 a dozen. The first showing of white chrysanthemums is also a new feature. The blooms are small, at a selling price of $3. Fine Golden Glows bring from $3 to $6. White and pink roses are plentiful, but there is a lean supply of red ones. Richmonds have not reached an attractive stage, although the outlook for a few weeks hence is good. An exception in the red rose displays is the American Beauty. Shipments received from northern Ohio are choice. Prices range from $4 to $8 a dozen. There are a few cuttings of very fine carnations, which are expected to soon replace the small, inferior blooms that have been on the market. They command 75 cents a dozen. Gladioli, asters and dahlias are fast disappearing. This is true of other garden flowers. Some florists have received a partial bulb supply, especially in Paper Whites, but Holland stock is several weeks overdue, and the bulb trade is yet a small factor.

NOTES.

One of the fashionable florist shops has been receiving a limited amount of choice stock grown by Lincoln Kilbourne, a wealthy manufacturer, at his suburban place. Following a nervous breakdown a few years ago, he turned his attention to growing flowers as an interesting and healthful means of assisting nature in restoring his health, and has spared no expense in indulging this pastime. The commercial feature of it is merely incidental.

Further improvements have been made at the attractive store of the Munk Floral Company. They consist of the building of a mezzanine floor for the accommodation of the offices, and the separation of the display quarters from the work department by ornate panelling.

A hail storm which swept over the city and vicinity on the evening of September 22 caused a scare to greenhouse owners. Some suffered small damage, but in no single instance did this amount to much of a loss in dollars and cents.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

A banner week, considering the season, has just passed. The trade was good in all its branches—in fact, it was the best September week the florists can recall for many years. Numerous funerals have given business quite a boost. There has also been quite a few social functions taking place, such as afternoon clubs, announcement parties and dances. This week has also been one of fall openings—the large stores have been a bower of plants and cut flowers, each one trying to outdo the other. Cut-stock has been scarce in this locality. Roses are most in evidence—their quality is good with the prices ranging from $2 to $6 a hundred. American Beauty has stepped into prominence, bringing from 75c to $4 a dozen. The market on lilies has been kept clean. Lily of the valley has received quite a call in spite of the price—$6 per hundred sprays. Cattleya labiata have made their appearance and are welcome at $6 a dozen. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful in the following varieties: Golden Glow, Early Frost and Smith's Advance. Carnations are beginning to fill up a big gap in the market at $1.50 to $2 a hundred. A few gladioli are still to be had. Cosmos is poor and drags on the market, but asters and dahlias have completely dropped out of sight. Ferns, plumosus and Sprengerii, have been equal to the demand, but smilax is poor, suffering from the extremely hot summer. Pot plants have been in good demand with ferns taking the lead. The outlook for more stock and big business is exceptionally good in this locality.

NOTES.

Several new greenhouses have been erected here during the summer, namely: Bertermann Bros., 30x225; Wm. A. Glaubke, 20x125; Martin Brandlein, 22x120; Hartje & Elder, three houses, 27x150; Baur & Steinkamp, 18x100; Hepler & Mayer, 25x100.

The Indiana State Florists' Association's committee, composed of Joseph Hill, A. F. J. Baur and John Hartje, motored to Lafayette recently in search of information regarding the new experiments and outline of work at Purdue University for the coming year.

A new flower shop and greenhouse has been completed by Edwin Morner in Shelbyville. He was formerly with the E. G. Hill Floral Co., of this city, but has gone into business for himself. We extend to him our best wishes for success.

The Benson Floral Co. is under new management, having been taken over by R. D. Oilar, and in future will be known as the Benson-Oilar Co. It will be managed by Frank W. Ball, formerly with the Benson store.

The Boney greenhouses, south of the city, recently used as vegetable growing houses, have been taken over by Chas. Boney, formerly with the Henry W. Rieman Co., for the purpose of growing flowers.

Leonard Elder recently met with an accident while fitting up his new greenhouses with steam. A wrench slipped, hitting Mr. Elder and injuring him in the chest. He is better now but still feels the effects.

Stephen Hitz has returned from a visit to his onion farm in northern Indiana, and with his brother, Charles, from Madison, Ind., has been visiting fellow-florists of this city.

Indiana florists are looking forward with delight to the next state florists' association meeting to be held at New Albany, Ind., and at Louisville with the Kentucky association.

Alterations, which give more store space and a fine, large window display on two streets, have been made at John Rieman's establishment.

COMING BACK

Our customers are all coming back to us this season. This is proof that our stock, prices, etc., are entirely satisfactory. With our increased supply of stock, we can add more customers to our list and still give everyone entire satisfaction. If you have not been a customer of ours in the past, why not begin now?

STATE FAIR FLORICULTURAL DISPLAY.

The display of flowers at the state fair which was held here September 15-23 was much smaller than in previous years, due possibly in a measure to the poor quality of many varieties of stock at this time of the year, but the reduction in the premium list last year also had its effect, and the displays of a number of the trade in the northern part of the state, which were a feature in past years, were conspicuous by their absence. It is to be regretted that the floricultural section is becoming smaller each year and in consequence is diminishing in popularity with visitors. Among the principal exhibitors were the following: Hembreiker & Cole, Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Geo. M. Brinkerhoff and Geo. J. Dinkel, all of this city; Gullett & Sons, Lincoln; A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood; Mrs. Etta Nott and Mrs. Coffey, Charleston, and L. A. Berry, Chicago. H. C. T.

STOCK IS SCARCE.

Stock has become rather scarce and the supply is hardly sufficient to take care of all needs. Besides the end of the aster and gladioli season, cool weather has served to check the supply to a considerable extent. The demand from out of town is very heavy. Roses are not very plentiful. American Beauty, however, is in a good supply. Carnations are meeting with a good demand. Easter lilies are in a good supply and sell well. A few rubrum lilies may be had. Dahlias clean up regularly. Other offerings include cosmos, a few sweet peas, chrysanthemums and snapdragon. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett and Wm. Mayhall, accompanied by their wives, motored to Springfield, Ohio, September 24. Mr. Gillett returned Monday morning while the balance of the party stayed over for the week.

Oklahoma City.

A very successful flower show was held September 22 by the State Civic Improvement Association. There were a great many entries from amateur growers and the quality of the exhibits was far superior to the displays seen a year ago. A flower parade was also held during the afternoon of the same day, but in this artificial flowers were the only kind used. Next year we expect to see automobiles in the parade decorated with real flowers.

The Stiles Co., along with plants and flowers, featured a stork, baby in a cradle, and numerous canary birds. Needless to say that the florists' windows for this fashion display are creating as much attention from the public as are the windows of any other line of business.

The state fair opened September 23 and "Fashion Week" was ushered in the day previous, consequently the city is crowded with visitors. Business of every description is good, the florists getting their full share.

BUSINESS ESPECIALLY GOOD.

While stock in some lines is shortening and in others becoming more plentiful, what there is on the market is on the good quality side. Business has been especially brisk, principally in decorations for social events and bouquets. Asters are practically off the market and gladioli are on the decline, but roses are improving both in numbers and quality, especially Russell, Ophelia and Killarney, while American Beauty is seen with better bud and longer stem. Lilies continue plentiful. California grown chrysanthemums are more plentiful and are wholesaling at $3 per dozen. There has been much entertaining and a number of conventions during the present month calling for large quantities of decorative plants and cut flower work, and we are now winding up with a big fashion show, the bankers' convention and last but not least the live stock show which opens October 2.

NOTES.

Kansas City, Kan., had a very successful flower parade, September 23. 100 well decorated motor cars being entered and viewed by thousands. Before the pageant started Miss Elise Mosely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Mosely, the well known florists of that city, was crowned queen of the event by Mayor Green. Miss Mosely rode in a motor car decorated by her mother and which won first prize as the best decorated vehicle in the parade. The car was decorated with white flowers and ribbons.

Saturday, September 23, an amateur flower show was held at the Muehlebach hotel and proved a great success; in fact, one of the pleasing events of the season. The amateurs deserve all the encouragement and advice that it is possible for the local trade to give them, inasmuch as the florists themselves do not seem to have the backbone to get up a big fall show of their own.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a good run on city and out-of-town funeral work. They have a good many plants out on decorations. Mr. Parker, store manager, went to the greenhouses at Pleasant Hill, Mo., and reports every thing in great shape.

A. Newell reports the trade going good. He has had some good decoration orders during the bankers' convention. Mr. Newell and Samuel Murray were at Excelsior Springs for a few days.

The Alpha Floral Co. made large preparations for the fashion show and bankers' convention and it proved a big item with them in the decorative line.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a fine line of roses in Russell, Ophelia, Killarney and American Beauty. Lilies, smilax and lily of the valley are also good. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful.

W. J. Barnes put in the big decoration for the fashion show display at the Emery, Bird, Thayer store using decorative plants by the auto load.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. put in a fashion show window prettily arranged in different ways, using coxcombs and ornamental grasses.

The store of Miss J. E. Murray was attractively decorated for "Fashion Week." She reports trade much improved.

H. Kusik & Co. have a fine supply of good stock. Supplies are moving well. E. J. B.

Pittsburgh.

COOL WEATHER ARRIVES.

We experienced cool weather during the past week with light frosts reported in some places. There has been an abundance of roses, especially the shorter grades, which causes them to be sold very cheaply. The longer stems are very good and sell readily. Asters are almost over for this year, although the crop was nothing like former years. Gladioli, lilies and dahlias are coming good, especially the dahlias, which are fine and sell at good prices. The demand for them is more than the supply. This flower increases more and more each year in popularity. It is wonderful the effect the retailer can derive from this beautiful fall flower. Some chrysanthemums are to be seen, but the demand is not enough to encourage the early varieties. We expect to have them with us in about another week. Most all the growers expect to cut carnations in about another week. They will be needed as all outdoor stock will be over. Greens are selling about the same as always with plenty to supply the demand.

NOTES.

The florists' and gardeners' club at its last meeting decided to observe its twenty-fifth anniversary with a banquet. The date will be selected later by the following committee: Gustave Ludwig, George W. Burke, Samuel McClements, B. L. Elliott, P. S. Randolph, J. W. Ludwig, E. C. Ludwig, Fred Burki, Aug. Frishkorn, Wm. Loew, J. F. Zimmermann and E. C. Reineman.

John Harris returned last week from Mt. Clemens, where he spent the last five weeks.

Visitors: Edw. Reid of Philadelphia, Pa.; Milton Alexander of New York. G. M.

Englewood, N. J.

Englewood is one of the many cities and towns of New Jersey where the "oldest inhabitant" takes pride in showing the visitor houses that were erected more than 100 years ago, and some of them look as though they might last for another hundred. It will be understood that such houses are exceptions, or landmarks, showing that the pioneers had among them men of brains. The Englewood of today is a flourishing city and has a thrifty population.

There are four florists who do a considerable retail business in connection with growing. The McQuaid Brothers are growers, and also have a fine retail trade. They grow roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and are now cutting fine asters for their decorative work. They keep on hand fine palms and other foliage plants. Their retail business calls for a large amount of cut stock and Grant McQuaid is a familiar figure in the wholesale district of New York. He and his brother are to the manor born, their father having established the business almost 40 years ago. Grant McQuaid has a fine home and family, and he and his estimable wife are the souls of hospitality. The other member of the firm is also a fine fellow, but unfortunately he is a bachelor.

NOTES.

John Lange's range is well built and noteworthy for the fine condition of his stock of which he produces a variety. He grows Ophelia, Ward and other roses, all of which are doing well. His carnations are exceptionally good. Forget-me-nots are usually plentiful in the spring, but are not so often seen at this season. He has a large number of plants now coming into bloom and says that it pays to grow them.

Alexander Donaldson, who this year leased the Lydecker range, has good crops of chrysanthemums and carnations coming on, having five houses 25x125 feet each. He also has two houses of lilies, one house being now in crop. At present he is cutting good stock of the chrysanthemum, Early Frost, and has large stocks of Englehart, Halliday, Bonaffon and other good varieties coming on.

Hunter & Son have a neat range and grow a variety of stock for their retail trade. This season, for the first time, they planted one house with roses, which are doing well. They also have good chrysanthemums and carnations. In addition to much other outdoor stock, we noticed a fine dark red dahlia of California origin. John M. Hunter, the founder of this firm, now lives in California.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNSETTLED.

The market this season appears to be anything but settled, and so far is full of ups and downs. One week stock is plentiful with apparently little demand, and the next, the situation is quite the reverse, all the wholesalers borrowing from one another to try and fill their orders. The market last week was full of Easter lilies; the week before they brought as high as $2.00 a dozen. The past week stock tightened up, shipments being very light and far between, particularly on outside stock. The dahlias are so far a disappointment as the fields in New Jersey, near Atlantic City, near where the most of the supply comes from, have had but few of the fall rains and suffer from the protracted drouth. Roses are somewhat of an exception, the market being fairly well supplied, particularly with the shorter grades; these work off at rather low figures. Gladioli are still in fair supply, but the asters are almost done and only second class stock is seen.

Golden Glow chrysanthemums are offered in limited quantities, nothing extra as to quality. Cattleyas are more plentiful. Lily of the valley is still scarce and high and must be ordered in advance. New crop carnations are so short stemmed that short prices rule. American Beauty leads the roses, and will as long as the moderate prices prevail. Some Hadley, Ophelia, and good Marylands get into the special class.

NOTES.

P. M. Read strikes the nail on the head in his conclusions that there is little if any profit in geraniums in four-inch pots at $7 per hundred. This is no new question; it has rankled in the hearts of geranium growers for many moons, but as most of them seem afraid of their own shadows, there is little or no progress made toward better prices. About 25 years ago, Robert Craig, Wm. K. Harris and several others, leaders in the trade, got the growers together at a meeting in old Horticultural hall and all agreed there was no money at $7 and $8 and agreed that $10 per hundred would hereafter be the price. All left the meeting very enthusiastic over the prospects of the great increase in the coming season's profits. One of the smaller growers happening to meet a customer on his way home reported the results of the conference and told how they had all bound themselves to the new price, adding, "but with you and me it will just be the same as before, only you must not tell anybody." Wm. K. Harris was at one time the leading geranium grower in this market, but when the price went below $10 a hundred he dropped them from his list. He was successful with nearly everything he grew and a pioneer in introducing new and taking up old things of merit, but whenever competition caused the price to fall below profitable returns he would drop out and generally had something else up his sleeve. If growers would figure out their entire expenses, including every possible outlay during the year, then count up their combined table space and see how much each square foot must produce to meet this and have something over, they would probably find out something definite about the values of the various lines of plants they handled. Mr. Harris has frequently told the writer, "My table space has got to pay me so much per square foot during the year," and no matter how promising a crop looked, if it did not pay there was something else in its place the next season.

H. F. Mitchell Co.'s annual exhibit of dahlias, perennial and annual flowers, together with vegetables, held at their store, 578 Market street, September 26-28, was an extensive and beautiful display. The premiums were liberal, while the entries exceeded those of any previous show. The exhibition was free to the public. Each variety was correctly labeled, so that orders might be taken from those who desired stock for spring delivery.

The Robert Craig Co. is very busy getting out orders for ferns and other foliage plants. The season is starting out well with plenty of orders to be set aside on call for the future. Robert A. Craig, a live wire and one of the coming men of the business, has been under the weather, being confined to the house the past week with a heavy cold. He is on the mend, however, and spent Sunday with his family at Ocean City.

BEES' ROSES ARE AMA

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

stock. They find them one of their best sellers and have them by the thousand. Paul Blackman of Reading, Chas. F. Hale of East Orange, and F. S. Rogers of the Rogers Floral Co., Charlestown, S. C., were recent visitors to this establishment.

Max Nietschke, in his Forrest Flower Shop, has everything planned for a good season. New wall coverings and decorations of a battleship gray, together with new chandeliers and window fixtures, all go to make the place very inviting and attractive. Miniature Japanese flower floats in quantity are his window feature at present.

Leo Niessen says he does not remember when flowers have been so scarce at this season as for the past week. He attributed it to the scarcity of dahlias, which need rain badly. American Beauty roses and good Easter lilies are seen in quantity. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are also a feature.

The Joseph Heacock Co. is busy getting out fall orders for palms, at their Wyncote nurseries. The stock was never in better condition and customers are having them sent now by freight before the cold weather compels their coming by express and the added expenses.

Mrs. Clara M. Ehret, with the sale of the property at Broad street and Fairmount avenue, has been obliged to move and will locate about November 1 on Fairmount avenue one block from her present location. Business opened up very good for the season.

Edward Reid has secured lily of the valley in quantity, which supply he expects to be able to keep up throughout the season. He is enjoying a business trip through the west and will be home before the first week of October.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has had a great run on plants the past season. Field carnations and young rose stock sold until the supply was exhausted. Cutflower demand is reported better than the supply.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has closed a contract to construct two of their iron frame houses, each 25x125 feet, for the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., at Andalusia. Much other work is under consideration.

The Robt. Craig Co. has finished setting a 50-horse power boiler at their 49th street place, removed from the lot sold to the Catholic high school. It is now on top of the ground.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., is making a great display of hyacinth and other bulbs. A border of artificial hyacinth flowers is a feature; they are very showy and lifelike.

The Moore Seed Co., 125 Market street, is branching out, having added trees and other nursery stock, which it is prepared to deliver in quantity. Business looks good here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is much pleased with the prospects ahead. Good stock from a number of shippers is already arriving.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are featuring hybrid tea roses in their Chestnut street windows. Many fine blooms are seen, each with its name attached.

At Berger Bros.' busy market, Easter lilies and gladioli are still leaders. Some very fine My Maryland, as well as other roses, are seen in quantity.

New crop roses and a good assortment of dahlias are features with Stuart Miller. Easter lilies are reported scarce.

The London Flower Shop is in full swing, and reports that advance orders give every indication of a busy season.

SUPPLY SHORTENS, BUT IS AMPLE.

The supply of stock was somewhat lighter during the past week. A cool wave was one factor, and the gladioli and asters are on the wane, and, though there were plenty of asters, the quality deteriorated. The demand was light and the shortage caused no inconvenience; in fact, it tended to strengthen prices. In American Beauties, the supply was moderate and some of the best specials wholesaled at the rate of $30 and $35 per 100. Orchids are now plentiful and quotations have dropped about 50 per cent from summer prices. The newer varieties of tea roses, such as Russell, Hadley, Cleveland, Prima Donna and some others that are older, bring fair prices if the stock is reasonably good. The original Killarneys are slow, but it must be considered that no rose planted this season has yet reached maturity. We must here again refer to our quotations. There are people in the trade who seem to think that a trade paper should quote all the rubbish that comes into this market. We do not agree with them. Our view is that most of the roses that sell for 50 cents per 100 or $5 per 1,000 are dear to the buyer, even at those prices. We aim to give quotations of stock that will not shake off before the buyer gets it to his store. The supply of chrysanthemums is gradually increasing and there are as many in the market as there is a call for, prices ranging according to size and quality, from $1 to $3 per dozen, though we have seen a few of a new variety that were quoted at $6 per dozen. The cool weather is to some extent holding back the dahlias, but there are enough to supply all demands. While there is a considerable supply of carnations, they do not loom large in the market. The tritomas (red hot poker) are features worthy of notice. They are quite plentiful, and as some of the leading stores are using them lavishly for window decorations, they have acquired quite a vogue. Three dozen for $1 is the average wholesale price.

September 25.—There seems to be a slight improvement in business, and prices on all stocks remain firm. The threat that several hundred thousand workers in various trades will "walk out" Wednesday, September 27, does not seem to greatly disturb any branch of the florist business. Of course, Samuel Gompers is reported to have said that they will stay out all winter if necessary. It is easy for Sam to say that, because he never walks out himself. If the people who now have good jobs and good wages walk out, it will doubtless be very cheering to them when they are walking the streets with sore feet, to hear from Samuel Gompers, in his comfortable Washington hotel, telling them to "hold out."

NOTES.

We sympathize with our Boston contemporary in his disposition to give the English sparrow a "square deal." He is correct in saying that: "The woods, fields and meadows are the natural habitat of the native birds, and there the English sparrow does not care to go." * * * In the spring one can see many other birds in the parks of this city as well as sparrows, but the sparrows, though strong in family quarrels, do not seem to molest the other birds. But supposing the sparrows do drive them out of the city, they do not follow them to the farms and orchards, where birds are most useful. As in the case of the wild pigeons, it was the guns of the hunters that drove away or destroyed the birds. The Audubon societies have made commendable efforts to save the birds, but their efforts have been hampered by a large number of people who seem to retain a strain of the blood of their barbarous ancestors. Poughkeepsie, the home of Vassar College, should be as civilized as any city in this country, yet the newspapers reported, a few weeks ago, that the chief of police organized a shotgun squad to kill the birds because their singing and chattering annoyed the late sleepers. Can you beat it? Let the English sparrow alone, he may not be particularly useful, but as Artemus Ward said of his kangaroo, "He's an amooosin' cuss." It may be added that the birds reported to have been slaughtered at Poughkeepsie were not English sparrows, but starlings and blackbirds.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., has for the past week been exhibiting dahlias at the store of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., Fifth avenue and 46th street. The show has greatly interested the public, and incidentally we should judge, has been profitable both to Mr. Stillman and the Galvin store. In exhibiting the flowers he takes orders for the roots and the store has been selling large quantities of the flowers. Nearly all the varieties on exhibition originated with Mr. Stillman, who is one of the foremost dahlia experts in this county. There are many types in the cactus, decorative, peony and collarete varieties. A new one in the decorative class is "The Millionaire," a large and beautiful lavender flower, the bulbs or roots of which sell for $10 each. Other noteworthy blooms are Lady Helen and Attraction. He will stage a great exhibit at the dahlia show September 26-28.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., 117 West 28th street, is having extensive alterations made in their newly acquired building. Excavations are being made for a basement which will be made fire and moisture proof, and when finished will be used exclusively for their ribbon and supply department. Within the past few years their business in this line has greatly increased, and their present quarters are too small to accommodate it. The only J. Moorhead, who has just returned from a three months' trip in the south and southwest, will be in charge of this department. He says that business is booming all over the south and predicts good business for the fall and winter.

Jack Trepel, who for a number of years has been buyer for his brother Joseph's chain of Brooklyn retail stores, has leased the premises at 480 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and will open a fine retail establishment, on or about October 1. This store is in the heart of the shopping district, being just two doors from the large department store of Frederick Losier & Co.

Extensive alterations are being made in a building at Fifth avenue and 51st street, in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn. When completed, Joseph Trepel, who already has six retail stores in Brooklyn, will open another, which, it is stated, will surpass his previous efforts in furnishings and equipment.

Mrs. Henry Murphy, who, since the death of her husband, several years ago, has conducted a retail store at Fifth avenue and 53d street, Bay Ridge, recently had the misfortune to fall down stairs and sustain a broken limb, and is now in a Brooklyn hospital.

The Macniff Horticultural Co. reports that their auction sales of plants, September 12 and 15 were very successful. A number of large palms and other plants from the estate of T. A. Sperry, Crawford, N. J., were disposed of. There was also a good demand for bulbs.

At this writing, nothing has been heard of Lewis P. Rankin, the grower, of Westerly, R. I., who, on September 12, walked out of the store of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. in this city and mysteriously disappeared.

John J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, is receiving from Frank Dinda, Farmdale, L. I., fine stock of the new pink chrysanthemum, Alexander Guttman.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society.
The eleventh annual show of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall, Orange, September 18, 1916. The date proved to be a trifle early and the number of entries fell short of the previous year. The vegetable classes were well filled with some fine displays. A group of herbaceous plants and shrubs by the Elizabeth Nursery Co. was well staged and received a special prize. A collection of fruit by M. & A. Colgate of Orange was the finest ever seen in this part of the country. The judges were: John P. Sorenson, Alex. Robertson and Walter M. Gray.
Prominent among the prize winners were the following: W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Peter Hauck, Jr., East Orange, N. J.; Dr. Daniel T. Millsbaugh, Paterson, N. J.; C. C. Goodrich, Orange; Mrs. William Barr, West Orange; S. M. and A. Colgate, Orange; Hugo Volkening, Orange.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolziano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—George D. Clark of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has returned from California.

VISITED NEW YORK: A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, Biltmore hotel.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, September 27, were as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $5.00 per 100 pounds.

VISITED CHICAGO: President Kirby B. White and Secretary C. E. Kendel, of the American Seed Trade Association; George Stumpp, of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York.

WINFIELD, KANS.—The Winfield Nursery Co. is planning to open a mail order seed house. J. Moncrief is president and H. S. Baker, secretary and treasurer of the company.

COLUMBUS, O.—A. W. Livingston, of the Livingston Seed Co., accompanied by Mrs. Livingston, left September 22 for a motor trip to New York, where they will remain about one week.

GLADIOLUS BULBS in the growing fields retarded by dry weather seem to be filling out some where touched by later rains. Stalks still look green and not affected by first frosts. Digging has begun generally both east and west.

SLUIS & GROOTS of Enkhuizen, in their September report say there will be a considerable shortage of all Holland seed specialties this year on account of unfavorable weather, shortage of labor and increased demand for food crops caused by the war.

ACCORDING to a general review of crop conditions issued by the United States department of agriculture the acreage of clover seed, September 1, is estimated to be 9.1 per cent more than last year with condition 6.1 per cent above average, forecasting a production from 15 to 18 per cent more than in 1915.

THE ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers Association of America is in progress at Chicago this week and some of the numbers on the programme are of more than passing interest to seedsmen including papers by Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, C. E. Durst, Urbana, A. T. Erwin, Ames, Ia., D. N. Shoemaker, Washington, D. C., and A. L. Stone, Madison, Wis.

CHAS. N. JACKMAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, wires from Paris, September 20, that all seed crops are light and garden and flower seeds generally very scarce. It becomes more and more difficult to get permits to pass from England into Holland and Belgium and it is understood that one well known American nurseryman who crossed to England recently was unable to secure permission to visit Holland or Belgium and returned to America without having accomplished this leading object of his trip.

Beans in Michigan.

Detroit, September 21.—D. M. Ferry & Co. state the recent frosts have not damaged their garden bean crops to exceed five per cent on the whole and they believe the damage will prove to be less.

Why French Bulbs Were Late.

Another reason why French bulbs were late is that shippers have experienced great difficulty this year in securing wagons, the military authorities requiring them for their needs. There have been many instances where merchants have had to wait six and eight days to secure railroad accommodations for their merchandise and furthermore, it may be added, that at times the Fabre line declined to take on the same boat the entire shipment from one grower.

The Late Henry Kirke White.

Henry Kirke White, vice-president of D. M. Ferry & Co., well-known seedsmen of Detroit, Mich., died suddenly in that city, September 23, aged 77 years. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Mr. White was born in Unadilla, N. Y., but removed to Illinois when 18 years old, and in 1859 went to Detroit, where he entered the employ of M. T. Gardner & Co., now D. M. Ferry & Co. He was admitted to the firm in 1865 and became its vice-president in 1905. He also had other business connections, being identified with a number of banks and insurance companies as an officer and director. Surviving are his widow, three sons and one daughter.

Kentucky's Pure Seed Law in Effect.

The new pure seed law, enacted at the last session of the Kentucky general assembly, and approved by the governor March 23, becomes operative September 30. In a bulletin just issued the director of the Kentucky experiment station, discussing the law, says: "The interests of both the farmer and the seedsmen are comprehended by the new law. Its intention is to afford the farmer protection against contaminated and worthless seeds and to protect and encourage those parties engaged in the production and marketing of high grade farm seeds. The reputation and adaptation of Kentucky for the seeds of bluegrass, sweet clover, hemp and white Burley tobacco is already recognized and the operation of the pure seed law is expected to establish our seed-producing industry on a still more secure basis.

"Under the provisions of the new law seedsmen are permitted to test their own seeds and to use the results of these tests on their tags. But all tests must be made according to the rules and regulations adopted and employed by the Association of Official Seed Analysts of North America.

"Kentucky farmers and seedsmen may submit samples to the experiment station for testing, which will be done free. Because of the congestion of work in the station laboratories, however, the larger seed concerns are advised to provide for their own testing."

American Seed Trade Association.

SPECIAL COMMITTEES.

President White has appointed the following special committees to serve during the current year 1916-17:

To All Florists Using French Bulbs:

Vaughan's Seed Store advertisements and catalogues offer these bulbs by stated measure and in regular cases. Others report seeing advertisements of this stock which do not give measurements of the bulbs.

Why not get samples of French Paper Whites and the like this season before you place advance contract orders for 1917?

Vaughan's prices, grading considered, will average over fifteen per cent lower than those of our competitors, because bought early by our own agent in France and paid for in cash or on short terms.

Our present price of $7.85 per 1000 for the largest size of Paper White Grandiflora now obtainable, proves this statement.

Advance contract orders booked by us for Paper Whites will be filled with the larger sizes.

Write for our delivered prices on Lily Bulbs. Vaughan's Formosum run larger in all grades than those of other dealers.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

M. L. Ruetenic, Cleveland, O., President; Howard W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., Treasurer.

Next annual convention will be held in Chicago, September 26-29, 1916.

BELMONT, MASS.—Charles E. Chennery, one of the pioneer market gardeners in this state, died at his home here, September 14, aged 75 years.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—A pageant in five episodes depicting the development of farm practice and equipment from the time of the Indian to the present day, will be a feature of the agricultural fair to be held here during Veiled Prophets' week, October 2-7.

PRICES paid producers in the United States for the principal crops increased 9.3 per cent during August and on September 1 the average was 21.9 per cent higher than a year ago and 18.6 per cent higher than the average for the same date during the past eight years.

THE Vegetable Growers Association of America is holding its ninth annual convention at Chicago this week with a large attendance, fine programme and trade exhibition. Some account of the early sessions will be found elsewhere in this issue. Many prominent market gardeners representing all sections of the country are taking part in the proceedings.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Mushrooms, home grown, 25 to 35 cents per pound; lettuce, tomato boxes, 20 cents; radishes, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, 35 to 40 cents per box; tomatoes, climax baskets, 30 cents; cucumbers, per climax basket, 10 cents to 25 cents.

New York, Sept. 26.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $4.00; cucumbers, 65 cents to $3.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 6 cents to 12 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per strap, 75 cents to $1.00.

Acreage Contracted for by Cannerys.

A preliminary estimate has been prepared by the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture from the number of factories reporting in 1915 and 1916, with the total acreage given of corn, peas and tomatoes, the product from which was manufactured. No account is taken of tonnage bought outside of contract. The estimate is as follows:

Corn—Total number of factories reporting in 1916 was 287 as compared with 284 in 1915, the acreage being 191,820 in 1916 and 168,264 in 1915.

Peas—Factories reporting in 1916 numbered 181 with an acreage of 70,364 as compared with 180 factories with an acreage of 80,596 in 1915.

Tomatoes—The number of factories reporting in 1916 was 789, with an acreage of 130,157; in 1915, 774 factories with an acreage of 96,338.

Milwaukee.

PRONOUNCED SHORTAGE FOLLOWS FROST.

The recent frost, as reported last week, did enough damage to cause a pronounced shortage in a general way. This makes it inconvenient to fill orders, as the only thing that is what one would call plentiful are roses. With asters and dahlias off of the market, the few good gladioli that do come in are picked up quickly. The supply of carnations is still very limited and generally sold before unpacked. Owing to the shortage all kinds of lilies move briskly.

NOTES.

The writer in company with Wm. R. Schroeder, Gust Pohl, Nic Zweifel and Fred Holton, took a look at the various growing establishments in the latter's auto; mainly carnation growers were visited and the present outlook for a steady cut in quantity is somewhat distant, especially should we get a prolonged dark spell, otherwise most of the stock looked good and healthy. At the Schroeder Floral Co. they were finishing repairing the damage done by the hailstorm in April. Stock looks very promising. At A. Reinhardt's place in North Milwaukee, which is in prime condition, we found the "boss" busy getting the heating system in order for business. A new Kroeschell boiler has been installed. At Wm. Manke & Co.'s place they have finished moving a 45-foot brick chimney, 15 feet nearer to the boiler. It was a difficult task which took just a week. At the Greenwood Carnation Co., where they got through planting later than usual, everybody is busy trying to make the plant get a "move on." The Grunwald Bros.' place is in good order and the plants look promising; they have a good color and seem to take to the soil well. At Brown Deer, the Mueller Greenhouses will soon produce a crop of fine carnations; those grown under glass all summer look especially fine; a few new varieties are being given a chance this season on a moderate scale. Last, but not least, we visited the Holton & Hunkel range, which, from beginning to end, was in "apple-pie" order. All the roses are thrifty with no signs of mildew; a house of Russells in full bloom caught the writer's fancy; a lot of 4,000 cyclamen in various sizes are well done; other stock, such as ferns, bougainvilleas, solanums and the various green goods, all look good enough for the most critical.

The A. F. Kellner Co., who did most of the work at the fall openings of the department stores, last week, again showed what a person who knows how can do with stock which used for this purpose cannot always be kept in A No. 1 shape. This week they are busy decorating booths at the Auditorium for the pure food show.

Gust Pohl, who grows a great quantity of stevia every year, had all his plants out doors when the recent frost came along, but by burning paper around the hatch about daybreak, he saved every one.

Harry Mann, formerly with Gust Rusch & Co., on September 23, opened a retail flower store at Vliet and 24th streets. Always room for one more.

Next week, Thursday, October 5, is florist club meeting and a large attendance ought to turn out and help start something. E. O.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Miss M. Carroll, well known to the trade here, has opened a flower store at Shenandoah and Grand avenues.

PECONIC, L. I., N. Y.—D. V. Howell, the dahlia specialist, is exhibiting largely at the Riverhead fair this week. His display of dahlias is fine and well worth looking at. Mr. Howell took 10 first premiums, four second premiums and the blue ribbon for general display.

Summer-Flowering Shrubs.

The flowers of many shrubs can now be seen in the arboretum, and others will appear almost constantly until the late autumn or early winter, when the witch hazels carry the period of blooming into another year. The last of the azaleas, the two white-flowered species of eastern North America, Rhododendron (Azalea) arborescens and R. (Azalea) viscosum, are now in bloom. A mass of the former can be seen on the right-hand side of the Valley road in front of the hickories, and Rhododendron (Azalea) viscosum can be seen in quantity on both sides of the Meadow road. Azaleas of different species have been flowering continuously in the arboretum since the middle of May, and the blooming of no other group of plants extends here over such a long period, although that of the viburnums and cornels is almost as long.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July 19, 1916.

Spiraea Henryi.

Though introduced by E. H. Wilson as long ago as 1900, when collecting in China for J. Veitch & Sons, this spiraea is now making its presence felt in many gardens. Young plants make very rapid progress after the roots get well established, by throwing up vigorous stems, at first erect, then arching. No flowers are produced by these stems the first year, and they are termed barren. They are characterized by the length they attain in one season and by the large size of the leaves they bear. In these respects the species closely resemble S. canescens from the Himalayas, and the two are certainly not distantly related, for the latter is a very variable plant. Species belonging to diverse orders in the Himalayas are linked up by related or connected forms, extending through China to Japan, and this would indicate a natural line of direction of distribution extending back to relatively ancient times, and no doubt still in progress. Both these spiraeas, during the second season, produce short side branches terminating in a large, corymb or cyme of white flowers, and when the barren shoots of the previous year are long, say four feet to six feet or more, the effect is bold and pleasing. The leaves are much smaller on the flowering twigs, and this brings the flowers into greater prominence. On very vigorous shoots of the previous year the internodes are long, but as growth becomes more staid by a fuller occupation of the ground by the roots, the internodes are shorter and the trusses of blossom touch one another. I have noted both conditions of the shrub this year, the stronger growth in the gardens of the Royal Horticultural Society at Wisley. The habit of the species indicates that it should be planted in an open position, where the arching branches can develop equally on all sides, and not in a crowded shrubbery.—J. F. in London Gardeners' Chronicle, July 22, 1916.

Lightning Danger of Trees.

Recently statistics have been collected in different parts of Germany as to the danger of different varieties of trees being struck by lightning. The result has been the following percentages: Oak, 32.1; larch, 9.5; fir, 3.8; pine, 1.8; scotch fir, 0.9; birch, 1.4; beech, 0.3; and alder, 0.0.

The character of the soil is an important factor among others as to the lightning danger. Trees growing in moist soils and along the courses of rivers and brooks and in the neighborhood of ponds are especially exposed to the danger. Trees with deep penetrating roots are more easily struck than those with shallow roots nearer the surface. As proof of this is the greater frequency of the apple tree being struck than the pear in the same orchard. It is also stated that the poplar stands first in danger before the oak, elm, ash, gum, and pear tree. Together with the beech the least attractive to lightning are chestnut, maple, alder, and mountain ash. Between these two groups stand the apple, cherry, linden, and walnut.

During thunder storms it is advisable therefore to avoid oaks, poplars, all varieties of pine, willows, elm and pear. If shelter is taken under a tree, which is always dangerous, it should not be under one standing alone. The planting of trees which attract lightning is recommended in the neighborhood of houses, especially poplars, partly to prevent the possibility of the rebounding of the lightning. It is well to provide such trees with metallic rods to make them really effective conductors of lightning.

The Glory Fern (Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa)

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

This splendid Fern which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over a half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense can not be used at all. Since its introduction some 5 or 6 years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand. With this in mind we have prepared this season an extra large stock, which is in prime condition and we now offer select.

4 inch pots, $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100
6 inch pots, $1.00 each

For a Complete list of seasonable stock see our current Wholesale List.
The above offer is intended for the trade only.

Greenhouse Heating.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I have a greenhouse, 20x45 feet, which I wish to heat with hot water. There are four benches. My boiler is an 1848 B Capitol. I also have 700 feet of two-inch pipe. Would I get better results by having two 2½-inch overhead flows and four 4-pipe coils of two-inch pipe under my benches, or have my four 4-pipe coils for flows, having them raise to the far end of my house and return in four 2½-inch returns? I have no generator. Would 2½-inch returns be large enough for returns? The house is used for carnations. Top of boiler is two feet below floor level of greenhouse. E.

Illinois.

We do not recall the capacity of a 1848 Capitol heater, but if it has a rating of 400 square feet of hot water radiation, it will be amply large for heating a greenhouse 20x45 feet for growing carnations.

The amount of radiation suggested is nearly twice as much as will be needed. There is no occasion for using more than eight 2-inch returns. These may be divided into four coils of two pipes each and supplied by two 2½-inch flow pipes, or since there is more 2-inch pipe than will be required for the returns, we would suggest that three 2-inch flows be used, placing one upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge. Place two of the returns under each bench and supply the two middle coils from the overhead flow pipe.

If the sides of the houses are very much exposed, it may be helpful if four flow pipes are used, two being upon the plates and the others under the purlins, and one flow can then be used for each coil. The 2-inch flows may be connected directly with the boiler, or one 2½-inch pipe may be used for the main flow. While this would answer when four flows are used, it may then be better to use 2½-inch flows as mains to supply them. We would then use two 2½-inch main returns, although one would answer if there is only one return port.

KROESCHELL TUBELESS BOILER
For Steam, Hot Water, Vapor or Vacuum Heating Systems

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned, we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by anyone but THE KROESCHELL BROS. CO. We have no agents, and, as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

APHINE MANUFACTURING COMPANY
MADISON, N. J.

Providence, R. I.

BUSINESS IS SATISFACTORY.

Business during the past week has been good. While asters are becoming more limited in supply but carnations are beginning to arrive and roses are good in quality and meet with a ready sale. The supply of gladioli is shortening daily and prices are advancing in consequence. Dahlias have been very popular this year.

NOTES.

The fall openings of the department stores in this city have created a good demand for palms, many being used in the decorations.

The Westminster Greenhouses are getting their new houses well in shape. They make a vast improvement to this range.

Smith, The Florist, has had his auto repainted and it makes a fine showing.

H. A. T.

SUMMIT, N. J.—Chas. T. Behr will build a range on Passaic street.

CLEVELAND, O.—Jack Keck has moved to new and more commodious quarters at 9002 Cedar avenue, where, in addition to his florist business, he will make a feature of landscape designing. He will also carry a full line of seeds, bulbs, baskets, etc. He anticipates business during the coming season to show an increase of about 75 per cent.

Aetna Brand Tankage Fertilizer

Is a fertilizer carrying in perfect proportion the ten salts constituting soil. It possesses the means of restoring to the soil the native salt or plant food taken up by a crop in its growth, and in so doing maintains the proper percentage of fertility to sustain and build up a healthy crop. It is used by the largest florists in the United States and is unsurpassed as a fertilizer in the cultivation of tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce and cereals.

DIETSCH SHORT SPAN HOUSES are the result of the application of four iron-clad rules of greenhouse construction: ventilation, cost, maintenance and safety. Some of the largest and most successful vegetable greenhouse plants in the country are built upon the Dietsch plan and with material we have furnished. The most discriminating buyers after a thorough investigation usually decide by building Dietsch houses with Dietsch material.

Second Annual Meeting Held at New York, Sept. 26-28, 1916

Supplementing Report in Last Week's Issue.

A Highly Successful Show.

As announced in our issue of September 30, page 546, the annual exhibition of the American Dahlia Society was held in the Engineering building, 25-33 West Thirty-ninth street, New York, September 26-28, in conjunction with the American Institute.

It is a far cry from the dahlias of our grandmothers' gardens with their quilled, perfectly rounded forms to the giant, peony-flowered, decorative and cactus types of today. The exhibition which was thrown open to the public on the evening of September 26, proved a revelation even to many who thought themselves well posted on this gorgeous garden flower. It was far and away the best exhibition of dahlias ever seen in the United States, or as President Richard Vincent, Jr., said to several admirers dahlia enthusiasts, "No one has ever seen better; it is the finest show ever staged anywhere." And not caring to dispute so high an authority, and being the best by far it has ever been our pleasure to enjoy, we say
"Amen," and will try to describe it.

The exhibition was staged in two large rooms on the fifth floor, well lighted during the day and brilliant at night with indirect illumination from behind the cornices at the ceiling. There were about 350 entries from all sections of the eastern and middle states and as far south as Kentucky.
The long stemmed classes were staged on tables arranged around the walls, while the individual blooms were displayed down the center on wide tables the length of the halls. These latter were the feature of the show. There were two tables with some 600 vases each, these containing single specimen flowers that had been nurtured with the greatest care, many of them measuring from six to eight inches in diameter. The receptacles were half-pint milk bottles and supported the blooms admirably. Every type seemed to be at its best and equally beautiful—decorative, peony-flowered, cactus, show and fancy were all seen in various colors in their classes or intermingled in beautiful color contrasts in collections of 100, 50 or 25, each flower resting on a leaf which seemed to hold up the petals and project the bloom slightly toward the front. All of the varieties were labeled and many of the visitors were kept busy taking down the names of the ones they most admired.

Maurice Fuld, New York, had large exhibits in these classes and won six first and two second prizes. Many especially fine specimens were seen in this exhibit, among them being Sulphurea, Sulphur King, Mrs. Nathaniel Slocumb, Mrs. Francis King, Glory of New Haven and White Excelsior.

W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass., was away out in front in these specimen blooms, sweeping the record clean in the 100, 50, 25 and 10 flower classes. His blossoms were superb; the varieties that especially stood out were Neiberlungenhort, Jean Charmer, Cuban Giant, Kalif, Dudley C. Hathaway 2nd, Geisha, Manitou, W. D. Hathaway, Mon. Leonard Monde, and Be-loït. In fact, all were very fine and showed great culture. Mr. Hathaway was awarded 10 first and three second prizes. George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., who has generally carried off the first honors at recent dahlia shows, although he had his usually fine display and entries in all classes, failed to score, showing how the standard is being raised.

The best single exhibit was that of
W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., whose table extended across and filled one end of the front hall. The flowers were beautifully arranged against a background of black velvet.
Tall standards, supporting numerous small vases, held long stemmed flowers, which were so placed as to make large loose bouquets, with the flowers all facing the front. Below these were placed a number of baskets of one variety each, and on the balance of the table in front were displayed the small vases of choice single specimens.
Fall grasses and asparagus sprays were used to decorate the vases and table, which was finished with a green baize curtain along the front. This is the English style of displaying blooms at flower shows, and is most effective. It was easily the feature of the show, and was awarded the H. F. Michell gold medal for the finest and most meritorious display.

The center of the hall contained the single blooms, some 1,200 separate specimens in all the many types, noteworthy being the narrow twisted cactus, with their huge clusters of twisted petals in color as varied as the rainbow; as they stood in their vases in large blocks, they attracted much attention.

At the opposite end of the hall from the Burpee exhibit was that of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md. At the rear was a row of vases holding flowers with long stems, in front of which were several hundred short stemmed specimen flowers in short vases. Asparagus green was freely used to set off the brilliant colors of the flowers. It was a very fine collection of most of the popular exhibition sorts.

The table of O. P. Chapman, Jr., Westerly, R. I., in this hall was filled with enormous single specimen blooms. Baskets at the corners and center were nicely arranged with choice longer stemmed stock. The general excellence of these flowers was commented upon by all the visitors.

The largest flower was the red cactus, Valiant, which measured 10½ inches in diameter. J. Gowiana, of Leoni, N. J., was the exhibitor. Alongside was the smallest, a red pompon, called Belle of Springfield, about one inch in diameter, staged by Wm. Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. J.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., exhibited a table of his seedlings; many of them giant flowers. His Joseph and Albert Manda are two immense flowers. Mrs. A. J. Du Pont is another choice variety. Minnie Burgess is a stunning red. Mr. Manda says he has had flowers of Albert Manda 11½ inches in diameter.

Rahalian from E. D. Adams, Rumson, N. J., is a single white with a wide edge to each petal of a brownish yellow or buff, a very striking novelty. A cactus Geisha, between Geisha and J. B. Fry, is a wonderfully fine flower. J. F. Anderson, Bernardsville, N. J., was the exhibitor. A vase of Valiant with very long stems, an immense flower, was a conspicuous feature. This was staged by J. Gowiana, Leoni, N. J. Mrs. J. F. Cartledge, Locust Valley, N. Y., arranged a vase of assorted long stemmed flowers to which the judges were glad to award a blue ribbon; it contained splendid specimens. C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., won out with a vase of cactus with stems 12 to 15 inches, against two competitors whose stock was much longer stemmed and larger flowers; quality of bloom was no doubt the factor.

Wm. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., won first for vases of very fine singles. This class seemed rather to be neglected, as there were not many entries. A small collection of collar-ettes by C. Louis Alling was strikingly beautifully; they were crowded in between two entries of long stemmed stock but should have had a place in the open. The feature of the exhibit of the Brookcrest Gardens, Cranberry, N. J., was their pompons, which were very interesting and beautiful, being perfectly and regularly formed and of brilliant coloring.

The prize for the largest collection in the amateur class was won by Wm. P. Thomas, Fort Thomas, Ky. These flowers were brought 800 miles, but were as fresh and perfect as if cut the day before.

The seedling selected from six competitors to be named after "Mrs. Gertrude Dahl Mordecai" was a pale primrose pink, a beautiful peony flowered variety. It was staged by Mrs. Charles H. Stout, Short Hills, N. J. It is very distinct.

The feature in design work was a tall vase five feet in height, on base, all made of Sylvia dahlias. It was also filled with the same variety on long stems. It was very tastefully arranged and a credit to the artists, Young & Nugent, New York.

Max Schling staged a large high-handled basket of dahlias that was very showy; also a trellis window box which had the unique feature of a mirror in place of the usual trellis. This was divided by rustic sticks into four parts, resembling window panes; the plants and flowers in the box being reflected in the mirror, added not a little to its effectiveness. A tall, round, group of dahlia flowers, grasses and other foliage in the center of the hall was quite effective. This was staged by Harold Cottam, Wappingers Falls, N. Y. Fred P. Webber, Newport, R. I., exhibited splendid pompons. His Douglas Tucker, violet and Ideal were splendidly formed flowers of this miniature class. John P. Rooney's peony dahlia, Mrs. Frederick Grinnell, is a beauty; it has received gold, silver and bronze medals and certificates at previous exhibitions and added the society's certificate of merit to its collection. It is a splendid flower, a true peony of a rich cerise shade of pink, and is held to be a wonderful keeper.

A very fine white decorative, Jean Kerr, a seedling of the W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s collection, raised by George W. Kerr, and named in honor of his daughter, received the society's certificate of merit. Frank P. Quinby also received a certificate for Fiery Cross, a crimson peony.

Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., staged a table of fine flowers; handsome specimens of all the various types. R. L. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., entered in a number of classes, his peonies and cactus being very fine. He won five first and two seconds. Wm. J. Mathison, Huntington, N. Y., won first for 50 flowers in variety; they were splendid specimens. W. D. Hathaway's 100 cactus won first while Geo. H. Walker's 100 were just a shade smaller for second. George L. Stillman's Millionaire is a wonderfully large decorative, a lilac pink in color. It is well named, as $10.00 is the price, per plant.

There were many other entries, all of which would a year or two back have been sporting blue ribbons, but to win now we must be ever on the alert as the standard is being rapidly raised, and one never knows how high until placed in the competition of such a show as this.

The Business Meeting.

The second annual meeting of the society was held in the Engineering building, Tuesday afternoon, September 26, being called to order by President Richard Vincent, Jr., who, after a short opening talk, welcomed the members of the society, about 35 or 40 of whom were present, after which he delivered his address, which had been printed, as were also the reports of the secretary and treasurer, and which were given to the members. Secretary J. Harrison Dick read his report and that of Treasurer Austin, both of which showed the society to be in a flourishing condition, the membership numbering over 250, and there is a substantial balance in the treasury. Both President Vincent and Secretary Dick urged the members to do all they could to increase the membership, which they thought ought to be doubled before another year. President Vincent thanked the members for their confidence. He praised the show, which he said was the best he had ever seen, and expressed the opinion that it would require twice as much space to properly display the exhibition next year.

The election of officers resulted in the continuance of those now in charge of the society's affairs for the ensuing year.

A discussion of membership dues resulted in the dropping of the $1 in-itation fee, leaving the annual dues at $2. A class of honorary or contributing members was provided for, so that those who desired to aid the society could do so, the annual charge for such membership to be $5.

The American Dahlia Society's classification scheme which had been prepared by Prof. F. H. Hall, Geneva, N. Y., and endorsed by the executive committee at its meeting November 6, 1915, was unanimously adopted. This classification includes nine types or sections. The type of flower for each section is minutely described and well known varieties having such characteristics are cited, so that anyone may be able to determine to which section certain flowers belong. The members were urged to do all in their power to see that this classification became standard with all who issued catalogues, which would greatly simplify the nomenclature of the dahlia. With the assistance of Professor Hall, the society is arranging to publish a list of about 4,000 varieties which will contain the names of those of value that are now in cultivation. It will be arranged alphabetically, each name being preceded by the initial letter of the class to which it belongs. A rising vote of thanks was given to Professor Hall, Secretary Dick and others who have done so much for the society during the past year. The status of an amateur was discussed and the definition as understood by the New Haven, (Conn.) County Horticultural Society, which follows, was adopted: "By the word 'Amateur' is understood a person who maintains a garden with a view to his or her own use and enjoyment and not for the purpose of making a profit or gaining a livelihood. The fact of their disposing of surplus stock for money does not change them into professional gardeners, unless the maintenance of the garden is intended to return them an annual profit. No person can compete in the amateur classes who permanently employs a trained florist, gardener, or nurseryman, or who is employed as such."

Among the members present was Mrs. Gertrude Dahl Mordecai, of Charlestown, S. C., a direct descendant of Sir Andrew Dahl, for whom the dahlia was named. Mrs. Mordecai offered to carry the best wishes of the society to the Garden Club of Cincinnati at its dahlia exhibition in October, which she expects to attend.

The time of the next annual meeting and the place of holding the next exhibition was left in the hands of the executive committee. The meeting then adjourned.

President Vincent, in speaking of the work of the society, said that to get a membership of 250 and raise over $1,000 in one year was something of which to be proud. He also commended the bulletins edited by Secretary Dick, which have been sent out to the members quarterly. They are full of valuable information of importance to all lovers of the dahlia.

"Chiggers" or Harvest Mites.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

An open grass plot about 100 feet square at my summer camp has become infested with "chiggers" and all attempts to get rid of them seem unavailing. I have seen in old gardens and cemeteries a plant which is either a close crawler or a low grower, from one to two inches high with a strong minty odor which I thought might drive them away. Can you give me any information?

Iowa.

The elimination of harvest mites or "chiggers" on lawns and in vegetation in country grounds can be accomplished by keeping the grass, weeds and useless herbage mowed as closely as possible in order to expose the mites to the sun; also, by dusting the grass and other plants, after cutting, with flowers of sulphur, or by spraying with dilute kerosene emulsion in which sulphur has been mixed. Grasses on borders of ponds frequented by cattle, wild blackberry bushes and similar plants in the vicinity of houses should also be cut down and destroyed. Well-cultivated fields, kept free from weeds, are not infested with "chiggers" and in the course of a year or two the measures prescribed, if carefully carried out, should free the grass plot from the pests.

Vegetable Growers' Association

Ninth Annual Convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, Hotel La Salle, Chicago, September 26-29, 1916.

Successful Meeting Closes.

The ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, a preliminary account of which appeared in our issue of September 30, pages 541 to 545 inclusive, together with list of trade exhibits and portraits of prominent men identified with the meeting, has passed into history as one of the most successful from all points of view since the inception of the organization. There was not a dull moment from the time of the opening of the meeting Tuesday morning until the last pleasantries were exchanged at the banquet Friday evening, as will be seen by the account of the various business sessions and hospitalities given below.

There were no business sessions Wednesday morning or afternoon, the day being devoted to an inspection of the gardens and greenhouses on the north side of the city, and in spite of the inclement weather, the trip was made by 564 persons in 94 automobiles, decorated with banners bearing the association's name, escorted by two uniformed officers of the motorcycle squad and accompanied by a band. The first stop was made at Louis Corneille's establishment, where the visitors watched the force with much interest as the vegetables were tied and packed for delivery. The greater part of the remainder of the day was spent at the Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s extensive range at Morton Grove, the bad condition of the roads precluding several stops originally planned. This establishment is devoted exclusively to cut flowers and plants and those in the party who had not previously had the opportunity of visiting the place were astonished at its huge proportions and the splendid condition of the stock in general throughout the entire 2,000,000 feet of glass. Following the inspection of the greenhouses the entire party proceeded to the Wayside Inn nearby where a splendid dinner was served, after which Chairman Fred Lautenschlager of the Chicago convention committee introduced W. L. Kroeschell as toastmaster, who in turn called upon August Geweke, president of the Cook County Truck Gardeners' and Farmers' Association, that gentleman responding with a splendid talk on organization, and advised the younger generation to stick to the farm with its unlimited opportunities as compared with the crowded cities. L. L. Corbett, of Washington, D. C., proved an interesting speaker as he told of the comparative costs of heating, which varied from seven cents per day per 1,000 feet of glass to 30 cents per day for the same amount. His treatment of the subject brought out much valuable information to many of those present. Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, told of the advantages that come from being properly schooled—the gain that is accomplished by practical work in market gardening rather than the study of books. He stated that Cook county was one of the 10 largest market gardening centers in the United States, being the seventh on the list, Lancaster county, Pa., being first; Los Angeles county, Calif., second, and that six of the leading 10 were also Illinois counties. Professor C. W. Ward, of the Michigan Agricultural College, was a pleasing talker, speaking on the subject of market gardening in general and he kept his audience in an uproar with his keen humor. Paul Work, secretary of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, painted a mind picture of a large pyramid, comparing it to what might be accomplished through the proper methods of organization as regards the gardeners' national association. He expressed the opinion that the national body should be supported by the state organizations, and these in turn by the county and local factors, all of which would result in an organization that is much needed at the present time. Professor C. E. Durst, Urbana, Ill., also spoke on the matter of organization and the value of it, citing the labor unions as an example, showing how members received the high wage scale for eight hours' work, while many workers in vegetable ranges worked often as much as 14 hours a day for much less money. R. L. Watts, director of the Pennsylvania state experiment station, told of a recent visit to Urbana, where he inspected the University of Illinois greenhouses, built by the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, and added that he wished the experiment station had some like them to carry on its educational work. At the close of Mr. Watts' interesting talk, the party returned to the Hotel La Salle in a happy mood, arriving in time for dinner.

The Wednesday evening session, designated as the "Better Seeds" session, was called to order promptly at eight o'clock by Vice-president Selby. Professor C. E. Durst acted as chairman of the meeting and the subject was discussed by many of the prominent members present. A paper by Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, entitled, "The Seedsman's Attitude Toward Nomenclature," was very interesting and brought forth a lively discussion, but the speaker was fully equal to the occasion and ably defended his position from attacks on all sides, and at the close of the topic, all present seemed to view the seedsman's position from a different angle, satisfied that in the future better seeds could be obtained if the grower would pay a price commensurate with quality. "The Relation of the Seedsman's Disclaimer to the Purchase of Vegetable Seeds," by A. L. Stone, president of the American Seed Analysts' Association, Madison, Wis., was also very interesting and was followed by a brisk discussion. It was after eleven o'clock before the session was called adjourned.

At six o'clock Thursday morning a large number of the visiting members inspected the South Water street produce market and the West Randolph street farmers' market. The visits to both were interesting as well as instructive and gave an idea as to the vast quantities of stock that is handled in these wholesale markets daily. The party returned to the hotel in time to attend the morning session, which was devoted almost entirely to the roundtable discussion, "Greenhouse Problems," led by R. L. Watts. Following this, Secretary Severance reported that the executive board had held a meeting regarding the acceptance of the invitation to hold the 1917 meeting at Springfield, Mass., and suggested that the association accept same, which was done, the vote being unanimous. The secretary was instructed to notify the Springfield growers immediately by telegram. C. W. Waid, after asking the 45 members present from Michigan to stand, extended an invitation to the association to hold its 1918 convention at Detroit. Just previous to the close of the session the school children from Niles Center and South Niles Center marched into the meeting room carrying a large banner and were addressed by Vice-president Selby, who warmly complimented them on their fine exhibit and told them to carry forward the good work, as some day he expected they would be the ones to carry on the work of the national organization. The children were roundly cheered as they marched proudly from the hall, bearing the new name of Junior Market Gardeners' Club, bestowed upon them by Vice-president Selby.

The Thursday afternoon session was devoted to the subject, "Marketing Vegetables," and the talk by Vice-president Selby was listened to with much interest and later was discussed by many of those present. Following the discussion, L. W. C. Tuthill of New York, gave a very interesting talk on the subject of advertising, explaining how the grower could use it as a business builder. These two subjects occupied the time of the entire session.

A feature of the Friday morning session was the roundtable discussion, "Extension Work for Vegetable Growers," led by C. W. Waid of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, followed by A. T. Erwin, Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, who had for his subject, "Seed Selection and Plant Improvement for the Vegetable Grower." This number was originally scheduled as part of the programme for Wednesday evening. After a discussion of both the subjects mentioned, the committee on resolutions made its report in which the Chicago convention committee and others were thanked for their aid in making the association's ninth convention the splendid success it proved to be. The Cook county school children were awarded a certificate of merit for the splendid display of vegetables exhibited by them. The committee on election of officers recommended the following for the coming year: Howard W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., president; H. F. Thompson, Arlington, Mass., vice-president; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., treasurer. There being no further nominations, the election was declared unanimous and they will take office January 1, 1917. The meeting then adjourned to permit the ladies to be the guests of the local entertainment committee, the programme including luncheon at Marshall Field & Co.'s store.

The banquet which was held at the Hotel La Salle, Friday evening, was a most enjoyable affair, about 170 participating. W. L. Kroeschell acted as toastmaster and the speakers of the evening included Howard W. Selby, R. L. Watts, C. W. Waid, E. A. Dunbar, Fred Lautenschlager.

MURRAY HILL, N. J.—Notwithstanding the fact that a 15 per cent wage increase was recently granted at the range of L. B. Coddington, the rose specialist, 50 Italians employed there went on a strike for more pay September 21.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The state entomologist is arranging for a display of the injurious insects of the state; also beneficial parasites which affect any of the trades represented. Florists desiring to make displays can secure full information by addressing T. H. Joy or Leo Geny of this city.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Early Fall Care.

The days are shortening quite rapidly as the month of September passes, and this reminds the palm grower once more of the need for early watering, so that the plants may dry off fairly well before night, for too much condensed moisture on the foliage during the night is conducive to fungoid troubles, and also seems to check the growth to some extent.

When the outdoor temperature falls to 50 degrees at night, it is well to have a little fire heat in the houses, while keeping the ventilators raised enough to give a circulation of air to the plants, this method providing a much better atmosphere than will be had from closing down the houses in order to retain the sun heat in them. Plants do not dry out nearly so rapidly at this season as they do in May and June, but it is well to take into consideration the fact that a palm is more likely to be injured by having too little water than by getting too much, provided that the drainage of the pots or tubs is in good condition.

The stock that was shifted in the early summer should now be well rooted and in a proper condition for selling, and to keep it in that condition will require some attention on the part of the grower, plenty of ventilation in bright weather being one of the essentials in producing plants with that hard and leathery foliage that will endure the atmospheric conditions of a dwelling for a reasonable period.

Too much nitrogenous manure is liable to cause trouble by making the plants soft and the leafstalks brittle, but this fertilizer question is one that is best to work out by experiments with your own soil, bearing in mind the fact that cow manure used in moderation is a safe fertilizer for most soils, even though it also produces a good crop of earth worms in most cases. The subsoiling work of the worms is doubtless of value outdoors in the fields, but is a very questionable asset to the indoor grower, and the latter, viz., the pot plant grower, frequently finds it necessary to water the plants with lime water in order to expel the worms.

The month of September also marks another interesting period to the palm grower, from the fact that it is at about this time that another outbreak of some of the scale insects is liable to appear. Several varieties of these pests seem to produce two broods in the year, namely in May and in September, and the latter crop is the one that develops so swiftly after the fires are started, and does much harm in a short time unless preventive measures are taken. Preventive dips in soap solution are among the safest and best remedies for this trouble, bearing in mind the fact that to accomplish the greatest good the dip should be applied while the insects are young, and before they have had time to build their defences, or rather their scaly covers.

Yellow thrips is also a troublesome insect in the palm house, and as the reproduction of this insect does not seem to be confined to any particular season of the year, it becomes necessary for the grower to be continually on the watch, else the scars of the thrip will soon be found on either upper or lower surfaces of the leaves. Kentias and arecas are particularly susceptible to attacks of thrips, and the man in charge of the syringing should always be on the watch for it. Soap solution, with a proportion of nicotine added, is an excellent remedy for this pest and may be applied either with a spray pump or in the form of a dip, the latter being the most effective.

Mention has been made in the horticultural press of the fact that Cocos Weddelliana is in short supply in the American market, and this seems to be due more to the variable quality of the seeds than to any interference with the supply, the seeds of this variety being chiefly received from South America. But Cocos Weddelliana soon loses its vitality, and when carelessly packed, and sometimes chilled by exposure in transit, the percentage of germination is greatly reduced.

Then there is also the possibility that some of the seeds have been unripe or poorly developed at the time of picking, for as received these seeds vary in size from that of a pea to nearly three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and the seedlings that come from them vary as much in size and strength. The seed was particularly poor about two years ago, and this would account for the shortage in the present season, at least in plants in three and four-inch pots and larger.

Phoenix Roebelinii is another good variety, of which the seed supply is somewhat erratic, and this will affect the supply of young plants sooner or later. And this question of supply and demand, and the increasing cost of production, brings up something else, and we wonder if the grower is not fully justified in asking a slight advance on the former low prices for many plants of this class.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Ferns at Tarrytown.

The Boston, with its various types, has become one of the best florist's plants. The many varieties in all sizes are so full and showy, such an eyefull for the money, that their sale is probably greater than that of any other decorative plant. Most growers are successful with this class of ferns, but to see them at their very best one must journey to the F. R. Pierson Co.'s establishment at Tarrytown, N. Y., who, with its Piersonii, has the distinction of obtaining the first break in this important family. Since then there have been sent out elegantissima, E. compacta, superbissima, muscosa and others. All of the above, except Piersonii, are grown here in quantity; the muscosa is a great seller in three and four-inch pot sizes as a plant for the fern dish, its heavy dark green mossy plumes being very distinctive and its short compact growth suitable for the low table fernery.

Teddy, Jr., is well thought of and there are several houses filled with it. Great care is taken to see that all plants are given a perfect finish. They are grown on the main benches, rather close together, but later, to make them more symmetrical and fill out the sides of the pot, the largest are selected and placed on narrow shelves over the beds, high up, near the glass, where they soon round up. These do not appear to harm the stock underneath by drip or shade, and yet as they stand in rows almost touch. By this method much require it. Benches of stock plants were seen planted out, this being the quickest and best means of propagating. Many fine plants in the different varieties were seen coming on to be grown as specimens for the various fall shows. The quality of the stock in its various stages is exceptionally good.

In the wonderfully handsome store there were displayed choice palms, ferns, caladiums and other fine plants. All the latest in vases and flower bowls, together with up-to-date baskets, show the class of customers catered to. The immense iced flower case was filled with gladioli, which flowers, together with Japanese lilies, made very showy window displays.

BRISK DEMAND CLEANS MARKET DAILY.

Business is excellent. The demand for stock has been so strong that the market has run short almost every day. Shipping business is very good. The supply of roses has increased somewhat, but still all that come into the market are selling. Carnations are in about the same supply as at last writing and are having a good market. Easter lilies are plentiful and sell well. Some excellent lily of the valley may be had. Dahlias have an excellent sale. They are not very plentiful. Other offerings include orchids, sweet peas and snapdragons.

NOTES.

L. H. Kyrk received the first violets of the season last September 29. They were from Geo. Klatter's establishment.

Geo. Fern had the decorations for the bankers' banquet, October 4.

C. E. Critchell has just received a large lot of basket novelties.

Visitors: Wm. H. Gardner, Richmond, Ind.; Harry E. Brandt, representing Werthheimer Bros., and H. C. Calish, representing A. Leipzig, New York.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

EXCELLENT SEPTEMBER TRADE.

A heavy frost has put an end to all outdoor stock and the weather is exceptionally cool. October Frost chrysanthemums are the latest arrival and Golden Glow is also in the market. Roses are improving in quality, especially Hoosier Beauty, Russell, Sawyer and Ophelia. Carnations are larger and prices are better. Other offerings include snapdragons, Easter lilies and a limited supply of lily of the valley. September business was very good this year, showing an increase over 1915.

NOTES.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey shipped 135 flowers of Cattleya labiata and vanda to St. Louis to be used in the production of the "Veiled Prophet" celebration.

Miss Rhoda Doswell of the Doswell Flower Shop is spending several weeks in St. Louis, Mo.

Visitor: Morris Grossberg, representing A. L. Vaughan & Co., Chicago.

H. K.

TUXEDO, MD.—James Corridon is adding one house to his establishment, which will be devoted to miscellaneous stock.

WICHITA, KAN.—Nicholas Phillips, 37 years of age, rose grower for Chas. P. Mueller, was instantly killed early last Sunday morning when the automobile which he was driving on a country road got beyond his control and was overturned.

RISE IN TEMPERATURE HURTS TRADE.

The weather for the past few days has been warmer and trade has not been quite as brisk as usual. There has been a scarcity of asters during the week as the ceremonies at the blessing of the graves cleaned up the crop pretty well. Gladioli are also scarce and there is but a small choice in cut flowers. Baskets of carnations, roses, asters and assorted flowers find ready sale aside from the few flowering plants that are in season. Roses clean up fairly well each day. Orchids and lily of the valley are plentiful and the demand is strong, as there are numerous weddings—almost as many as in June.

NOTES.

C. H. Ford, who represents A. Herrmann of New York and also has a big trade of his own, reports business very good, but he cannot get enough stock to fill all orders.

Ed Stroh, of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been in Attica at his greenhouses there, called on the trade recently. He will return to the Main street store in Buffalo soon.

Harry E. Bates has just returned from a southern trip and he reports business good, having booked a number of big orders for greenhouses.

F. Schlegel & Son, of South avenue, report that fall business is improving and that they had a big sale on Boston and Whitmanii ferns.

Charles Gow, formerly with H. E. Wilson, is serving in the English army, and his friends hear from him occasionally.

Arthur H. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham Co., is on a business trip to Pennsylvania and the east.

The New York Florist Store is showing some fine Boston ferns and Mexican primroses.

H. P. Neun had an excellent display of coreopsis at the North street store last week.

Max Lehman, formerly with H. P. Neun, is now with Max Schling, New York.

Visitors: J. H. Ruppert and P. L. Carbone, Boston, Mass.; Eber Holmes and W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.

CHESTER.

The Late Charles M. Griffing.

In the death of Charles M. Griffing, of the Interstate Nurseries, Macclenny, Florida, which occurred September 24, the horticultural interests of the state have sustained a severe loss. Mr. Griffing's passing came as a severe shock to his many friends, as he was in the prime of life and had been in good health until a few weeks before the end.

Coming to Florida from New York State in early boyhood, Mr. Griffing had made for himself an enviable place in the business life of the state by his industry and honesty. As a member of the Florida State Horticultural Society, the Florida Nurserymen's Association, an active member of the American Association of Nurserymen and of other national horticultural organizations, he was well and favorably known, and in Jacksonville his connections with the Chamber of Commerce and the First Christian church brought him into close relations with the many phases of work for the up-building of the city, in all of which he was deeply interested.

For years Mr. Griffing has been a consistent advocate of diversified agriculture and horticulture. Along this line he has contributed a number of articles to the farm press of the South. At the time his last illness came on, he was engaged in the preparation of additional material of this nature, under arrangements which would have given it very wide circulation. The deceased left an aged father, one sister, four brothers, a wife and several children, to whom has been extended the sympathy of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

TORONTO, ONT.—J. Neal, in addition to the erection of a work-shop and cooling room, has increased the capacity of his store.

Indiana-Kentucky Florists' Joint Meeting.

The joint meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Society of Kentucky Florists will be held at New Albany, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., October 17-18, instead of October 11-12, as originally announced.

O. E. STEINKAMP,
Sec'y State Florists' Ass'n of Ind.

Personal.

Prof. L. H. Bailey is busy at Ithaca, N. Y., giving the final touches to the sixth and closing volume of the New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture. The first four volumes have already been issued and the fifth will be out this month.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Calif., is making an eastern trip, due in Chicago, October 4.

RECORD-BREAKING frosts for this time of year are reported from Northeast Texas.

COLD weather is coming quick and all heavy shipments of tender plants should be made without delay.

C. W. WARD, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., is offering California azaleas to take the place of the Belgian grown stock.

AZALEAS.—The latest information on Belgian azaleas, received this week from New York sources which are usually well informed, are to the effect that azaleas will come forward and that some shipments are already on the way.

Sterilizing Sand For Cuttings.

Now that the cutting beds are filling up again, sterilizing the sand is worth considering. We do this very conveniently by using a metal wheelbarrow for the sand, first sifting the sand to remove pieces of cuttings, roots, etc. We run the wheelbarrow into the boiler room, where we sterilize the sand with steam by means of a 3/4-inch pipe about three feet long on the end of section of steam hose connected to the boiler. We push the end of the pipe well towards the bottom of the barrow load of sand; also pat down the surface of the sand all over to hold in the steam and cover with a piece of carpet or gunny sacking. It may be found advisable to shift the pipe once or twice. The time required varies somewhat, but about an hour will usually make the sand very hot. We used our sand over and over again all winter and had no trouble.

ASSISTANT GARDENERS' ESSAY CONTEST.

The closing date of the National Association of Gardeners' essay contest for assistant gardeners is drawing near. The prizes offered by President William N. Craig, $25 gold for first prize; $15 gold as second prize, and $10 gold for third prize, are for any subject pertaining to any branch of horticulture. The essays are limited to 2,500 words and must be signed with a nom de plume, must bear no evidence of the author's identification and be mailed in plain envelope before November 1 (on which date the contest closes), carefully addressed to the chairman of the essay committee, William H. Waite, Box 290, Madison, N. J.

The contestant will also place his name and full address, stating the position he holds, in an envelope, writing the nom de plume he signed to his essay on the outside of this envelope and mail same enclosed in an envelope addressed to the secretary, M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J. This will not be opened until the judges have rendered their decision on the contest.

The successful contestants will be announced at the annual convention of the association, which will be held in Washington, D. C., the first week of December.

The rules must be strictly followed to avoid disqualification. The essay must be written distinctly and on one side of the paper only.

Vincent's Exhibition of Dahlias.

The exhibition of dahlias by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., which is always an event of importance each year, will be held at their establishment at White Marsh, Md., October 3-7. This is always a splendid show and is visited by hundreds of flower lovers annually.

Pot Makers' Credit Association.

The Pot Makers' Credit Association recently held its second quarterly meeting in Columbus, Ohio, with 95 per cent of the representatives of the pottery trade on hand. The credit system established at the former meeting, has, in a few months, shown a considerable saving in losses, proving the beneficial results of a credit system, and that the large losses of the past will be no more. To illustrate, a customer of one potter neglects to pay him, and buying from a new firm each year, he soon owes all, and he is able to undersell his brother florist. The vital question of long credit was also brought up, and after much discussion was held over for the next meeting, when more data would be obtained. However, it was brought out that the long time credits were undesirable and unfair to the customer as well as to the business man.

P. M. REED, Sec'y.

Floricultural Course at Ohio State Univ.

Instruction in floriculture has been offered for the first time this collegiate year at the Ohio State University College of Agriculture. Opportunities are afforded for study of the main florist crops, their diseases, and insect enemies. Garden flowers, greenhouse management and construction, as well as flower shop work and landscaping, will also receive attention. The courses are being offered both in the four-year college course, which has already begun, and in the three-year course which begins October 17.

Instruction is in charge of Professor Alfred C. Hottes. Professor Hottes comes to Ohio from Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., where he was an instructor in charge of the work in garden flowers and of the winter courses.

State Fairs.

The following is a list of coming state fairs with the names and addresses of the superintendents of the horticultural and floricultural departments so far as obtainable:

October 2-7, Salt Lake City.—Utah State Fair, Wm. O. Knudson, Salt Lake City, superintendent of floriculture and horticulture.

October 5-14, Birmingham.—Alabama State Fair, Mrs. J. B. Reid, 212 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., superintendent of floriculture.

MARKET SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT.

The retail trade has shown a decided improvement during the past week. The ending of summer, and the return to town of the larger buyers of flowers, has brought quite an increase in business. The death of two very prominent citizens also helped to move great quantities of the better grade of stock. Chrysanthemums are now here in great abundance. Prices realized are not equal to those received at the same period last year, but this is to be expected as last year the social activities that attended the exposition called for an unusual supply, which of course is lacking this season. In white, Crystal Gem is by far the finest early white in the market. Early Frost was tried, but has proved too small. Some very excellent Queen are coming in and find ready sale. In yellow, Monrovia is about gone, but its place is being taken by Crocus. Unaka is the leading pink variety. Some pompons are coming in, but as yet the supply is limited. Roses are not so plentiful as they were a week ago, but the quality is improving and the prices have advanced accordingly. Carnations are, as a rule, of very inferior quality, being very short stemmed. Orchids are still scarce but with the coming of labiatas next month it is expected that they will soon be in ample supply. Lily of the valley, too, is scarce and probably will be one of the rather short items all season. Violets are coming in rather freely, but the quality is rather poor, the weather of late being a little too warm for their proper development. Dahlias are to be seen on all sides and in great profusion, they being largely used in decorative work. Some excellent zinnias are being received. Lillium rubrum and auratum are still to be had and at firm prices.

NOTES.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, in conjunction with the California State Floral Society and the California Dahlia Society, will hold a dahlia show in the Civic Auditorium, October 3-4. Hans Plath has been chosen manager, Mrs. J. A. Scavna-vino, assistant manager, and E. I. Channele, secretary. The exhibition committee is made up of prominent florists and wholesalers. It is intended that this show will take the place of the annual chrysanthemum show, which usually is held about the end of October.

The annual fall flower show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society will be held, October 27-29, at Redwood City. The Chamber of Commerce of that city has provided a splendid hall to house the show and has also offered valuable prizes, the hall available at Menlo Park being too small for such a large exhibition. From the number of entries received by Secretary P. Ellings, there is every reason to believe that the show will surpass anything hitherto held by the society.

This section of the coast was treated to a very unusual and unexpected storm September 21. The rain was very heavy, but no damage to speak of occurred in this vicinity. At Salinas, D. A. Madeira, the leading florist, suffered severely from a hail storm. He estimates his damage from broken glass at $500. This is probably the first instance in California where a grower has suffered a loss by hail. Mr. Madeira is having the damage repaired as rapidly as possible.

Frank Pelicano, who is recognized as one of the leading dahlia authorities in the west, has a magnificent show just at present at his dahlia farm in San Mateo county. He has a great number of seedlings that show great promise. He was one of the largest winners at the last dahlia show, and is expected to carry off plenty more of the prizes at the coming exhibition. The bulk of the cut is shipped to Pelicano, Rossi & Co., in this city.

A look through the greenhouses of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., at San Mateo, was a revelation when it comes to the poinsettias. This firm has a grand lot of this favorite Christmas flower in all sizes. The orchid houses are also in splendid shape. These are under the supervision of that veteran orchid grower, Andrew McDonald. The houses of other flowering stock, especially the Lorraines and cyclamens are in admirable condition.

T. A. Burns, of the California Dahlia Growers Association, is busily engaged in arranging plans for a very extensive display of cut dahlias along Market street during the "Path of Gold" carnival. He has planned to have displays in all the windows on this street. He is being assisted by a committee of the leading florists of the city. All the flowers are to be donated free of charge, and chiefly by the members of the association.

J. Utsuney, the famous Japanese landscape gardener, who laid out the Japanese gardens at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, is back in this city again after a six months' stay in Japan. He is en route to Havana, Cuba, under a two years' contract with the Cuban government to lay out a Japanese garden around the national palace and other public buildings.

The Art Floral Co. had a very elaborate decoration during the "Fashion Show" at the Emporium. Large quantities of pink and yellow chrysanthemums were used. The main entrance was largely taken up with dahlias and chrysanthemums. The work, which was done by Manager Matraia elicited favorable comment.

Walter C. Clarke, who for a number of years has been assistant manager of the California Nursery Co., at Niles, has resigned to become chief of the sales force of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Eureka for C. W. Ward. Mr. Clarke is now making a motor trip through the state, visiting the different nurseries.

John Vallance of the Vallance Nurseries, Oakland, and Henry Ruehl, of the Ruehl-Wheeler Nursery, San Jose, are making a motor trip, accompanied by their families, visiting the different nurseries and growers around the bay regions. They both seem very optimistic regarding the business outlook for the coming season.

Avensino Bros. expect to have their new store, at 182 Geary street, ready for occupancy shortly. Henry Avensino, formerly one of the owners of the Fairmont Floral Co., is having the work rushed so as to be ready for business. This is a very desirable location, being in the heart of the shopping district.

C. W. Ward, of Eureka, owner of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at that place, was a visitor during the week. Mr. Ward is greatly pleased and encouraged at the way the nursery business is opening up. Aside from his nursery interests at Eureka, Mr. Ward is interested in banking circles in that city.

Julius Eppstein, of the Art Floral Co., is working on a large landscape plan for a wealthy client on the peninsula. The property consists of over 1,000 acres. Mr. Eppstein was for many years in Golden Gate park before embarking in the retail business.

H. McLean, who was connected with the landscape department at the exposition last year, has purchased a piece of property in Watsonville, where he will engage in the floral business.

Miss Emma Goertzhain, sister of Henry Goertzhain, and well known to the trade in this city, was married to Ernest Werder recently. The couple will reside in Redwood City.

Emil Serveau and family have returned to town after a visit to Hollister. Alfred Serveau, who is in charge of the store, reports business as picking up steadily.

Frank Mills is erecting a large lath-house at his nursery at Palo Alto. It is to be used for pot plants and boxed ornamentals.

There will be a chrysanthemum show in Santa Rosa next month, the exact date of which is not yet settled. G. N.

Los Angeles.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TRADE CONDITIONS.

Conditions on the market have undergone little change since our last report. Chrysanthemums and dahlias continue to dominate the market, and while the former has not reached the height of perfection, the dahlias are seen in all their glory. Roses continue to improve and cosmos has been added to the list of arrivals during the last week.

NOTES.

Seki Bros. & Co. are specializing on chrysanthemums and carnations. They grow their own stock and wholesale a considerable quantity of it.

The Redondo Floral Co.'s force has been very busy. The showing of chrysanthemums and dahlias has been exceptionally good.

O. C. Saakes has been sending out many handsome funeral designs. His stock always presents an attractive appearance.

J. W. Wolters is showing a nice grade of stock. Business is reported better. G. H. H.

Providence, R. I.

SUPPLY EXTREMELY LIMITED.

The conditions which influenced the market last week continue with but slight variations. This of course is due to some extent to the scarcity of stock. Novelty flowers do not seem to sell well now. Carnations are still scarce, but the few that are seen are of good quality and the stems are getting longer day by day. Lily of the valley is a scarce item, but several of the houses have a good supply. Quite a few asters are coming into the market and a few gladioli are to be seen. The demand for chrysanthemums is alive now, but the supply is very short. Of the flowers that are received there are more poor ones than good. Easter lilies are still having their usual call. Violets have not made their appearance as yet, but are expected almost any day. Dahlias are not meeting with a good demand this season. The call for cut flowers is good with roses in the lead. They are coming into crop with stock good and prices reasonable.

The old location of John F. Wood will be reopened in the near future by a former Westerly florist.

Growers are beginning to receive belated shipments of bulbs from Europe. H. A. T.

PETERBORO, ONT.—The flower tent at the Peterboro fair this year was a very attractive feature, splendid displays being made by the Peterboro Floral Co., Jordan Bros. and others, both of the firms mentioned securing awards in many classes.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

The month of September has been very good from a business standpoint, and while the supply in general was short of the demand, and outdoor stock none too good in quality, prices averaged good and the volume of business fair. The past week saw the first shipment of Rhinebeck violets, and as usual, the first are of poor quality. Chrysanthemums, too, are now arriving, but local stock is very poor and small. A few from California were received locally, the varieties being Unaka, Golden Glow and Chrysolora, also a few pompons. Gladioli still arrive in large supply. A few marigolds, zinnias, snapdragons, buddleias, wild asters, and phloxes are part of the daily stock. Roses have cleaned up nicely right along. Long and medium American Beauties have been in good supply and the quality is exceptionally fine. Asters are about done for, while dahlias are still scarce, a few short stem flowers arriving. Greens are in supply equal to the demand.

NOTES.

The flower show to be held under the joint direction of the Ohio Horticultural Society, the Cleveland Florists' Club and the Garden Club of Cleveland will be staged at the Hotel Hollenden, November 11-12. Copies of BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.

Business continues good, and while stock is a trifle more plentiful at this writing there is just about enough to go around, with no surplus to speak of. American Beauty roses are cleaning up nicely each day, and the same holds good for Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are in exceptionally good demand. Ophelia are in better supply, but are having a good call and command high prices. Killarney and White Killarney seem to be more plentiful, but like all the other roses are selling well and command good figures. Carnations are very scarce and what few do reach the market are sold almost as soon as they are unpacked. From present indications it appears as if they will be in short supply for several more weeks, which ought to help keep the market in a healthy condition until then if there is any business from now on to speak of. Lily of the valley continues to be in short supply, but orchids are arriving in larger quantities, although they are still none too plentiful. Chrysanthemums are very good property and sell quickly at high prices, compared to former years. A few pompons are seen, but not in any great quantities, and like the chrysanthemums are much too scarce. Asters and gladioli are still among the offerings, and at times come in handy owing to the shortage of other stock. Snapdragons, white and yellow daisies and mignonette are now included in the daily shipments, but not in large enough quantities to be a factor in the market. Lilies are moving quickly at high prices and at times during the past week it was impossible to fill all the orders. Both the local and shipping trade are brisk and the wholesalers are well pleased with business, but would be better satisfied if they had more stock to offer. Roses are gradually becoming more plentiful and unless the demand keeps pace with the increased supply there will be a big change in the market conditions soon. With normal October business a tight market can be looked for owing

The Fleischman Floral Co. had the decorations for the Oliver wedding at South Bend, Ind., September 30, which called for a large supply of stock including 2,500 lilies. Manager Graham, Ed Mallison and two of the other Fleischman employees decorated the church and the Oliver home, making the trip by auto with the firm's large delivery truck. In addition to decorating the church and the home the Fleischman company furnished all the wedding bouquets. W. K. Palmer is back in the employ of this concern.

Bassett & Washburn are supplying their customers with a fancy grade of white and yellow October Frost chrysanthemums and expect to cut Crystal Gem and Golden Queen in a few days. The Hoosier Beauty roses that this firm is offering are unusually fine and are attracting the attention of the city buyers. Some of them have stems fully three feet long.

Ronsley is open for business at his new location, at 17 East Jackson boulevard, and is well pleased with trade so far. He has signified his intention of straightening up the old debts contracted while he operated his Dearborn street store as soon as he possibly can, though he is not legally obliged to do so.

Wietor Bros. have started to cut chrysanthemums but so far the shipments include only the early white varieties. They have 18 houses, 28x165 feet, devoted to chrysanthemums and pompons this season and will soon be cutting heavily in both. N. J. Wietor speaks well of the variety Marigold.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association received its first shipment of home grown single violets of the season, October 3, from the Riverbank Greenhouses. The directors of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association will meet at this firm's North Wabash avenue store, next Tuesday, October 10, at 3 p. m.

Peter Reinberg cut his first chrysanthemums September 29, and reports a brisk demand for same. Felix Reichling says that business at their house continues to be unusually good and that after their regular customers are all taken care of each day, there is never any stock left.

Mathias Ullenbruch, Port Huron, Mich., and George Donnelly, Grand Rapids, Mich., were here on a business trip this week. Mr. Ullenbruch has 50,000 square feet of glass devoted to cut flowers and plants, the output of which is sold through his retail store in that city.

Duncan Robertson, well known to the local retail trade, is in the employ of O. J. Friedman. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson returned from Boston recently to make their future home here.

George Reinberg is cutting from a large crop of roses and never had a finer supply to offer at this season of the year than he has right now. His Ophelia are especially worthy of note.

A. E. Hunt & Co. have started to cut a good supply of white and yellow daisies and straw flowers. They market their stock at D. E. Freres' wholesale store.

Buchbinder Bros. are installing a new 15-foot Buchbinder refrigerator in Schiller's West Madison street store, the order for which was booked recently.

John Evans returned to his home at Richmond, Ind., September 29, after spending a day at Kenosha, Wis., and the greater part of a week here.

Robert Windler, who is operating the Adam Zender greenhouses in Rogers Park, is shipping a nice supply of roses to D. E. Freres.

Frank Danzer, with John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., and wife, have been visiting here for several days.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Morrison Thursday evening, October 5, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Ennis and daughter, Gladys, of Milwaukee, Wis., visited friends here September 29.

A. W. Herre, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is back from an out-of-town trip.

ROSES IN HEAVY SUPPLY

Milady, Russell, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney and White Killarney roses, and All Other Seasonable Cut Flowers.

E. F. Winterson and family and about 30 friends had a house warming at his new home in Highland Park last Sunday, October 1, when everyone present had a most delightful time. Fritz Bahr decorated the place in grand style and it was late in the evening when the happy party broke up.

J. A. Budlong is in good crop with roses and is receiving as fine a supply of carnations as there is obtainable in the local market. The shipping trade at this house is brisk and the local demand is also so good that everything is disposed of early each day.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a larger supply of American Beauty roses than ever this week, but the demand is equal to the supply and a grand clean-up is experienced each day. Morris Grossburg is back from an out-of-town trip and is giving Bill Johnson a lift at the store.

Zech & Mann are handling large quantities of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock including chrysanthemums. Allie Zech reports business as fine with a big increase in sales for September over the same month last year.

Wm. Wienhoeber, with the Ernst Weinhoeber Co., reports a great improvement in trade since his firm's customers have returned home from their summer vacations.

F. J. Newitt, of Park Ridge, son of F. Newitt, is employed in the A. L. Randall Co.'s wholesale plant department where J. E. Quallich so ably presides.

E. W. Metz, of Metz & Bateman, Toledo, O., was a visitor at Bassett & Washburn's store October 2.

Chas. W. McKellar is handling some late gladioli from the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. housed 200,000 carnation plants this year and the stock is in splendid shape now, but Tony Gabel says that the crops are from four to six weeks late compared to former years and that it will be several more weeks before there will be any great supply to speak of. Tom Conlon has a fine supply of pot chrysanthemums coming along, some of which should be ready for delivery in about two weeks. In the palm department H. M. Oeser is busy as can be getting the orders packed and ready for shipment. The palm sales for September were over 25 per cent ahead of the same period in 1915.

H. Van Gelder is on duty every day at Percy Jones' store, and business is going along as usual under his personal supervision and the management of J. E. Pollworth. This firm has added several new growers to its list recently and has all arrangements made for its fall and winter supply. Chrysanthemums and pompons are seen in large quantities at this store and have been in exceptionally good demand the past few weeks.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are strong on roses this week which are in good crop with Pyfer & Olsem at Wilmette, and are bringing very satisfactory prices. R. J. Mohr is taking to the wholesale trade like a duck does to water and is well pleased with his new position.

George Sykes, of Lord & Burnham Co., and wife, are visiting at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Visitors: Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York; S. W. Pike, St. Charles; Marion Ulschmidt, manager of Grimm & Gorly's East St. Louis store.

Kansas City, Mo.

SHORTAGE OF CUT STOCK.

Business during the past week has been very brisk and with a shortage of cut flowers the buyers cleaned up the stock as fast as it was received; in fact, at times the supply was not sufficient to meet the demand. Roses were in the lead in quantity and as the quality was good, prices were inclined to be a trifle high. Sunburst, Ward, Ophelia, Milady and the Killarneys were the varieties. Carnations are more plentiful as are also chrysanthemums and some very good dahlias are to be had. Lilies and gladioli are still here. The California strawflower has arrived and meets with ready sale.

NOTES.

September 29 was "flower grab day" in the park flower beds, which were open to all comers, an annual custom started years ago. The beds were well cleaned up, the plants being vincas, geraniums, cannas, begonias, coleuses, caladiums and dusty millers.

W. J. Barnes has all of his decorative plants back in the greenhouses and is giving them a bath to rid them of the accumulation of dust they gathered while serving as department store ornaments. Everything at this establishment is in fine shape.

The Alpha Floral Co. has employed an advertising man to handle these details of their business, which at this establishment are very extensive. S. Clark is now in charge of the publicity end.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a heavy demand but a short supply. They are handling fine roses, chrysanthemums and lilies. Mrs. Noll has returned from her eastern trip.

Samuel Murray was the only member of the local trade to carry off the award of honorable mention for a window display during "fashion week."

COMING BACK

Our customers are all coming back to us this season. This is proof that our stock, prices, etc., are entirely satisfactory. With our increased supply of stock, we can add more customers to our list and still give everyone entire satisfaction. If you have not been a customer of ours in the past, why not begin now?

H. Kusik & Co. report a shortage in stock but had a fair supply of roses, a few carnations and some good chrysanthemums, lilies, dahlias and gladioli.

A. F. Barbe's chrysanthemums are showing color. He is cutting good roses and his carnations are coming to the front nicely.

Wm. Foith reports trade improving. His chrysanthemums are showing color and he is cutting a few carnations daily.

Patrick Larkin reports a very good week of decorations for dinners and parties for which he used quantities of stock.

Jacob Hepting is beginning to cut some fairly good short stem carnations.

Visitor: Robert Newcomb, of American Bulb Co., Chicago.

STATE FAIR STIMULATES SALES.

Trade has been very satisfactory during the past week, the state fair having brought thousands of people into the city, and the florists have been kept busy all the time. While the demand for flowers has been quite good, there has also been a great call for bulbs, and it might be mentioned that the local trade are featuring bulbs rather heavily just now. The weather is cool, a very light frost occurring on the night of September 28, but no particular damage was done; in fact, the hay-fever victims around here declare that it was very beneficial.

S. S. B.

Terre Haute, Ind.

DAHLIA CROP COMPLETE FAILURE.

The weather conditions have been ideal for fall work and all of the florists have their houses in fine shape for cold weather. Frost came fully a month earlier than usual this year, cutting down the outdoor flowers and killing the dahlias which had just recovered from drought and promised a fine crop.

NOTES.

Chas. E. Parker had two acres of dahlias which were a complete failure. This is the first season in many years that he has had no fall flowers. Chrysanthemums are very slow in coming along and there are no prospects of good blooms for at least three or four weeks.

The Davis Gardens are cutting thousands of cucumbers. Their houses are in the very best of condition. With the many new homes being erected nearby the location is becoming quite a suburb.

Roses at the Terre Haute Carnation & Rose Co.'s range are showing fine form. Ben Lipman is the new grower here.

Fred Heintz will move into temporary quarters until his new home is completed, which will be about December 1.

Cowan Bros. have installed a Kroeschell boiler sufficiently large to heat their entire establishment.

Fred Wunker has added another Ford, which will be used for delivery service.

Heintz & Webber are busy with shipments of ferns and poinsettias. S.

Philadelphia Notes.

Chas. Weaver, of Ronks, Lancaster county, is first in with sweet peas, shipping as many as 1,000 a day of very fine grandifloras to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. A beautiful little white Polyantha rose called Cameo is also a feature here.

The Leo Niessen Co. is right in the midst of their dahlia season. Between 15,000 and 20,000 flowers are handled daily and 5,000 additional on week-end days. Choice American Beauties and Golden Glow chrysanthemums are also features.

S. S. Pennock has returned much benefited from his summer vacation and expresses himself as glad to get back into the harness. He is much pleased with the way business has opened up, and anticipates a record breaking season.

The Joseph Heacock Co. adds life to its corrugated boxes by giving the inside bottoms a coating of paraffine; this, together with an inside lining around the sides of the corrugated pasteboard, greatly adds to the lasting qualities.

President S. S. Pennock, of the American Rose Society, has called a meeting of the executive committee to be held in New York the second week in October. Accessions are constantly being made to the membership.

Martin Gannon, a well known and popular salesman, formerly of the Leo Niessen Co. force, is now with Alfred M. Campbell. Martin is a hustler and will no doubt make good in his new position.

Ben. Gibbs, of the Bernheimer force, is recovering from an attack of pleurisy. His absence of two weeks is the longest and almost the first absence on account of illness in 16 years.

A window of choice vegetables is a feature at the H. F. Michell Co.'s store. Holland bulbs are arriving in quantity, though some are being delayed by the strike in New York.

Edward Reid is strong on American Beauties. with lily of the valley as another special. The "sage" is still ruminating in the "wild and woolly west."

All kinds of foliage stock is moving well with the Robt. Craig Co. They are especially proud of their arecas, having the finest stock in the country.

Ophelia roses of winter quality, together with fine Hadley, are features of the stock of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Paul Berkowitz reported an unusually heavy mail on October 2. Every department of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. is crowded with orders.

Berger Brothers are handling good tuberoses, dahlias and choice Maryland roses. Easter lilies are also seen in quantity.

Stuart Miller finds the market opening up nicely. He is sure this will be a good season, no matter who is elected.

The M. Rice Co. is now in its new building, 1220-26 Spring Garden street.

CUT FLOWER SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

Fine weather has characterized the past week, the cool nights and bright days have given an impetus to social functions and counter trade has increased. Roses have been in heavy demand, especially short ones, while Russell and American Beauty have been great rivals for popularity in the long stemmed stock. There are scarcely enough lilies to meet requirements, prices varying from 10 to 15 cents. The chrysanthemum situation is improving but prices continue rather high. Carnations are coming into this market in a steady flow, but the quality shows improvement and prices have advanced to $2 and $3 per 100. Numerous weddings have caused a good demand for lily of the valley and orchids and both of these items are scarce in consequence. Miscellaneous offerings include gladioli, tuberose, Buddleia Asiatica, snapdragons and cosmos. Greens are more plentiful with the exception of smilax, which is hard to get at any price. Pot plant sales keep up remarkably well. All of the local trade have their attention centered upon the work of decorating floats for the numerous pageants of the Indiana centennial this week. A handsome float will be that representing the florist trade.

NOTES.

Lest you forget—The joint meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association and the Society of Kentucky Florists will be held at New Albany, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., October 17-18. We will be looking for you.

Clarence R. Greene, one of the most competent storemen in this city, has taken the management of the Hensley Flower Shop and will make quite a showing this fall with chrysanthemums, roses and carnations.

Lee Rickenback and Fred Hukreide, two of the fishermen in the local trade, made a trip to the Brandywine this week and brought back—the hooks.

Tomlinson hall flower market had good business in pot plants during the past week, but cut flowers were short of demand and cleaned up quickly.

E. H. Rieman and wife recently celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary, about 50 relatives being present.

French bulbs have arrived in quantity and the Dutch varieties are beginning to make their appearance.

The Benson-Oilar Co.'s store has been redecorated in white and gold, greatly improving its appearance.

The roadster of the Pahud Floral Co., stolen recently, has not been recovered.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has been exceptionally busy with weddings.

Albert Stanley has a fine lot of hardy plants.

Visitors: Guy Reburn and Sam Seligman, Chicago.

M. E. T.

Pittsburgh.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

Business has been good during the past week, with stock not so plentiful except short roses, which continue to flood the market. Most of the outdoor stock has been affected by the frost. There are still some gladioli and short asters. Dahlias are still good. We hope they will continue until the indoor flowers come along in sufficient quantity to take care of the trade. American Beauties are good and are selling at a small advance over last week. Lilies are still scarce. Some carnations are seen, mostly short stems.

NOTES.

Kaufmann's dahlia show was quite a success and orders were taken for many roots to be delivered next spring.

M. F. Stafford has opened a flower store at 105 Smithfield street. We hope success is with him as he is a hustler and is well known.

M.

Buffalo, N. Y.

DEMAND IS ACTIVE.

The weather is ideal with a good supply of stock that finds ready sale. Trade during the past two weeks has been excellent, there being a number of weddings of goodly proportions that called for much good stock and kept the trade busy. Very few chrysanthemums are to be seen and they are not offered by many owing to the poor quality, good dahlias being preferred at this writing. Gladioli have also been a great help. American Beauty is good in quality but the supply is limited. Carnations are almost forgotten—it has been so long since a good flower has been seen. Asters are about gone.

NOTES.

The opening of the Citizen's Commercial Trust Co.'s establishment called for a large quantity of flowers. W. J. Palmer & Son had a number of orders for the occasion as did Charles Schoenhut. S. A. Anderson's staff were kept busy getting the decorations in shape. The flowers were afterwards sent to the hospitals.

S. A. Anderson had three large weddings September 30 and used orchids, lily of the valley and pink cactus dahlias in profusion, together with quantities of other stock. He has also been busy with funeral work.

The florists belonging to the Broadway contingent are certainly catering to the bride. Teddy, Max and the others are monopolizing all of the Wm. F. Kasting Co. lily of the valley—and then some.

It is rumored that Stroh's Quality Flower shop will remove to 379 Main street in the near future, a very handsome store and one well adapted to the business.

DEMAND QUIET AND SUPPLY AMPLE.

The situation the past week was not as good as that of the week before when the demand was always ahead of the supply. Monday was a fair day, as is generally the case when the stores usually stock up, but from then on until Saturday, when there appeared an extra demand, things were very quiet and stock accumulated to such an extent that the fakirs were given the glad hand for the week-end cleanup. Dahlias, while still suffering from the drought, are much more plentiful; a heavy rain, September 29, the first of importance in the dahlia region for over a month, will be a great help. For all good stock top prices are obtained. Minnie Burgle and other choice sorts bring as high as $5 a hundred. Roses of very good quality in all the leading varieties are being received rather in excess of the demand. American Beauties in all sizes, even up to 48-inch stems, can be had from stock in almost any quantity. Prices hold firm. Ophelia, Hadley and Ward will dominate the market this season, as nearly all the growers are strong on these varieties. Carnations, with stems from six to eight inches in length, are selling well up at $2 a hundred; they would bring winter prices if they had the stem. There has been no frost to affect the outside stock. Asters still linger. The perennial sorts, with their long feathery sprays, are now largely used and are very decorative. Gladioli sell well and there is a demand for the tinted hydrangeas, cosmos and tritomas for store decorations. Golden Glow and October Frost chrysanthemums are quite plentiful, especially the former. They are in good demand. Cattleyas are more plentiful and lily of the valley, about which flower there has been so much anxiety, can be had in quantity and dealers say a supply is assured, but the scare has raised the price and $6 is the figure as against $4 last season. The business situation at this time is interesting. There is at least a 10 per cent increase in the supply of flowers over that of last year at this time, yet the demand is sufficient to keep the market well cleaned up of all first class stock, and even this early in the season, there has not been enough of a number of things and the dealers have had difficulty in getting stock to fill orders. All the wholesalers say that there is better demand than they have ever experienced at this season. There are two solutions, either the general public, owing to the prevalent prosperity, now so evident all over the country, are buying more flowers through the regular channels, or the demand from the various department and 5 and 10 cent stores, all of which now have flower and plant counters, that in some are quite pretentious sections, are opening up a way of reaching the public that is not possible to the regular stores. Quantities of flowers are handled and sold to people who had no thought of buying before they saw them, but just took a few along because they were so pretty and seemed so cheap. Every effort should be made to nourish and keep up this increasing desire for flowers. There are no doubt millions of people who think of flowers as a luxury only for the rich, who if once induced to purchase and learn how inexpensive they are at times would no doubt become a factor when prices suited their slender resources.

CLUB MEETING.

The October meeting of the florists' club was interesting to a marked degree. There was a very large, almost a record-breaking attendance, the feature being the election of officers. One hundred and thirty-six votes in all were cast, resulting in the election of Adolph Farenwald, president; David Colflesh, vice-president; George Craig, treasurer, and David Rust, secretary, the latter gentleman for the twenty-third consecutive time. Wm. Saville, nursery superintendent of H. F. Michell Co., Inc., read a very interesting and valuable paper on "Herbaceous Plants and Perennials." This was full of information as to the best varieties that were suitable for cutflowers for florists' use. The Michell Co. also displayed a very extensive collection of cutflowers of over 200 varieties of garden plants, which occupied tables the full length of the club-room.

BEES' ROSES ARE AMA

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

WEEK'S TRADE DISAPPOINTING.

The business of the past week was not up to expectations. The Jewish New Year usually makes some business for the florists, but it did not seem to have much effect on last week's business. Unseasonably warm weather, which tended to take the people out of the city, and the unsettled condition of labor, were probably responsible for the dullness. September 29, after a heavy rain storm, the weather turned quite cool and it may be taken as a settled fact that summer is over. There has been no surplus of good stock on the market and everything that is good has been bringing fair prices. The gladioli hold out wonderfully, and good stock is yet seen, though growing scarcer. Panama, America, and other good varieties bring $4 per 100 wholesale. The asters are on the wane, and this week is likely to nearly finish them. A fair supply of dahlias is arriving, but no surplus. The supply of special American Beauties has been moderate and selected stock has sold up to 35 cents each, wholesale rates. In tea roses, there are few specials on the market, but such as there are have brought good prices. Prima Donna, which is not yet at its best, has wholesaled at $15 and $20 per 100, which all must agree is a good price for this season. Orchids continue plentiful and cheap. Most of the carnations are short stemmed, but there are a few good ones on the market that bring $4 per 100. The supply of chrysanthemums is increasing, but there is no surplus. Lilies and lily of the valley seem to be a little more plentiful, but prices are good.

October 2.—Though prices remain firm, particularly in roses, there is no great activity in the market. Though the supply of chrysanthemums is increasing, they move slowly. The weather is much cooler and light frosts are reported, which means that the supply of outdoor stock will from now on be on the wane.

NOTES.

Joseph G. Leikens, the well-known retailer, who went to the Mexican border as a member of the Seventh New York Infantry, has resigned. He made a brief stay in this city and went on to Newport, R. I., where Mrs. Leikens has been conducting their store during the summer. He was a stout and healthy man when he left for Texas, but is now but a shadow of his former self and his health is greatly impaired, but it is believed that a period of rest and careful treatment will restore him.

James Gazetas, known as the Bronx Florist, has a nice retail store at 2772 Webster avenue. Being at an entrance to Bronx park, and also at the terminal of the elevated railroad, it is a good location. He has been there 10 years, and is a clever and active man in the business.

At William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street, we recently noticed particularly fine Prima Donna roses and chrysanthemums in variety. William says: "Everything in this store is good," and after careful investigation, we believe he is right.

N. A. Doganges, now located at 2687 Broadway, is about to move into a much larger store at 2685. An exceptionally fine ice box has been put in and all the furnishings will be up to date.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23d street, on the evening of Monday, October 9.

The business established many years ago at 127 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn, by the late Mrs. Sperwin, is now conducted by her son, a very clever young man, who keeps a good store.

Percy W. Richters, who for some time has been manager for the United Cut Flower Co., Inc., 111 West 28th street, has resigned and accepted a position with J. S. Fenrich.

At the store of Badgley & Bishop, Inc., we have noticed very promising blooms of a yellow seedling rose, which we hope to see more of as the season advances.

Thomas Daniels, 212 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, has a very neat store and is doing business, one evidence being his very handsome automobile.

As soon as alterations in the building are completed, a new retail store will be opened at 2578 Broadway, to be known as the Central Florist.

Our old friend, Isaac Abrams, of Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, keeps the light burning in his window with a fine display of tritomas.

At the store of Gunther Brothers we have noticed fine stock of the Gladioli America; also, good Enchantress carnations for the season.

A few double violets have come in, but they are very poor. At the store of M. C. Ford, we have noticed very good singles.

John J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, is handling a particularly fine line of gladioli for so late in the season.

Badgley & Bishop, Inc., 34 West 28th street, are handling fine stock of the roses Hadley and Prima Donna.

William Kessler is handling a particularly fine stock of chrysanthemums, carnations and bouvardias.

McHutchison & Co. report receiving 500 bales of raffia and 22,000 pieces of raffia cloth this week.

The plant auctions go merrily on, Tuesdays and Fridays, bulbs now being features.

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

GLADIOLUS growers report bulbs in the ground improving with the recent rains.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, October 4, were as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $5.00 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK.—Al. Rickards has severed his connection with the Stumpff & Walter Co., and joined the selling forces of John Scheepers & Co., Inc.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—H. W. Buckbee, according to The Packer, is investigating alleged complaints regarding the quality of onion seed supplied some Ohio growers.

DUTCH BULBS are opening up in fairly good shape; tulips, bright and full sized; hyacinths a little damp, a poor drying season; narcissus are rather rough.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The St. Louis Poultry Supply & Seed Co. has been incorporated by Frank Haller, Florence Smith and Peter J. Meyers. The capital stock is $2,000.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17½-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2/5 of an inch.

WASHINGTON, IA.—The Mills Seed Co. has been incorporated with the following officers: W. P. Wells, president; Orville Elder, secretary, both of this city. The capital stock is $50,000.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, Grand Rapids, Mich., and J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., returning from California; Wm. Kroemer, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Edwin Bercele Northrup, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

HARRY A. BARNARD, representing Stuart Lowe & Co., London, Eng., is making his annual tour of the American trade, arriving at Chicago, October 3. Mr. Barnard is celebrating the seventieth anniversary of his birthday, having been born in the Minorities within sound of Bow Bells, October 2, 1846. The hale and hearty traveling man looks good for another 30 years.

ACCORDING to an opinion by General Appraiser Waite of the Board of General Appraisers in the matter of Protest 797,924 of the Stone & Downer Co., Boston, Mass., it is decided that mother bulbs classified under the specific provision for tulips in paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, being mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes are held free of duty as claimed.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The Wisconsin Seed Dealers' Association has been formed in this city with the following officers: David Rosenheimer, president; Edwin L. Rosenberg, vice-president; Edwin J. Pick, secretary; John Young, treasurer.

Brown and McCullough Return.

Alfred J. Brown, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and J. Chas. McCullough, of Cincinnati, O., who left Chicago September 9, for California, returned September 29, reporting a most enjoyable trip. They visited the Twin Falls pea district, Salt Lake City and arriving at San Francisco were met by Mr. McCullough's son, Trimble, with whom they journeyed by auto to San Jose, Los Angeles and San Diego, full of enthusiasm for the magnificent and splendid scenery and well lighted roads. The party visited Trimble McCullough's farm, some 400 acres of fine land located within view of the old Santa Inez mission, founded in 1804. The soil of this farm is unusually good, producing a highly satisfactory bean crop this season. These lima beans, according to Mr. Brown, are raised by California growers in huge quantities, one tract devoted to their culture, the Irvin ranch, being some 20 miles in length by 12 miles wide.

Mr. Brown speaks in very high terms of the pea and bean crops in the Twin Falls district, his large acreage there in charge of A. L. Stone, giving a good yield of high grade stock. The volcanic ash and climate of this district are evidently well suited to the production of these crops.

Free Seeds Ridiculed.

Republicans of Graytown, Ottawa county, have an old-fashioned flag pole standing in the village. It is an ash pole, 96 feet high, with brush on the top. It was raised Saturday afternoon with a gathering of 1,000 persons from miles around. Frank L. Mulholland, candidate for congressman, was the speaker. Mulholland scored a hit when he said:

"If I am elected I am not going to send you any free seeds. First, I don't believe the results warrant the expense to the government, and I don't believe in a congressman popularizing himself at the expense of the government. Second, I never knew seed furnished by the government to grow, anyhow."

"That's right," chorused the farmers. —Toledo Blade.

Hjalmar Hartman & Co., Copenhagen, Den.

One of the Danish export journals gives an exhaustive account of the business of Hjalmar Hartman & Co., Copenhagen, with numerous illustrations, from which we learn that this firm, established in 1894, under very modest circumstances, has for a number of years occupied an enviable place in the seed trade, not only in Europe, but in the United States and Canada as well. This is especially true as regards cabbage and cauliflower seeds. In 1904, Hjalmar Hartman, head of the company, made his initial trip to America, his object being to extend, on a large scale, the export of seeds grown by his firm, and the profit, experience and results of this trial far exceeded his most sanguine expectations, with the result that he returned in 1906 and again in 1908. After the last named date a representative of the firm was an annual visitor in this country. In 1912, a branch office of the company was established in the United States, and the already thriving business which had been forging ahead year by year, has been steadily extended through the American representatives, Loechner & Co., Inc., 11 Warren street, New York.

Onion Fields Devastated By Fire.

The worst fire in the history of the Scioto marsh near McGuffey, Ohio, in the heart of the onion growing district of that state, has, according to estimates, devastated approximately 1,000 acres of muck land. The ground has been burned out to the clay substrata from three to five feet below the surface and will not be available for planting for several years it is feared. Fortunately the crop had been harvested with the exception of about 20 acres. Among the farms burned over are those owned by J. J. Shadley, M. M. Keeler, W. C. Shadley and George Krummrey.

Mangel Seed Embargo.

Axel Knudsen, representing L. Dahnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark, writes as follows September 29: "L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., cabled me today that the Danish government has prohibited all export of mangel seed. The embargo will prevent all deliveries of mangel on the 1916 contracts. It is possible the embargo may be lifted this fall, in which case notice will promptly be sent out, but with the present outlook the prospect of delivery is very remote."

Cultivation of Chicory Seed in Germany.

Methods employed in Germany for planting and cultivating chicory seed have been described by Gustav Jaensch, who believes they will prove of great assistance in efforts to raise the product in the United States, according to Consul Alfred W. Donegan.

Chicory seeds are planted there in 14.1-inch rows ("36 cm. in der Reihe"), about 19.7 inches apart. The plants are allowed to grow out and bloom out until the first blossoms have developed a hard, yellow-brown grain. Neither the lateral branches nor the ends of the plants are cut off. In the region where the climate is moderate and great heat rarely prevails, the plants normally reach a height of four to five feet. The crop from March plantings is usually harvested in the second half of September. The entire plants are then cut off just above the roots with sharp and slightly curved knives, bound together in small bunches, and set up in double rows on the fields for after-ripening. The seed can then be threshed only in very dry weather or heavy frost in winter.

Despite all precautionary measures at least 10 per cent of the ripened seed usually lies on the ground, as a certain percentage necessarily falls off when the plants are touched. Inasmuch as chicory seeds are always considerably damaged by birds in Germany, watchmen have to be kept in the fields all day to prevent excessive loss.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Due to the fact that the trip of the above organization to the establishment of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., a report of which appeared in our issue of September 30, page 552, was made on the regular meeting date, the monthly gathering was postponed until September 28. Vice-president Elmer Weaver occupied the chair in the absence of President Schroyer.

The feature of the evening was "Hash," the same being the subject of a very interesting paper by M. J. Brinton of Christiana, Pa., a man of affairs, a student of political and economic conditions, and in consequence a little more than a florist; hence his "Hash" was pretty rich food—the kind that creates both brain and brawn. He reviewed the unhealthy conditions in the business world today, with the immense profits in certain lines due to the European war, profits that are a detriment to the florist trade inasmuch as they affect the supply market as well as conditions of labor. The increase in cost all along the line was used to demonstrate the necessity of getting higher prices for the florists' products. He showed how the country at large was ripe for a good year as far as the florists were concerned, and urged the production of high grade stock so that this demand might be met to the satisfaction of the buyers and the creation of future business. Co-operation between all branches of the trade was urged, especially between the grower and the distributor. He advised all florists to keep in close touch with business conditions, and especially so in the general readjustment which will come at the close of the war. His discourse set all to thinking, the first thought being one of gratitude for his able paper, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him.

The flower show committee reported progress, following which A. M. Herr gave a resume of the trip to the Vincent establishment. A feature of interest was a handsome vase of Chrysanthemum Smith's Advance exhibited by Fred Spinner of Lititz, Pa. The next meeting will be held October 19, and on that occasion we hope to have J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., inasmuch as Mrs. A. M. Herr, chairman of the Junior Garden Department of the Iris Club, has secured his presence before that organization in the afternoon. A visiting trip to the growers in the vicinity will be made via automobile, starting from the square at one o'clock. Frank Kohr, Lemon Landis and A. K. Rohrer have been appointed a committee to arrange for automobiles to be used on the visiting trips.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Greens Farms, Conn.

Journeying recently into the "Land of Steady Habits," the same being Connecticut, we were fortunate in securing a good, steady man as a guide, philosopher and friend in the person of Frank Traendly, who is one of its summer residents. To be sure, the fact that he took his automobile along and kept just within the speed limit, added greatly to the joy of the occasion. Another enjoyable feature was perfect autumn weather. In due time, in fact a very short time, we reached the range of Edward J. Taylor. Mr. Taylor is yet a young man and was reared on a farm but a short distance from where he is now located, but as a boy he never took kindly to milking cows, weeding turnips and hoeing cabbages, so he looked about him for a more congenial occupation and in the florist business he found it and also found success. Both from a material and picturesque viewpoint, he has chosen a fine location, and energy and business ability have accomplished the rest. He started in business about 20 years ago and now has a range of about 125,000 square feet of glass. Though he grows a variety of other stock, including carnations and chrysanthemums, he is essentially a rose grower and the greater part of his range is in roses, and thus early in the season he is cutting a large quantity of fine blooms of the Killarneys, Ophelia and other varieties. In the construction of concrete benches, he has shown up-to-date methods and all of his equipment is along practical lines. A large and convenient basement for sorting, packing and temporary storage is a noteworthy feature. We have previously alluded to the picturesque features. His home stands on an eminence overlooking the entire range. A smooth lawn bordered by rows of beautifully flowered Hydrangea paniculata, and studded with various fine trees and shrubs, were features that left the impression that in addition to being a live and commercial industry, it was a good place to live.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

THE third Tuesday in October is National Apple Day.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—George A. Saunders, superintendent of parks of this city, died at his home September 18.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Park Superintendent Theodore Wirth is leaving this week to attend the annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents, to be held at New Orleans, October 10-12.

NEOSHO, MO.—The Stark Bros. Nurseries and Orchard Co. of Louisiana, Mo., has filed suit against the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries of this city, alleging infringement of trade mark. A permanent injunction is asked.

American Association of Nurserymen.

President Watson in announcing the new committees gives the following details of the work of the association:

"We have changed our membership requirements, and now membership is elective; that is, the first step towards making membership so desirable and so valuable and of such meaning that for a nurseryman to be able to print on his letterhead 'Member of the American Association of Nurserymen' will carry full assurance of unquestioned trade standing.

"We have revised our plan of raising revenue, adjusting dues according to the measure of benefits derived by the different members who pay according to the size of their business, but leaving it entirely to them to contribute as they see fit. We are in position to know that dues are paid except in rare instances, in accordance with the letter and the spirit of the requirements.

"We have a general counsel who looks after our legal and especially our legislative interests, and who, in addition, furnishes every member with legal advice without fee.

"We have established a collection bureau to handle collections for our members, against those in the trade or out of it, the fees going to the association or to the members.

"We have established a credit bureau to furnish members with prompt and reliable information as to those whose methods have been such in dealing with other members as not to entitle them to credit favors.

"We have added to our attorney's duties those of secretary also, and with a large and competent staff at his disposal, we find our routine business can be conducted promptly, properly and efficiently.

"These are ambitious undertakings, we realize. So far they have had the most generous support of our entire membership; in fact, these things have been brought about by the membership taking hold and undertaking the management of their affairs. I have not the slightest doubt that we have advanced much in the last year and a half, nor any doubt but that we shall make great advances in the next few years as an active, effective and efficient expression of the best aims and purposes of the nursery trade."

Th: Glory Fern (Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa)

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

This splendid Fern which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over a half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense can not be used at all. Since its introduction some 5 or 6 years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand. With this in mind we have prepared this season an extra large stock, which is in prime condition and we now offer select.

4 inch pots, $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100
6 inch pots, $1.00 each

Aetna Brand Tankage Fertilizer

Is a fertilizer carrying in perfect proportion the ten salts constituting soil. It possesses the means of restoring to the soil the native salt or plant food taken up by a crop in its growth, and in so doing maintains the proper percentage of fertility to sustain and build up a healthy crop. It is used by the largest florists in the United States and is unsurpassed as a fertilizer in the cultivation of tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce and cereals.

King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the results of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King. Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and productive a greenhouse can be erected for the price you want to pay.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Special Meeting Held at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October, 11-12, 1916.

An Enthusiastic Meeting.

The special meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, in progress at Chicago this week, has called together a strong attendance, north, south, east and west being well represented.
Among the early arrivals were noted
J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo.; Wm.
F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; E. G. Hill,
Richmond, Ind.; Erwin Bertermann,
Indianapolis, Ind.; O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn.; Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.;
Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; Chas.
F. Feast, Baltimore, Md.; Geo. H. Bancroft, Cedar Falls, Ia.; S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek, Mich., and W. J. Smart,
New York.

The executive committee worked hard all day Tuesday and far into the night preparing for the general meeting which opened Wednesday morning with many new arrivals. Tuesday evening
J. C. Vaughan gave the early visitors an informal dinner at Rector's, including all those above except Messrs. Valentine and Coggan, who had other engagements, with the addition of George Asmus, Ed. Goldenstein and M.
Barker, a party of the unlucky thirteen. The local trade has promised additional entertainment for the strangers Thursday if time permits in the form of an auto ride around the parks and boulevards and dinner as the guests of the A. L. Randall Co.

The remarkable growth of the association since it was organized and placed on its present basis by Mr. Valentine has rendered necessary many changes in the constitution and by-laws, hence this special meeting, the work of which is well outlined in President Gude's address, the text of which appears herewith. The general meeting was promptly called to order Wednesday morning at nine o'clock and proceeded until noon when recess was allowed for luncheon and a visit to the wholesale district, business being resumed at three p. m. At the morning session the new constitution and by-laws were adopted and there was lively discussion of a number of important questions to which we hope to refer at length in later issues. The meeting room was handsomely decorated by the local trade, and C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, Neb., sent on a handsome vase of the fine scarlet carnation named after his state, which was given prominence on the President's table, the flowers coming with his compliments to the association.

President Gude's Address.

President Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., in calling the meeting to order, said:

"First of all, I want every one of you and those who may come in later, to feel perfectly at home, and there is no better way of making you feel at home and making the officers feel at ease, than by becoming acquainted. In order to do that at once, we ask that each of you in rotation, rise, give your name, what firm you represent and your address. I will also ask each one of you to write this on a slip of paper in plain English, so the secretary can read it and have it for his record.

"We expect to have a great deal of business at this session. We hope to do a great deal of good. I will, therefore, ask all of you who have matters to present, to be as brief and concise as possible, and confine yourself to national matters rather than local; those affecting the greatest good and to the greatest number, rather than any small differences that may arise in your own locality, and which should be settled there and not by the national organization."

President Gude then presented his annual address, which follows:
Ladies and Gentlemen, Members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association:

This meeting, held in the city of Chicago, is the first real convention ever called to my knowledge in the United States for retail florists alone, and I think we may well congratulate ourselves on the splendid attendance, unselfishness displayed, and the general enthusiasm for the F. T. D. that seems to be in the air this morning. Before presenting my address, I want first to thank all the members for unanimously electing me president of this organization. I want to give you my assurance, that if there is anything that I can do to further the interests of the F. T. D., I will be at the service of the association, morning, noon and night.

I wish to present a few suggestions relating to matters that might well be considered at this meeting, and I hope and trust that every one present will feel free to express an opinion on every phase of the business that may come before us. To my mind, there has not been known, and certainly not held in recent years, a meeting of as much importance to floriculture in general, including growers, wholesalers and retailers, artists or decorators, as this one should prove to be. I cannot make myself believe that the development of the F. T. D. will minimize in any way the work of the S. A. F. So long as the F. T. D. requires as a pre-requisite to membership in the F. T. D., that membership shall be confined to florists who are retailers and members in good standing of the S. A. F., the effect of the F. T. D. will be to broaden the scope of the parent society. If this be true, and I believe it is, then the more interest in the F. T. D., the better for the S. A. F.

Interest can not be maintained without annual meetings, and the interest of annual meetings can not be maintained unless there be discussions on live topics. This means that other matters will be considered at meetings of the F. T. D., besides merely and only exchange of orders. Under such matters will come salesmanship, advertising, methods of publicity, best methods of appeal to human sympathy and affection, cost accounting, credits and collections, and generally speaking, the commercial end of the business. Many of these things do not directly affect either grower, wholesaler, greenhouse builder or supply man, yet in so far as they make the retailer a better retailer, all interests concerned will profit and there should be an opportunity for their full discussion. I think that these matters may well be considered when we have in view the framing of the constitution and by-laws, because the constitution and by-laws are the chart and compass of the organization. With these things in view, let us look at the present constitution and see wherein it measures up to the scope of the opportunities and objects, as we may conceive them as pertaining to the F. T. D.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

In the first place, it may be said that any constitution and by-laws will much better meet its purpose if separated into constitution and by-laws, and the difference between these two departments should be kept well in mind. The constitution proper should contain the general guiding principles of the association, should outline its policy, should comprise those things which the framers of the organization consider most fundamental, and which should not be changed with every shifting air current. Therefore it is, that in all constitutions are different rules, applicable to amendments of the constitution proper, and to the by-laws in almost all constitutions; the restrictions, surrounding possible amendments of the constitution proper, are more stringent than those applicable to the by-laws. In the by-laws are placed the details, those things which properly should be subject to quick change when necessary. I would, therefore, certainly recommend that there be a constitution and by-laws separately drawn, with a differently worded article as to the amendments to each.

The fundamental principle of the F. T. D. is co-operation between retailers. This principle in the constitution may be stated in general form. Then descend to particulars; for instance, the sending of orders by wire, etc., properly belongs in the by-laws; also provisions as to the payment of bills, etc. What has been said so far merely relates to the form. There are some other matters that might be given attention that relate to things more fundamental.

No organization in these days can afford to draw up a constitution and by-laws without taking into account all matters that have any legal bearing; matters that affect the responsibility of members between themselves, and also between themselves and the association; also, matters as between the association and the public generally. Any association which lays down rules that must be complied with by the members, and in the event of non-compliance a penalty is imposed, must look to, that they are: First, able to enforce the penalty, upon the member, and, second, that when the penalty is so enforced, the party suspended shall not have any legal claims for redress for damage or loss, either to property or reputation. I do not believe that the present constitution of the F. T. D. is sufficiently safeguarded in this respect. A paragraph like the following would seem to be in order:

Provided, that in the effort of the association to accomplish the above ends, no action shall be taken which will tend in any manner whatsoever to fix or regulate prices, or in any way operate in restraint or trade.

RESIGNATIONS.

Further, I would suggest that at the proper place in the constitution, with reference to expulsions, that some such clause as the following be inserted:

This association does not in calling for the resignation of any member thereby imply any stigma upon such member or any reflection upon his character or reputation, but such action in demanding the resignation of such member, in the event of such demand, is taken pursuant to the constitution and by-laws of the association and as part of the carrying out by such member of his pledge subjecting him to the operation of said constitution and by-laws.

Other wording may be framed by legal counsel for the association to carry out this idea of waiver of responsibility for any loss of character or reputation suffered by such member through his own act in violation of the constitution and by-laws to which he has voluntarily subscribed.

MEMBERSHIP.

This would also imply that a pledge be provided as a part of the constitution and by-laws, the said pledge to be signed by every member applying for membership, something after the following form:

To the Board of Directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association:

..... hereby apply to be admitted as a member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association under the constitution and by-laws of said association. Should this application be approved and the undersigned be elected to membership in your association,, the undersigned, solemnly swear that we will faithfully observe and be bound by each and every article and section of the constitution and by-laws of this association as now in force, as well as any that may hereafter become in force; and we further do solemnly pledge ourselves to report in writing to the Board of Directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery any irregularity or fraud on the part of any member of your association that may come to knowledge, and will hold bound to appear before said board, or any committee of the association, upon summons of the secretary thereof, and give testimony concerning any infraction of the association that may come to knowledge.

INCORPORATION.

In regard to the matter of incorporation of the association, it is respectfully submitted that there are two legal aspects of the matter that should be inquired into:

1. Is it desirable with a view to personal liability of any member to incorporate?

2. Is it desirable to incorporate, with a view to receiving any bequests that may be made to this association, or with a view to its acquiring or holding real estate?

Under the head of classes of membership, is it desirable or is it not, that some form of associate membership should be provided for?

With reference to trustee fund, membership fee and annual dues, is it desirable that any change shall be made in these from the present rating?

OFFICERS AND MEETINGS.

As to officers, is it desirable that there shall be more than one vice-president, and should the duties of the officers be more specifically stated?

There appears to be no provision in the present constitution as to the number constituting a quorum both at the annual meetings and at the meetings of the board of directors.

Is it desirable that in the provision for a quorum at the annual meetings certain percentage of the board of directors shall be required to constitute part of that quorum, and what shall be the total quorum?

Under the head of membership, there are no provisions at present for passing upon the applicant's qualifications, and there is no provision for method of election of members.

Is it desirable that each applicant for membership shall fill out a written application stating certain particulars such as name, location, correct style of firm, length of time in business, whether or not the applicant retails exclusively, population of city in which located, name of party or parties recommending applicant, or other details that may be deemed essential in the application. Some associations require that applicants shall be passed upon during the interval between annual meetings by the executive committee. Other organizations place this power in the hands of the secretary, subject to ratification by the executive committee. Some associations require that applications shall be posted upon the bulletin board at the annual meeting for 24 hours, any complaints to be registered with the membership committee, and no applicant to be considered unless favorably reported by such membership committee to the convention.

DIRECTORS.

The present paragraph referring to directors is very inadequate as it is entirely lacking in definition of the duties and powers of directors. In considering this question record must be had as to whether the association desires to place the larger proportion of the administrative function of the organization in the hands of its directors. This is done by many organizations, especially where the greater proportion of the members do not attend the annual meetings but remain at home and trust to the officers exclusively to do the work of the association. In some associations, the major portion of the functions of the organization are performed by the board of directors and that body in turn erect within themselves a smaller working body termed the executive committee. This is often done to save expense, and to render possible quicker and more effective action in important matters. The functions that are turned over to the board of directors have a bearing upon the duties of the officers. Therefore, before the duties of the officers can be specified in detail, it is necessary to decide how much leeway shall be given the board of directors. I am of the opinion that if a man serves as a director of such an organization without remuneration he should be allowed at least to use the discretion that the good Lord has given him.

NOMINATIONS.

Under the head of "Nominations" the present provision seems to be a useless one, since it is only inviting disagreement by suggesting three nominees for every office, which is too vague. It further lays the board of directors open to suspicion. It does not seem to have ever been followed out, and it would seem that a much better provision would be to provide for the appointment of a nominating committee at the first session when more than one session is to be held, the election to be at the subsequent session; or, if there is only to be one session, the nominating committee could be appointed, as is done in some associations, at the last previous regular called meeting, said committee to present a ticket, with the proviso, that at the time said ticket is presented, other nominations may be made from the floor. This would remove any suspicion of desire on the part of officers to perpetuate themselves.

ANNUAL MEETINGS.

With regard to the provision as to annual meetings, it rests with the association as to what they desire to do about this, but there should be some provision for calling special meetings by a certain number of the board of directors, or upon the request of a specified number of active members, a specified number of days notice to be given to all members as to date and place of such meeting and the purpose of same. With reference to the matter of annual meetings, careful consideration should be given as to whether they should ever be held anywhere else than where the S. A. F. meets; and in the event it is to be held at the same time and place, whether it would not be advisable to hold it either on the day before or the day after the annual meeting of the S. A. F. in order that the proceedings would not have to be hurried and spasmodic.

TERMS OF OFFICE.

In the provision as to terms of office, there should be added a provision which is absent apparently from the present constitution, to the following effect:

"Or until their successors shall be duly elected and qualified."

The experience of all organizations has proved the wisdom of such a provision, and the fact of its absence from the present constitution simply proves that while the originators of the F. T. D. worked well, they evidently prepared this constitution too hurriedly and without giving due attention to precedents that long experience has given approval to.

VOTING.

I can find no explicit declaration in the constitution anywhere with regard to how many votes anyone may cast. This seems to have been taken for granted, whereas in a constitution it certainly should be stated that, for instance, "each member shall be entitled to one vote. Where persons, firms or corporations are represented by more than one individual, said member is entitled to one vote only."

DELINQUENTS.

Various organizations make different rules as to resignations and as to delinquents. Whether any additions to the present constitution have been made that cover this I am uncertain. The records should show. I would suggest some such section as the following:

"The resignation of any member shall be tendered to the secretary of the association in writing, and shall be accepted at a regular meeting only when said member's dues are fully paid. A member may be requested to resign for cause by a three-fourths vote of those present at any regular or called meeting of the association. A member may be dropped by the executive committee if dues are unpaid for two years."

COMMITTEES.

With regard to the membership committee, I would suggest that there be a provision in the by-laws at the proper place that the nominating, auditing, membership, programme and resolution committees shall each consist of three persons, the membership and programme committees to serve throughout the year and all of the above named committees to be submitted by the president to the convention for approval.

TRUSTEE FUND.

Now with reference to the provisions of the trustee fund, I am quite satisfied that these are open to improvement. Whatever regulations are made in this respect should be so worked that the applicant for membership when signing the constitution and by-laws, will be bound by something definite that will be a legal defense to the association and a waiver of any recourse by a member whose resignation is requested. I would have a provision in the constitution, that under certain circumstances, a member's resignation will be requested in a certain manner specified, and that when so requested the member binds himself to resign. I would not use the word "expel" anywhere in the constitution, or the word "expulsion."

VOTING BY MAIL.

There should be a provision in the constitution with reference to a mail-vote under certain contingencies. This matter should be in the by-laws, not in the constitution; it should not be left to the discretion of any officer as to how much time should be allowed within which the votes would have to be received and counted, but this should be specifically covered by the wording of the constitution and by-laws.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS SEPARATE.

By all means, let the constitution be in the form that long usage has approved, that is a separate constitution and by-laws, each article and section to be numbered. Our association is of sufficient dignity and importance to justify its putting on at least this much style. The association at its conventions shall make such laws, define such policies, adopt such resolutions, and render such decisions as shall further the interests of the association, and the acts, resolutions and decisions of a convention, or of its board of directors when acting within its powers, shall be final and binding on all its members.

TRANSMITTED ORDERS WITHOUT DRAWBACK.

Some discussion has been had as to the original order being transmitted by the florist who receives it without deduction or draw-back or change of any kind, subject, of course, to regular commission, and the statement has been repeatedly made that the association will not countenance any double dealing in this respect. Should not there be some expression to this effect in the by-laws, and if so should there not also be an expression covering the same in the pledge, if a pledge is decided upon?

Constitution and By-Law Resolution.

Be it Resolved, That whereas the Constitution and By-Laws, and amendments thereof, of this Association are inadequate for the proper government of the affairs of the Association, and,

Whereas, It is desired to adopt a Constitution and By-Laws of the Association adequate and complete enough to cover the proper government of the affairs of the Association,

Now, Therefore, Be it Resolved, That the Constitution and By-Laws and all amendments thereof of the Association now in effect shall be repealed, and the attached Constitution and By-Laws enacted as the Constitution and By-Laws of the Association.

SOME OF THE OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS OF THE FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

New Constitution and By-Laws.

Article I—Name and Office of Association.

Section 1. The name of this Association shall be Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and its general office shall be located at the residence of the Secretary of the Association, or wherever he may establish his office, provided that the offices of the President and Treasurer shall be at their respective residences, or wherever they may establish their offices.

Article II—Objects.

Section 1. The Association has for its objects: The mutual exchange of orders between retail florists in the different cities and towns in the United States and the Dominion of Canada; to educate its members in the proper handling and promotion of the exchanging of orders by telegraph, telephone, and mail; to give publicity to the service rendered by members of the Association in order to promote the out of town business of each member of the Association; to promote and encourage the exchange, between members of the Association, of ideas, principles, policies, methods and manner of handling and conducting the retail floral business, for the betterment and education of the members; to promote a good feeling and honest dealing between all members of the Association; to insure the prompt payment of all accounts contracted between members of the Association; and to further generally the interest of the retail floral business and encourage the co-operation of retail florists.

Article III—Membership.

Section 1. Membership in this Association shall be confined to florists who are proprietors or officers of retail flower stores in cities and towns in the United States and Dominion of Canada and who are members in good standing in the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

Section 2. Any persons, eligible to membership, and who desire to become members of this Association, shall file with the Secretary a written application, or form prescribed by the Association, accompanied by a membership initiation fee of $5.00. The Secretary shall pass upon all applications, and if the applicant is eligible and acceptable to membership in the Association, he shall so notify the applicant and require him to pay the guarantee fee and one year's annual dues prescribed in these By-Laws before he shall become a member of the Association.

Section 3. Any member of the Association who operates two or more retail stores in any one city, may, without additional cost, file with the Association the names and addresses of all of his stores, provided that he must head the list with the main store to which he wishes orders sent.

Section 4. Any member of the Association who operates stores in two or more cities may list all of his stores with the Association without the payment of membership initiation fee after the first payment, provided that he shall be required to pay the annual dues and the guarantee fee, prescribed in these By-Laws, for each city in which he has stores listed with the Association.

Section 5. Persons becoming members of the Association after June 1 of any year shall not be required to pay the annual dues for the unexpired term of the fiscal year ended July 31 of the same year, but their dues shall begin as of August 1 of the same year. Any person becoming a member of the Association after February 1 of any year and before August 1 of the same year, shall pay 6 months' dues for the balance of the fiscal year, of the Association, in which he becomes a member.

Article IV—Annual Dues and Guarantee Fee.

Section 1. Each member of this Association shall pay annual dues to the Association on the following graduated scale: The annual dues of members whose store or stores are located in cities having a population of 150,000 or more shall be determined by taking each of said cities separately and dividing the total population thereof by the number of members operating a store or stores therein; on the quotient thus obtained, each of said members shall pay $20.00 for every 150,000 or majority fraction thereof, provided that the minimum annual dues shall be $20.00 and the maximum $30.00. The annual dues of members whose store or stores are located in cities having a population of

100,000 and less than 150,000	shall be $20.00
50,000 " " " 100,000	" " 15.00
25,000 " " " 50,000	" " 10.00
10,000 " " " 25,000	" " 8.00
10,000 " " " "	" " 5.00

Section 2. The annual dues of the Association shall be due and payable in advance, on the first day of August of each year.

Section 3. Each member, at the time of his admission into the Association shall pay a guarantee fee to form a Guarantee Fund of the Association, to insure the payment of accounts contracted between members of the Association, on the following graduated scale: Members whose store or stores are located in cities having a population of 500,000 and over	shall pay $50.00

250,000 and less than 500,000	" " 30.00
100,000 " " " 250,000	" " 20.00
50,000 " " " 100,000	" " 15.00
25,000 " " " 50,000	" " 10.00
25,000 " " " "	" " 5.00

Section 4. The amount paid by each member as guarantee fee shall be placed in the Guarantee Fund and kept separate from all other funds of the Association.

Section 5. The Guarantee Fund shall be disbursed only in payment of accounts due by a member or members to another member or members of the Association which have not been paid by the debtor.

Section 6. The amount paid into the Guarantee Fund by any member or members who have failed to pay his or their obligations to other members of the Association, shall be first used, or so much thereof as is necessary, to pay his or their said obligations. If the amount so paid into the Guarantee Fund by a member is not sufficient to pay his obligations to other members of the Association, which he has not paid himself, the deficiency shall be paid out of the amount paid into the Guarantee Fund by other members of the Association.

Section 7. Any member who has defaulted in the payment of his obligations to other members, severs his membership, or withdraws from the Association, shall be refunded, within six months after his withdrawal from the Association, the amount paid into the Guarantee Fund after deducting therefrom the amount paid by the Association to other members in payment of his obligations.

Section 8. Any member who voluntarily withdraws from the Association, and who has paid all of his obligations to other members of the Association, shall be refunded, after sixty days from date of his withdrawal, the amount paid by him into the Guarantee Fund, after deducting therefrom that part of his guarantee fee which has been previously used by the Association in payment of the obligations of other members who have defaulted in the payment of their obligations to other members of the Association.

Section 9. The interest received by the Association on the Guarantee Fund shall be credited to the General Fund of the Association and used for general purposes, except that when a part of the Guarantee Fund, made up of fees paid into the Fund by members in good standing, has been used by the Association to pay the indebtedness of members who have defaulted in the payment of their obligations to the other members of the Association, the interest collected thereafter shall be credited to the Guarantee Fund until the fund shall have been reimbursed for the full amount paid for the defaulted members.

Section 10. For the purpose of determining the population of any city or town the last available United States census shall be used.

Article V—Officers.

Section 1. The officers of this Association shall be a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer, and their duties shall be the duties usually devolving upon officers in any similar associations, except where their duties are specifically stated in these By-Laws.

Section 2. The President and Vice-President shall be elected by the members of the Association at each annual meeting to serve for a term of one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified. The Secretary and Treasurer of the Association may or may not be a member of the Association, and each shall be appointed by the Board of Directors for a term of one year, or until their successors are appointed and qualified.

Section 3. The officers and directors of this Association shall serve without compensation, except officers giving bond to the Association for the faithful performance of their duties, who shall be paid Twelve Dollars ($12.00) per annum. The officers of the Association shall be allowed the reasonable expense of maintaining their offices and the salaries of assistants employed by them, subject, however, to regulation by the Board of Directors.

Article VI—Duties of Officers.

Section 1. The President, and in his absence the Vice-President, shall preside at all meetings of the Association.

Section 2. The President shall be, by virtue of his office, ex-officio, a director of the Association, and shall preside at all meetings of the Board of Directors.

Section 3. The Vice-President, in the absence of the President, shall perform all duties devolving upon the President. In the event the office of the President becomes vacant by reason of resignation, death, or disqualification of the President, the Vice-President shall succeed to the Presidency; and by virtue of his succession to the Presidency shall have and assume all rights and duties of the office of the President, including the right to act as a director of the Association.

Section 4. The Secretary shall send out notices of all meetings of the Association and of the Board of Directors; and shall keep a record of the proceedings of all such meetings, and of all other matters of which record shall be ordered by the Association, or by the Board of Directors. He shall notify persons elected to membership, and shall keep a register of the members of the Association and their addresses. He shall furnish each member of the Association with the names and addresses of all members of the Association; and on the first and fifteenth days of each month shall furnish each member with the name and address of all new members, and of all members who have ceased to be members of the Association. He shall collect all moneys due to the Association and make prompt remittance of same to the Treasurer. He shall keep such books of account as shall be necessary to make proper record of all financial matters connected with his office, and keep such other records as the Board of Directors may require; and shall perform all other duties required to be performed by him by these By-Laws, or that may be required by the Board of Directors or Arbitration Committee, and all other duties usually pertaining to the office of Secretary.

Section 5. The Treasurer shall be the chief financial officer of the Association. He shall receive and give the Secretary receipt for all moneys collected by the Secretary and remitted to him, and deposit same in bank. He shall collect all interest on investments of the funds of the Association, and deposit same in bank. He shall furnish the Secretary with a copy of all deposit slips for money deposited in bank. He shall make all disbursements of the Association by check upon bills or invoices approved by the President, Secretary and himself. He shall give bond to the Association for the faithful performance of his duties, the expense of the bond to be paid by the Association. He shall keep books of account showing the receipt and disbursement of all moneys of the Association. He shall furnish detailed reports of all finances of the Association, and of such other matters as may come under his management, as and when required to do so by the Board of Directors. His books of account and records shall be audited annually, and a report thereon certified to by a firm of certified public accountants.

Article VII—Directors.

Section 1. The Board of Directors shall consist of the President of the Association, the Junior Past President, and of nine other directors, three of whom shall be elected at each annual meeting of the Association to serve for a period of three years.

Section 2. Six directors shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at all meetings of the Board of Directors.

Section 3. The President shall preside as Chairman at all meetings of the Board of Directors, and in his absence the directors present may elect one of their number to preside as Chairman.

Section 4. The Board of Directors shall hold its annual meeting immediately after the adjournment of the annual meeting of the Association, at which time a Secretary and a Treasurer shall be appointed for the ensuing year. The Secretary shall at the request of the President, call a meeting of the Board of Directors at any time, and he shall call a meeting on the request of three or more directors. At least ten days' notice of all meetings of the Board of Directors shall be sent to each director by first-class mail to the last known address of each.

Section 5. The Board of Directors may transact any business by mail without holding a meeting, provided a notice is mailed to each director containing the question, or questions submitted and stating the time when the votes received in reply will be counted. The question, or questions, so submitted must be so worded as to be answered in the affirmative "Yes," or in the negative "No." Questions so submitted shall be sent to each director by registered mail and the replies shall be made to the Secretary, who shall enter the full proceedings upon his Minute Book and retain in his files all the votes received.

Section 6. Any vacancy in the Board of Directors by reason of resignation, death or otherwise, shall be filled by the Board of Directors until the next meeting of the Association, at which time the vacancy shall be filled by the election of a director for the unexpired term of the director vacating the office.

Section 7. In the event the office of the Vice-President becomes vacant by reason of resignation, death, disqualification, or succession to the Presidency, the Board of Directors shall appoint a Vice-President to serve for the unexpired term of the Vice-President vacating the office.

Article VIII—Meetings.

Section 1. The Association shall hold an annual meeting, the time and place of holding said meeting shall be fixed by the Board of Directors, each year, and the Secretary shall give each member of the Association ninety days' notice before the holding of said meeting. The notice shall be sent by first-class mail directed to each member at the last known address of each.

Section 2. The Board of Directors may, by a two-thirds majority, call special meetings of the Association. Thirty days' written notice of any special meeting, stating the time and place the meeting is to be held, shall be given to each member of the Association. The notice shall be sent by first-class mail, directed to each member at the last known address of each. The notice shall specify what business will be transacted at all special meetings of the Association, and only the business specified in said notice shall be transacted at said meetings.

Section 3. Any member whose dues and all other obligations to the Association are paid, and is otherwise in good standing as a member of the Association, shall be entitled to one vote at all meetings of the Association.

Section 4. Eleven members of the Association shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at all meetings of the Association.

Section 5. At all meetings of the Association, of the Board of Directors, and of the Arbitration Committee, "Robert's Rules of Order" shall govern the procedure in the absence of specific rules of order not provided by these By-Laws.

Section 6. The annual election of officers shall take place at the annual meeting. The Board of Directors shall prepare a list of not more than three nominees for President, three for Vice-President, and nine for Directors, which list of nominees shall be submitted to the annual meeting of the Association; but this shall not be construed as restricting the right of any member to make other nominations when so desired.

Section 7. The meeting shall first take an informal ballot, and when the result is announced all names shall be dropped except the two candidates for President and Vice-President respectively, and the six candidates for Directors who have received the highest number of votes. The meeting shall then proceed to take a formal ballot.

Section 8. The vote shall be by ballot, and the candidates receiving the highest number of votes for President and for Vice-President respectively, and the three candidates receiving the greatest number of votes for the office of Directors, shall be declared elected.

Article IX—Arbitration Committee.

Section 1. Immediately after the duly elected President assumes office each year, he shall appoint an Arbitration Committee, to consist of a Secretary and two members taken from the Board of Directors, to serve for a term of one year, or until their successors are appointed.

Section 2. The Arbitration Committee shall have power to pass upon, adjudge and decide all disputes between members. The Committee shall have power to order and require the payment or cancellation of any disputed claim or account between members of the Association.

Section 3. It shall be lawful for the Arbitration Committee to take action upon any matter by mail, without holding a meeting. The Secretary of the Arbitration Committee shall submit to the members of his Committee, by mail, any question or questions for the decision of said Committee and such question or questions shall be so worded as to be answered by an affirmative vote "Yes," or negative vote "No." The notice submitting questions to the Arbitration Committee shall state the time when the votes received by the Secretary will be counted. The members of the Arbitration Committee shall send their votes, on all questions so submitted to them, to the Secretary of the Association. The Secretary shall record the votes of the Arbitration Committee, and shall enter the full proceedings upon his Minute Book, and retain in his files all the votes received. He shall notify each member of the Arbitration Committee, and the persons submitting the question or questions, informing them of the results of the vote.

Section 4. Any member or officer of the Association aggrieved by the action of the Arbitration Committee shall have the right to appeal to the Board of Directors, who shall review the action of the Arbitration Committee, and give their decision thereon, which shall be final.

Article X—District Representatives.

Section 1. The newly elected President, each year, shall appoint District Representatives to serve for a term of one year. The Representatives shall be geographically districted.

Section 2. The duties of the District Representatives shall be to promote the interest of the retail floral business in their respective districts; to promote the exchange of orders between members of the Association; to give publicity to the out-of-town service rendered by members of the association; to solicit all trustworthy retail florists in the respective districts of each Representative to become members of the Association, and to that end to furnish all prospective members with all information desired, and explain to them the benefit derived from membership in the Association; and to offer suggestions to the Association for the proper handling of the interests of the Association, and shall assist the Secretary in the promotion of all the Florists' Telegraph Delivery affairs.

Article XI—Rights and Duties of Members.

Section 1. All members must use care and discretion in taking orders to be transmitted to other members to be filled. Members taking orders to be filled by other members must transmit the order for the full amount as taken from the customer, and the members to whom orders are transmitted shall fill them to the best of their ability in accordance with the instructions of the members transmitting the orders.

Section 2. All members taking orders shall explain to their customers that different prices prevail in the different cities and towns. Where the amount to be paid for orders is limited by the customer, the order shall be transmitted by both quantity and amount in order to give the member receiving the order some leeway in filling it; but the member receiving the order must fill it as specified in the order to the best of his ability without suffering an actual loss.

Section 3. All orders sent by telegraph must be confirmed immediately by letter. The member receiving an order by telegraph from another member shall acknowledge receipt thereof by letter immediately upon receipt of the order.

Section 4. All orders shall be exchanged between members at retail prices. On all orders given by any member to another member of the Association the member giving the order shall take a discount of 20 per cent of the gross amount of the order when remitting to the member filling the order.

Section 5. The offering or allowing a larger discount than 20 per cent shall be construed as evidence of exorbitant prices or inferior service. The acceptance of a smaller discount than 20 per cent shall be construed as evidence of inferior service.

Section 5A. Such violation of this section shall be submitted to the Arbitration Committee and members are positively prohibited from submitting orders to others than those in the retail trade.

Section 6. Invoices for orders exchanged between members shall be mailed within ten days after the order is transmitted and the remittance therefor shall be made within forty-five days thereafter.

Section 7. Any invoice not paid within forty-five days after being rendered, shall not be entitled to the 20 per cent discount, but must pay the bill in full through the Secretary. The member shall send an itemized statement of the account to the Secretary of the Association within 60 days or forfeit his right to receive payment for the account out of the Guarantee Fund.

Section 8. The Secretary shall at once notify the delinquent debtor that such bill has been filed with him, and shall keep a record of each account so filed with him. If the debtor disputes the account, he shall at once remit to the Secretary the amount claimed as due, and ask to have the matter referred to the Arbitration Committee. If there is only a portion of the amount in dispute, the uncontested portion shall be remitted to the claimant by the Secretary and the remainder held to await the award of the Arbitration Committee.

Section 9. If any member fails to remit to the Secretary, as provided above, within ten days after the mailing of such notice by the Secretary, the account presented shall be paid by the Association out of the Guarantee Fund.

Section 10. The delinquent debtor shall be notified of the payment of his debt by the Association, and that if he does not reimburse the Association for the amount paid within ten days his membership in the Association shall cease.

Section 11. Any member who has an account against any florist who is not a member of the Association may refer the same to the Secretary, whose duty it shall be to make every effort to collect the account the same as if it were against a member of the Association. When such account is paid direct to creditor, the Secretary shall be notified immediately, so the account can be credited by him to save unpleasant complications.

Section 12. Any member guilty of a violation of any provision of these By-Laws, or of action detrimental to the Association, may be suspended or expelled from the Association by the Arbitration Committee.

ARTICLE XII—Funds of Association.

Section 1. The Board of Directors shall have general management of the affairs of the Association, and shall direct the disbursement of all funds of the Association.

Section 2. The Directors may instruct the Treasurer to invest the Guarantee Fund of the Association, or so much thereof as shall not be required to meet current disbursements out of said fund for the purpose provided in these By-Laws.

Section 3. The officers of the Association shall have power to incur such obligations as the duties and necessities of their offices shall warrant, and said obligations shall be paid by the Association upon bills properly approved by the President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Section 4. The receipts of the Association shall be divided into a Guarantee Fund and a General Fund. The Guarantee Fund shall be credited with the receipt of guarantee fees and shall be charged with the disbursements made out of the fund, as provided in these By-Laws. The General Fund shall be credited with all receipts except those that it is specifically provided shall be credited to the Guarantee Fund. All disbursements for purposes other than those that it is specifically provided to be made from the Guarantee Fund shall be made from the General Fund.

Section 5. The fiscal year of this Association shall begin on the first day of August of each year, and shall end on the thirty-first day of July of the following year. The annual dues of this Association shall begin and end with the fiscal year.

Section 6. The members of this Association are not, in any sense, associated as co-partners. No member shall have the right or power, by virtue of his membership in the Association, to act as agent for any other member of the Association. The rights and powers of the officers of this Association are limited to those conferred upon them by these By-Laws, and such as are reasonably necessary to carry out the functions of their offices. No officer of this Association by virtue of his office, shall have the right or power to act as agent for any member or members of this Association, nor to make any member personally liable for any obligation incurred by him. The liabilities of the members of this Association are specifically limited to the membership initiation fee, annual dues and guarantee fee, as provided in these By-Laws.

Article XIII—Increase in Annual Dues, and Guarantee Fees of Present Members, Effective When.

Section 1. The increase in the annual dues and guarantee fee provided in these By-Laws shall become effective after adoption by the Association, August 1, 1917.

Article XIV—Amendments.

Section 1. The Constitution and By-Laws of this Association may be amended, altered or repealed by a two-thirds vote of the members present at any regular meeting, provided that notice shall have been given in writing to each member of the Association at least 30 days prior to such regular meeting.

Within the Law.

There's law for this and law for that,
The man in business sighed,
It keeps me guessing where I'm at
And how my hands are tied.
My great concern today is not
That I may shortly fail.
I have to give my every thought
To keeping out of jail.
For profits that may comfort me
No longer can I plan,
It's taking all my time to be
A law-abiding man.
Oh, sorry is the plight I'm in,
I have not path to choose,
The court will nab me if I win,
The sheriff if I lose.

RAFFIA, at French ports, if permitted exportation, is now double former prices.

DAHLIAS seem to be a short crop generally in many parts of the country this season.

THE Florists' Hail Association executive committee has an important meeting scheduled to be held at Chicago Friday, October 13.

Personal.

Miss May E. McAdams, former Chicago florist, and daughter of Andrew McAdams, who graduated from the Illinois State University at Urbana last June, after a four-year course in the landscape gardening department, has joined the forces of Warren H. Manning at Billerica, Mass. The many friends of Miss McAdams wish her every success in her new field.

The death is announced of Walter Swoboda, at Berlin, the well-known German horticulturist, September 7, brother of George Swoboda, of Hess & Swoboda, Omaha, Neb.

St. Louis Spring Show.

A spring flower show will be held in St. Louis, Mo., March 15-18, and the committee in charge are sparing neither trouble nor expense to make this one of the most successful exhibitions ever held. The schedule of prizes will be so arranged that professionals, private gardeners and amateurs may compete, and there will also be classes open to botanical gardens, city park departments and greenhouses in the United States and Canada. All branches of floriculture are considered in the different divisions. There will also be classes for fruits and vegetables. The programme will also include lectures and demonstrations. The exhibition will be under the management of Jules Bourdet and W. W. Ohlweiler, Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis, Mo., is executive secretary. The preliminary premium list will be ready for distribution in the near future.

Society of American Florists.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that J. E. Yeats, of Champaign, Ill., offers for registration the following new rose described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description—A chance seedling; growth rapid and heavy, throwing long shoots from near the ground; needs little if any tying; early continuous bloomer. Foliage, medium heavy, glossy, dark green. Height, stems, 18 inches to four feet. Color, real red velvety. Flower, petals large and thick large pointed buds opening into a full evenly petaled rose. Fragrance, very dense fruity fragrance. Name, Mrs. Sarah Yeats.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Indiana-Kentucky Florists' Joint Meeting.

The joint meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Kentucky Society of Florists, will open October 17 at the establishment of Anders Rasmussen, 1108 Vincennes street, New Albany, Ind. The business session will follow a buffet luncheon and will be called to order at 2 p. m., after which the party will be taken for an automobile ride through New Albany and Louisville. A banquet has been arranged at the Henry Watterston hotel, Louisville, that evening, at which the visitors will be formally welcomed by President Kleinstark of the Kentucky society, followed by President W. J. Vesey, Jr., of the Indiana association, after which the following toasts will be responded to: "Our Honored Guests," William Mann, Kentucky; "Goodfellowship," W. W. Coles, Indiana; "The Ladies," August R. Baumer, Kentucky; "The S. A. F.," Irwin Bertermann, Indiana. Anders Rasmussen will preside as toastmaster.

Wednesday, the second day of the meeting, will be given over entirely to a programme of entertainment. There will be bowling contests in the forenoon with a luncheon served on the alleys at noon. At 1:30 p. m. special cars will leave the Interurban station between Third and Fourth streets for the establishment of the William Walker Co., Ormsby, Ky., where the afternoon will be spent in looking over the plant and in games of various kinds.

The Indiana florists will go to New Albany via the Pennsylvania Railroad on the train leaving Indianapolis at 7:45 a. m. Tuesday, October 17.

Azalea Shipments from Belgium.

In regard to deliveries of azaleas coming from Belgium this fall, McHutchison & Co., New York, have written their customers as follows, under date of October 3:

"The prospects have become more favorable. We now know definitely that at least some shipments will come—perhaps all of them. Several hundred cases are already in transit from Rotterdam on S. S. Ryndam. Of course we cannot tell which orders the shipments contain until the shipping documents arrive. You doubtless realize the difficulty of getting these shipments or definite information concerning them, but, sit tight and don't rock the boat, and please do not ask us to make changes in your order for Belgium stock. A moment's reflection will convince you that this cannot be done now."

American Rose Society.

The American Rose Society has received applications for rose test gardens in the states of Washington and Texas. The interest that has been aroused in this line seems to be going country wide, and indicates better trade for rose growers.

This year there has been a marked increase in the number of associate members. The present membership of the society exceeds 400, not including life members.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee shortly at which matters of decided interest will be taken up. Twenty-eight members have subscribed to the fund for the investigation of "black spot."

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

The Late Andrew Bather.

Andrew Bather, well-known florist of Clinton, Ia., and a highly respected pioneer resident of that city, died at his home there October 5, aged 76 years.

He was born in Manchester, Eng., in 1840, but came to American when nine years old, locating first at Albany, N. Y., but moved to Clinton in 1857 and founded the extensive florist business in which he was actively engaged up to the time of his death. He assisted greatly in the early growth of the city, helped lay out many of its streets and in the platting of many parts of it. He was also actively interested in every phase of progress in the life of the city, state and country. He was known by all as a man of noble character and high ideals, and his upright and honorable life won for him the greatest respect of all with whom he came in contact.

Surviving him are his widow, Charlotte Alice Bather, two sons, Leo and Ralph, and three daughters, Mrs. Arthur Burdick and the Misses Agnes and Edith Bather. The funeral services held Sunday, October 8, were largely attended, hundreds of friends and citizens paying final tribute to the memory of one of the city's most respected residents.

New York Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the club was held in the Grand Opera House building on the night of October 9, with a large attendance. Appropriate memorials were read and adopted relating to the deaths of Wm. F. Kastling and William Tricker. Winfried Rolker, Clifford Lowther and Henry Schmidt were received as members, all being present and making appropriate remarks. Julius Winkler, of Hackensack, N. J., and E. Allan Peirce, of Waltham, Mass., were proposed for membership.

Secretary Young made a comprehensive statement relating to the next convention of the S. A. F., which will be held in this city. He spoke of the convention garden, which will be under the direction of Dr. Britton, of Bronx Park Botanical Garden, which is assurance that everything will be well managed. Secretary Young closed his address by saying that he believed the delegates to the convention of 1917 would be entertained in a manner worthy of New York, and he was loudly applauded.

It was announced that all arrangements have been perfected for the spring flower show, which is expected to be a record breaker. John G. Esler, J. A. Manda, P. W. Popp and W. A. Manda entertained the club with interesting remarks relating to the convention.

The exhibits were very fine. Frank Dinda, Farmingdale, L. I., showed 12 blooms of the pink chrysanthemum, Alexander Guttman, a very fine production. He was awarded a cultural certificate. Other exhibits were, the yellow chrysanthemum, October King and French varieties, by C. H. Totty; a red seedling dahlia by Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., and mixed varieties of fine dahlias by P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y. All the exhibits were highly commended.

It was decided to make the November meeting a "ladies' night," and a committee was appointed to make all necessary arrangements. A. F. F.

BUSINESS NORMAL.

Business, which has been very good, returned to the mid-season level, following the close of the Veiled Prophet festivities. Unusually warm weather has hurt trade somewhat, but a good demand was noticeable the first part of the week, and while stock was scarce, the quality was very good. American Beauty is among the leaders in popularity and sells at from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Among the tea roses, good stock is to be had in Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Ward, Russell, Richmond and Hadley, prices ranging from $3 to $15 per 100. Lilies meet with a good call, but are in limited supply. They sell at $12.50 per 100. The following are included in the miscellaneous offerings: Dahlias, gladioli, bachelor buttons and zinnias, all of which are bringing fair prices. Greens are none too plentiful and clean up quickly.

NOTES.

The October meeting of the retail florists' association, which was held last week, was attended by 36 members. President Charles A. Young was in the chair and important business was disposed of. Frank X. Gorly, chairman of the membership committee, reports the enrollment of 32 new names.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. opened for business September 25 at 1410 Pine street. David Geddes, manager of the cut flower department, reports excellent business. Over 5,000 lily of the valley and 350 orchids were supplied by this firm for the Veiled Prophet ball.

Wm. C. Smith, of W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., Inc., says that Hauser dahlias, due to the exceptionally fine quality of the flowers, never brought higher prices than they did this year.

The south end florists report good business, the demand for funeral work being especially brisk. At the establishments of Windler and the Schoenle Floral Co. excellent window displays were seen.

J. F. Ammann & Co., who consign their cut to C. A. Kuehn, 1312 Pine street, are sending in some exceptionally fine roses, Ophelia and Mock being the best seen in this market.

Mullanphy, Florists, Grimm & Gorly, Miss M. S. Newman and Walbart, The Florist, report a busy three days the early part of the week, but the general daily average is only fair.

Harry Trafton, for the past eight years bookkeeper for Grimm & Gorly, will be married this month to Miss Gertrude Groshek.

Henry Berning is receiving very fine stock of American Beauty and reports satisfactory sales.

Fred Foster has moved from the Burlington building to 703 Oliver street.

TRADE IN GENERAL SATISFACTORY.

Warm weather during the past week had a tendency to affect trade unfavorably, but sales have been good, everything considered. Roses are plentiful, and as the weather has not been favorable for keeping, they sold at low figures. Lilies are scarce and chrysanthemums are also limited in supply. Some few of the latter are to be had and Smith's Advance, Unaka and Golden Glow are beginning to arrive. Carnations are not to be had in quantity, but what few there are show good quality. American Beauty roses are very plentiful. Smilax is scarce, but the demand is light. Dahlias are still good and the call for them is steady.

NOTES.

Ted Joyce is going to Shadow Lawn, October 14, to celebrate "Pennsylvania day" in honor of President Wilson. He arranged several fine baskets and bunches for the new postmaster here, who took office October 2.

E. P. Hostetter and wife of Mannheim, Pa., visited the trade here last week and made a trip to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.'s range at Bakerstown and the McCallum Co.'s greenhouses.

E. C. Ludwig and family are attending the wedding of their son, DeForest W., and Miss Irene Collins at Myersdale, Pa. The young couple will spend their honeymoon in California.

C. Godwin & Son, of Bridgeville, who usually have the first chrysanthemums on the market, are sending some fancy stock to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

S. G. Hardy, who has been on a motor trip to visit friends in Indiana, stopped off here, returning to his home in Independence, West Va.

Peter Hopman of New Galilee, Pa., is cutting some excellent chrysanthemums which find a ready sale at the McCallum Co.

Max Schrieber of McDonald, Pa., is cutting good Golden Glow chrysanthemums.

CELEBRATION BIG FACTOR OF WEEK.

With ideal weather for the celebration of Indiana's centennial, business received quite an impetus, many of the floats in the pageants being decorated with natural flowers and the numerous visitors in the city helped counter trade. Roses, while apparently abundant, clean up daily at prices ranging from two to six cents. A few selects are to be had at from seven to eight cents. Some unusually fine Radiance have made their appearance and meet with ready sale. Carnations of good quality, but with medium length stems, move well at two and one-half and three cents—remarkable prices for this stock as compared with other years. The chrysanthemum situation has not loosened up as quickly as was expected. The sales are good, but prices continue high. The scarcity of lilies continues. Lily of the valley is in great demand but is not obtainable in quantity. A few orchids of good quality are to be had and a limited number of good violets made their appearance this week. Short snapdragons are more plentiful. Buddleia Asiatica and gladioli are still hanging on. Smilax is beginning to arrive at 20 cents per string, but other greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana who will attend the joint meeting of the association and the Society of Kentucky Florists to be held at New Albany and Louisville, October 17-18, will go to New Albany via the Pennsylvania Railroad, the train leaving this city Tuesday, October 17, at 7:20 a. m. An outline of the programme of the two days' session will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Some exceptionally fine funeral design work has been sent out this week. A large broken automobile wheel reflected credit on the Pahud Floral Co.'s staff, while a very artistic blanket arranged by Edwin E. Temperly was noteworthy.

Mrs. Minnie Parks, who conducted a stand in the Tomlinson flower market, died at her home in this city, October 2, aged 42 years. She had been ill but a short time. A husband and one son survive her.

At Edwin E. Temperly's establishment an exceptionally fine line of pot plants, splendidly displayed, are a feature, among them being begonias, Jerusalem cherries and Roosevelt and Boston ferns.

Ed. Brown of Shelbyville, Ind., a recent visitor to this city, reports all of the florists there are enjoying good business. He mentioned the new store of Ed. Morner as being quite a success.

M. Bailliff, formerly with E. G. Hill Floral Co., is now with A. Wiegand & Sons Co. Claude Griffith is now with the Hensley Flower Shop.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting quite a number of good carnations. Their new variety, Merry Christmas, looks especially promising.

A new flower shop will be opened in the near future in the Circle theatre and will be under the management of A. P. Reynolds.

George Wiegand, who recently underwent an operation at a local hospital, has returned to business, much improved.

Hartje & Elder have a very promising violet crop from which they have started cutting.

Henry Rieman has purchased a tract of seven lots upon which he will grow summer flowers.

The warm weather has given the Hoosier Floral Co. a good crop of late gladioli.

John Grande has been cutting some very good pink chrysanthemums.

SHORTAGE EXCEPT IN ROSES.

There is a little lull in the trade just now, as compared with a few weeks past, but nothing that approaches a slump. In everything except roses there is more or less shortage. The large variety of roses, as well as the plentiful supply, gives attractiveness to florists' displays. Prices, aside from occasional bargain sales, vary from $1.50 upward. American Beauty is less luxuriant than any of the rose family now in stock. Much of the supply is confined to buds. Prices are $2 and upward. Pink and lavender chrysanthemums have taken their places with the white and yellow. Cuttings of all colors are limited as yet, and the price range is from $2 to $3. Carnations, selling for 50 and 60 cents a dozen, have been held back by unfavorable weather, and stems are small. Lily of the valley is short crop and brings the unusual price, for this market, of six and seven cents a stem. Continued warmth and the holding off of frosts have prolonged the season for outdoor flowers, but the end has about been reached. Asters and dahlias are done.

There are still some gladioli, cuttings being mostly confined to red.

NOTES.

One of this city's modern greenhouse plants is to be wrecked. The owner, J. B. Woolman, accepted a tempting offer for the ground, consisting of 11 acres, from the Big Four railway company, which wanted it for yard-extension purposes. Another factor entering into the sale is the fact that Mr. Woolman goes south every winter for health reasons, and wished to retire from the trade. The buildings comprise some 25,000 feet of glass, which he hopes to dispose of to other florists. The cost of their removal is estimated at $2,000. He will retain possession of the property until next June, but desires to lease the premises to someone until that time. The plant has been in existence only a few years. Mr. Woolman expects to engage in the real estate business in this city.

The Livingston Seed Company has been forced to forego its annual dahlia show this season, which has become a local institution. Lack of stock is the reason. A year ago 65 varieties were displayed. In view of this omission, more than usual effort will be made

WARM WEATHER AIDS SUPPLY.

The exceptionally warm weather last week helped to hasten the crops under glass, thus making it possible to do a little more justice to the ever increasing shipping orders, as well as the local demand, which is very satisfactory. Roses are plentiful. While the supply of carnations is increasing from day to day there are not enough to go around. A few pink chrysanthemums made their debut last week, and from present indications there will be a goodly number ready to cut when these lines reach the reader. Single and double violets can also be had in limited quantities from now on.

NOTES.

October 6, Fred Holton, Nic Zweifel, G. Pohl, W. R. Schroeder, A. McDonauld, and the writer, left the Holton & Hunkel store at 10 a. m. for a pleasure and business trip per auto. The first stop was at Otto Sylvester & Son's, Oconomowoc, where we found everybody busy trying to catch up. They specialize in carnations, and although the plants had suffered severely in the field, they are now coming along nicely with a good cut in sight. As usual we enjoyed the famed Sylvester hospitality, which is accorded all visitors. In less than an hour's run we landed at Alb. Loeffler's in Watertown, who specializes in double violets and their stock looks clean and thrifty. They were just bunching when we arrived. A house of chrysanthemums, to be followed by single violets, showed good culture. One house had been seeded to sweet peas a week before. The next stop was at Loeffler & Benke's, where a large house, 30x200 feet, in which tomatoes were grown all summer, produced about 8,000 pounds of fruit, which, owing to scarcity of outdoor tomatoes, brought a good price. The house now, with the exception of two benches, which are planted with single violets, are sown with sweet peas. The other houses about a block away are devoted to double violets, chrysanthemums, carnations and sweet peas, the latter being about a foot high. All the stock looks very promising. On the way home, we passed the flower store of the Waukesha Floral Co. and we compliment this firm on the neat appearance and good impression it made on all of us. Neither pen nor words can describe the beautiful effects of the country in its autumnal dress, or the high spirits, which prevailed during the outing.

An auto party consisting of Gust Rusch, D. Darenthal, Wm. Zimmermann and three friends on October 6 took a run west, the first growers visited being Behnke Bros. at Watertown, Wis. While the rest of the party were still in the greenhouses, Wm. Zimmermann took to the outside. While roaming around he ran across a big hound, who was chained and apparently harmless. He was just about to take a bite of a tomato, while petting the dog, when the latter got busy, inflicting several painful wounds about his face. This completely upset the whole programme and it was a matter of getting Will to Milwaukee as quickly as possible. We can report at this time that no serious results are expected to follow.

G. F. Baerman, who had rented 60 acres around his greenhouses, says that this land has all been laid out in lots and most of them sold up to this time. He will now have to get busy to erect a dwelling; also, a barn on his own property as he must vacate the other place by spring.

Fred Rentchler, of Madison, Wis., and John Muno, Chicago, were trade visitors last week. Adam Zender, of Chicago, who has been taking the baths at Waukesha, Wis., stopped off here on his way home October 7.

While they are always busy at the C. C. Pollworth Co., "the arrival and dispatching of bulbs always adds a little bit more trouble to what we have," to use the words of C. C. P.

The A. F. Kellner Co. says that business has been fine right along, even during the summer months, and in order to keep up from now on they have acquired a Ford roadster.

"Wedding bells" are soon to ring for the benefit of Roy Currie, of Currie Bros. Co., and also for Frank Sylvester, who is with the J. M. Fox & Son cut flower department.

The first single violets to arrive from the Heitman-Oestreicher Co. were cut October 1. Carnations, with them, are coming right along now.

Kamp & Spinti cut their first chrysanthemums last week.

OUTDOOR STOCK STILL PLENTIFUL.

Frost during the past week put the outdoor flowers "out of the running" temporarily, but they are again very much in evidence. Dahlias, asters, gladioli, larkspurs, gaillardias, strawflowers, scabiosas, marigolds, snapdragons, tritomas and calendulas continue to be part of the daily receipts. Carnations are still scarce and of short stem. Lily of the valley is listed among the items of limited supply, but a small quantity of swainsona arrives to take its place in the cheaper priced bouquets. A few Japanese lilies are to be seen, both long and short stems, and meet with a good demand. Roses are becoming more plentiful. Good Mock, Rhea Reid and Lady Pierre are popular and the quality is very good. All grades of American Beauty find favor and the stock is fine. Kaiserin, Killarney, Sunburst and Hadley are also good sellers. Chrysanthemums clean up daily, among the better varieties being Chrysolora, Crocker, Unaka and Golden Glow. Some pompons, principally yellow, are also seen. Greens are plentiful.

The J. M. Gasser Co. has put on a Ford delivery car at its wholesale establishment. Peter Michaels, The Arcade Florist, has also put a Ford into service at his place.

SHORT SUPPLY LIMITS SALES.

The supply of stock continues limited, roses, which are the principal offering, wholesaling at $5 per 100 and up and the quality is good. Ophelia takes the lead in quantity with the Killarneys next in number. There are also good Richmond, Ward, Sunburst and American Beauty. Carnations are more plentiful with better flowers and longer stems. Chrysanthemums are also arriving and are to be had in yellow, white and pink. Lilies, since the appearance of the chrysanthemums, are about off the market. Dahlias are still to be seen. All florists report a steady increase in business. Funeral work has been good and orders for weddings are numerous.

NOTES.

A visit to the growing establishments in this city and vicinity shows stock to be in fine condition. Stevens Greenhouses have carnations that cannot be improved upon. The cut averages about 300 per day. Chrysanthemums here are also looking fine. The force is busy planting bulbs at present. Jacob Hepting has a fine showing of carnations and his chrysanthemums look promising. Adolph D. Mohr's establishment is always an interesting place. At present he has the finest stock of Begonias Lorraine and Cincinnati ever seen in this city. His cyclamen and poinsettias are also in fine shape and he has good blocks of chrysanthemums and snapdragons. Nelson Jarrett is completing a new house and getting ready for winter business. His chrysanthemums are looking well. The Elmhurst Nurseries at Rosedale have everything in splendid shape. They are cutting dahlias in quantity. The Rosery is showing good pot and bench chrysanthemums; also a good line of cyclamens, Begonia luminosa and carnations heavy with buds. Carnations are showing color at A. F. Barbe's range. He also has a house of benched ferns that are worth seeing. Other stocks including snapdragons, stevias and roses are coming along fine. August Luther has his stock in excellent shape and will be prepared for the good trade which he anticipates. Boyd's Greenhouses have a good line of peppers and chrysanthemums.

H. Kusik & Co. and T. J. Noll & Co., wholesalers, both report a heavy demand with the supply insufficient to meet all requirements. Ophelia, Richmond, Sunburst, the Killarneys and American Beauty roses, take the lead in the stock on hand. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful and carnations are beginning to arrive. The supply business is on the increase.

In the floricultural department at the state fair, the Archias Floral Co. and the State Fair Floral Co., both of Sedalia, were the principal prize winners. Lack of other competition characterized the exhibition, but the displays of these firms were most creditable.

W. J. Barnes has fine stock in both bench and pot chrysanthemums and has already started cutting. His stevias, carnations, cyclamens and Lorraine and Luminosa begonias are all in excellent condition, showing good culture.

Ed. Humfeld has his stock, as usual, in excellent condition. Chrysanthemums and pink snapdragons are noteworthy features here.

M. H. Smith is now located in his new store in the Benton theater building, and looks forward to good business.

CHOICE SHIPPING ROSES

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade.

NEW BEAUTIES--A very large cut now on of short and medium stems.
Good Shipping Stock.

Rhea Reid—Best red rose.

Mrs. Russell—Best pink rose.

Sunburst—Best yellow rose.

Double White Killarney—Best white rose.

Ophelia and Shawyer—Are also two good pink roses for present use.

These in addition to the regular varieties of Roses we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

STOCK IS MORE PLENTIFUL.

Stock is more plentiful at this writing, but everything is cleaning up well at good prices and there is no great surplus when the wholesale stores close at night. The weather the past week has been very warm and the thermometer registered as high as 86°, Saturday, October 7, which accounts for the increased supply. Business has been good all week, especially the out-of-town demand, and the city trade is also showing a great improvement. Roses particularly are in larger supply and choice stock in all the varieties grown for the local market are obtainable in the desired quantities. Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty roses are in best demand and clean up first. Ophelia and Sunburst are also having a good call. Some particularly fine Hoosier Beauty are seen, and, taken all in all, the quality of the roses in general is all that can be desired. Carnations are more plentiful and some fairly good stock is obtainable but the supply as yet is not equal to the demand. Assters are still included in the offerings and are in good demand, owing to the shortage of carnations. Chrysanthemums are arriving in larger quantities in white, pink and yellow but there are plenty of buyers for all that are offered, which means a grand clean-up every day. A few pompons are coming in but the receipts are so small that no trouble is experienced in disposing of the stock. Sweet peas have made their appearance and so have home grown gardenias. Orchids are more numerous but lilies are in shorter supply and command higher prices. Lily of the valley is scarce and the better grades in some instances are selling as high as $6.00 per 100. Home grown single and New York double violets are on the bill of fare but are not having much of a call. Gladioli are still a factor in the market and a good supply of other miscellaneous outdoor stock is included in the shipments. Daisies, mignonette and snapdragons are obtainable in limited quantities and are disposed of early. Green goods of all kinds are in large supply. There has been a good demand for stock in general, especially roses for the fall store openings, which has helped considerably in cleaning up the market the past week.

NOTES.

A. Vanderpoel, 4013 Colorado avenue, financial secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' Union, No. 10615 A. F. of L., will represent his organization at the convention of the State Federation of Labor at Quincy, October 16-20.

John Huebner, Allie Zech, Fred Price, Joe Einweck and Peter Olsem represented the trade in the North Chicago Bowling League, which opened its season October 5. The Florists won one and lost two of the three games played.

—2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass—

H. N. Bruns, E. C. Amling, John Michelson, Henry Wendland, Ernst Amling, Paul Weiss, Henry Wehrmann, Jean Damm, Herman Bruns and Harold Amling inspected French & Salm's Mrs. Chas. Russell rose factory at Union Grove, Wis., October 4. The trip was made in E. C. Amling and H. N. Bruns' Packards without mishap. A florist who passed the party on the outgoing trip thought at first he had encountered the German army rushing to Milwaukee for supplies, but when he saw the Danish prince with them he knew that he was mistaken.

Bassett & Washburn never cut a finer supply of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses than they are doing right now and they have every reason to feel proud of the stock they are offering in this variety, for the extra large heads are perfect and are carried on strong, straight stems well laden with clean, luxuriant foliage. Fred Wittbold, of the George Wittbold Co., visited the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses at Gregg's Station and Hinsdale this week and speaks in glowing terms of the fine condition of the stock in general, particularly the chrysanthemums.

The fall flower festival and meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Bloomington, November 9-10, and from present indications it appears as if this city will be well represented as far as the attendance is concerned. Several of the local growers have signified their intention of making exhibits. No premiums will be awarded, which will encourage many growers to exhibit who have never done so before, so a large exhibition can be looked for.

Telegrams were received in the wholesale market last week reporting the death of Andrew Bather, of Clinton, Ia., October 5. The late Mr. Bather was a large buyer in this market and was well known here and had a host of friends in the trade. His business will be continued under the able management of Leo Bather, who has been in active charge for some time.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are handling a fine supply of roses and carnations and report business brisk enough to permit them to dispose of all the offerings at an early hour. The carnation shipments include a splendid grade of White Wonder, which are second to none in quality to any stock offered in this market so far this season.

At J. A. Budlong's store the receipts of carnations are very heavy and the stock is unusually good for so early in the season. Manager Schupp says that their present large supply enables them to fill all their orders in full.

Mrs. R. M. Grieg, of Anaconda, Mont., is the guest of relatives here this week. She visited John Mangel's store in the Palmer House and was most favorably impressed with his magnificent establishment.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is offering a good supply of Anton Then's new carnation Thenanthos, which are bringing top prices and appears to be a most promising red. A cordial invitation is extended to the trade to visit the Then greenhouses at any time and inspect this variety. Thenanthos will be on exhibition at the next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, November 16, "Chrysanthemum and Novelty Night."

E. F. Winterson and Fritz Bahr have been busy the past week plowing and fencing in Mr. Winterson's property at Highland Park and have things pretty well under way. Mr. Bahr had the misfortune of falling down a ravine while they were at work, and has been laid up since with a fractured ankle and several torn ligaments. His doctor says that he will be laid up for at least three weeks.

The John Kruchten Co. is handling a large supply of Aviator carnations from the Nic Kruchten greenhouses, where this variety is being grown on a large scale. Mr. Kruchten says that this variety does not bring as high prices, as far as the individual blooms are concerned, as some of the other reds, but that it is the best money maker on their list, owing to its wonderful productiveness.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report business as fine with the sales running away head of last year. This firm is handling a large supply of all seasonable stock, particularly American Beauty roses, which are in brisk demand, and their leader. Orchids are in good supply here, especially cattleyas and vandas.

Wietor Bros. are supplying their trade with fancy chrysanthemums, which they are starting to cut in quantity. This firm grows chrysanthemums and pompons on a large scale and are without question the largest growers of indoor stock in the country.

Supt. E. A. Kanst, of Lincoln park, and H. S. Richards, superintendent of maintenance in the South park system, are attending the annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents at New Orleans, La., this week with their wives.

W. H. Amling, wife and sons Herbert and Martin, and Allie Zech and wife, visited the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses at Joliet, October 5, making the trip in Mr. Amling's new Paige.

Max Ringier, long and favorably known on the market, has been obliged to relinquish his position with the Kennicott Bros. Company. Mr. Ringier has been in poor health for some time and his many friends hope for his early recovery.

Kyle & Foerster received their first shipment of orchid flowering sweet peas October 4, which, to the writer's knowledge, were the first of the season. They are also offering home-grown gardenias.

Erne & Klingel are having their share of business and are busy with both city and shipping orders. The house is still handling a large quantity of outdoor flowers, especially gladioli.

Miss Mattie Groll, Holgate, O., and Walter Amling, son of W. H. Amling, well-known Maywood grower, will be married Thursday, October 26.

Joseph Ziska & Sons state that the French chiffons they are receiving now are much better in quality than those they received before the present European war started.

E. C. Amling, well known wholesale commission florist, celebrated his forty-eighth birthday, Tuesday, October 10.

Ernest Anderson, Bassett & Washburn's reliable storeman, celebrated his forty-fourth birthday, October 5.

Wendland & Keimel cut 80,000 roses last week at their Elmhurst establishment and 73,000 the week before.

E. J. Fancourt, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Company, Philadelphia, Pa., is with us this week.

A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind., was a visitor at Weiland & Risch's establishment, October 7.

Percy Jones continues to handle a large quantity of choice chrysanthemums and pompons and reports a heavy demand for them. Manager Van Gelder is well pleased with business and his books show that last week was a record breaker and the sales during that time were double those of the same week of any previous year. The sales for Friday, October 6, were the largest of any one day the firm ever experienced, outside of the holidays.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. received an importation of eight tons of Italian ruscus this week, which T. E. Waters says, together with the other stock on hand, will enable them to fill their orders in full. The cut flower department is showing a fine supply of roses particularly Chas. Russell and American Beauty, which are in splendid crop with them.

Ed. Kissell, better known as "Jimmy," died October 5, and was buried the following Saturday. The late Mr. Kissell was well known to the local trade as a member of the Chicago Florists' Club's "clinker" quartette, consisting of E. F. Winterson, Chas. W. McKellar, George Asmus and Chas. Balluff.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are enjoying a busy season in both their cut flower and supply departments. The supply department is showing a fine line of Henry Wittbold used 60,000 roses in the decoration he had in Marshall Field & Co.'s millinery department this week, besides 1,000 baskets of artificial goods and other decorative materials.

Arthur F. Crabb, Grand Rapids, Mich., was here this week buying supplies for his fall trade. He reports business as good, with a bright outlook for the remainder of the season.

A. Miller of the American Bulb Co. has returned from a business trip to New York. Samuel Seligman is home from Cleveland, O.

C. B. LeMer, of Simpson's Flower Shop, reports trade as improving at both stores, but that collections are unusually slow compared to former years.

Louis Eisman is again attending to his duties at the Alpha Floral Co., after recovering from a severe operation for rupture about a month ago.

W. J. Smart, with Knight & Struck Co., New York, has an exhibit of heather and other plants at the Hotel La Salle.

Mrs. George Manos, who underwent an operation at St. Luke's hospital recently, is much improved in health, and is back home again.

CARNATIONS==DEPENDABLE SUPPLY

The George Wittbold Co. is building two more large Garland houses at its Edgebrook establishment, which, together with the other houses erected this season, will give the firm 41,000 feet of new glass. The new range will be devoted to plants. The Wittbold Co.'s new store on Buckingham place, adjoining the large Wittbold apartments, is almost completed and will be ready for occupancy about November 1.

Word was received here this week from Boston, Mass., that Albert J. Roper was found not guilty of murdering his father, well known carnation grower. Albert was employed in the cut flower department of Poehlmann Bros. Co. last year and his many friends here are pleased to hear of his acquittal, even though none ever believed him guilty.

W. J. Keimel, of Elmhurst, and George Ball and W. S. Gilbert, of Glen Ellyn, have returned from a week's automobile trip to Detroit and other Michigan cities in Mr. Ball's new Studebaker. They visited the greenhouses of Albert Stahlein and Thos. Brown while at Detroit and also the celebrated Henry Ford toy factory.

Peter Reinberg is in good crop with roses and is offering a fine supply of all the leading varieties, including Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty. Mr. Reinberg and family and Henry Zender and wife are taking the baths at West Baden, Ind.

Wm. Graham, manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., and family left October 10 for Philadelphia, Pa., to attend the wedding of his son.

Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., has returned from a successful western trip.

A. Henderson & Co. are unloading a carload each of Dutch and Japanese bulbs this week.

George Walther, 6310 Normal avenue, is rejoicing over the arrival of a brand new baby girl.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting was held October 3 at the greenhouses of Butler & Ullman, Northampton, Mass. There was an excellent attendance and the meeting throughout was full of interest. Prospects are bright for the fourth annual show, which is to be held in the Northampton city hall, November 1-2. The Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, offers one of its bronze medals for competition, and it was voted to award this for the best group of plants. Instead of a paper being read and discussed, each member brought a question. These naturally covered a wide field of inquiry, but as a sign of the times it was interesting to note that several had to do with the increasing cost of doing business. Butler & Ullman exhibited vases of Ophelia and Russell roses of excellent quality, and H. E. Downer showed flowering plants of the water hyacinth, Eichornia crassipes. H. E. D.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The October meeting of the florists' club was held at the Morrison hotel on the 7th inst., President Henderson in the chair. Martin Amling and Emil Schnake, both of Maywood, were elected members and the following applications were read: A. L. Vaughan, 161 North Wabash avenue; Robert Windler, 6638 Ridge avenue, and Peter Knowe, 133 West Washington street.

C. W. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, spoke of the coming fall flower festival and meeting of this society to be held at Bloomington, November 9-10, and requested all those who could attend to do so and if possible make an exhibit. No premiums will be awarded, which meets with the approval of practically everyone, so a large display of stock and a banner attendance is expected. Because the date of the next regular club night is the same as the opening day of the Bloomington show the meeting will be postponed until Thursday, November 16.

A chrysanthemum and novelty show will be held in conjunction with the November meeting and will be open to the public in the afternoon and evening. C. W. Johnson was appointed manager of the exhibition and Fred Lautenschlager publicity man. The local examining committee of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, consisting of N. J. Wietor (chairman), George Asmus and Thos. W. Head, will be on hand to judge the blooms and everyone throughout the country having any new chrysanthemum seedlings or sports are invited to make an exhibit, and so is the grower who has any other novelty to show.

George Asmus, vice-president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association, invited everyone in the city to attend their meeting, to be held at the Hotel La Salle, October 11-12 at 9 a. m., when President Wm. F. Gude and Past-president Irwin Bertermann, together with the directors and other officers and about 100 members, will be present.

GARDENVILLE, N. Y.—Galley Bros. will add several houses to their range here.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., has completed three new houses, each 250 feet long, for W. J. Evenden & Sons.

CLUB MEETING.

Commissions granted to undertakers were discussed at some length at the October meeting of the florists' club. President Thomas F. Tracey as a result, named a committee of four to consult with all the local retailers with a view to making a reduction in the commission. The members of the committee are: Frederick A. Danker, chairman; Edward P. Tracey, William W. Holmes, and William C. Gloeckner. The committee will get the views of the retailers and report at the November meeting. The subject brought out interesting remarks. Among those who took part were two visitors, W. C. Cahill, with Roman J. Irwin, of New York, and L. J. Seiger, representing Robert Craig Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., both of whom happened to be in the city. Mr. Danker in bringing up the subject said it did not seem fair to allow only 20 per cent to an out-of-town florist, who fills a telegraph order, while the local undertaker gets from 25 per cent up. Mr. Seiger said that in the territory which he covers he learned that commissions to undertakers run as high as 50 per cent; in the nearby city of Troy, 33 1-3 per cent commission is common, but in Albany the rate is about 25 per cent. Mr. Cahill called attention to the fact that in the past 10 years, only two articles, to his knowledge, had not advanced in price,—salt and flowers. On account of the increasing cost of doing business and the high prices of supplies, Mr. Cahill said that the florists will have to reduce commissions to undertakers. The views of the local retailers will be more fully known at the next meeting.

Efforts to check white pine blister rust in New York and New England may result in certain districts in the elimination of currant and gooseberry bushes. The experts of the United States department of agriculture, the state of New York, and the state of Massachusetts, have learned that the fungus of the white pine blister rust, through the summer, utilizes currant and gooseberry bushes as hosts without doing the bushes any harm. In August and September the fungus spores are carried by the wind to the trees, where they do damage. During the month of August the state of New York employed 35 men under the supervision of the state department of agriculture and the conservation commission to dig up and to destroy all currant and gooseberry bushes in Columbia county along the Massachusetts line for a width of two miles. In sections where pine trees are to be grown the residents will have to choose between the trees and their currant and gooseberry bushes. The white pine blister rust was introduced in stock from Europe some years ago.

Frederick A. Danker and Mr. Cahill gave some interesting observations on the application of efficiency methods in the florists' business. These remarks were based upon recent visits to commercial establishments down the river, where one large grower, for example, found that he was losing 40 cents a year on each of 2,000 rose plants of a well known variety. The proprietor after putting in an efficiency system in his office discovered he was growing that rose at a loss and promptly discarded it. Another large firm in Connecticut, doing a spring business of many thousands of dollars in bedding plants, and believing it was making money, discovered through an efficiency system that it was only $18 ahead for the season's work. That branch of the business was dropped at once.

It was decided to have an exhibit of chrysanthemums for the members at the next meeting. The growers in the club will be asked to send in specimens of varieties they believe to be desirable. President Tracey named a committee to look after the details as follows: William Newport, Earl Shaw, Frederick Henkes, William Hannell and Frederick Goldring.

Robert Shoch, with M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., whose name was proposed at the September meeting, was elected a member.

William C. Gloeckner, of 97 State street, has opened a branch store at 5 New Scotland avenue.

MONROE, WASH.—A. C. Elliott has taken over the Monroe Greenhouses.

ANDERSON, IND.—After a partnership extending over 21 years, the firm of Stuart & Haugh, florists, has dissolved by mutual consent. The business will continue to be operated under the name of J. S. Stuart & Son, Mr. Haugh retiring.

MARKET WELL SUPPLIED.

There has been a very substantial increase in the supply of stock, so that by the first of this week the market was rather crowded. Shipping business is good. Roses are in an extremely heavy supply. Carnations are plentiful and generally have a pretty ready sale. Chrysanthemums are now coming into the market regularly, and at the time of this writing may be had in white and yellow. Easter lilies are in a heavy supply. Dahlias are very plentiful. Cosmos, too, are seen in large numbers. Other offerings include orchids, lily of the valley, sweet peas, single violets and snapdragons. Wild smilax has been meeting with a heavy call.

NOTES.

John C. Rutenschroer had an elegant exhibit of dahlias at the dahlia show at the Zoological Garden last week and was a big prize winner. He also had a fine assortment on his stand at the Sixth street flower market on Saturday.

Raymond Lindsey, of the Hartwell Floral Co., was severely bruised about the head and body, October 9, when an auto he was driving collided with another machine, and he was thrown out.

C. E. Critchell has been putting big lots of ferns and galax into storage.

P. J. Olinger is cutting a fine lot of roses.

Visitors: Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Jacobs, and H. A. Mollers, both of New York; C. A. Bower, Dayton, Ohio, and J. J. Lampert and wife, Zenia, O. H.

CLIFTON, VA.—O. C. Ports is adding one large house to his range on Wilson creek.

SALINAS, CALIF.—A recent hail storm, the first on record in this state to cause a serious damage to greenhouse glass, caused a loss of $500 at the establishment of D. A. Madeira.

WACO, TEX.—T. J. Wolfe reached home October 7 from an extended northern trip, visiting Chicago and New York and returning from the latter city by steamer. Mr. Wolfe says he had a most enjoyable time, meeting many friends on the way.

GOOD DEMAND IN ALL LINES.

The week ended, after a fair trade, with a very busy Saturday; everything appeared to be in demand and sold up close. Dahlias are now at their zenith, the growers sending in all the market will take and the quality is fine and good prices prevail. Roses are perhaps next to dahlias, the quantity stock; they are rapidly rounding into form, some very good Killarney, Hadley and Ophelia being offered with from 24 to 30 inch stems. American Beauties, in any quantity and of very fine quality, find a good demand—there are more specials than all other sizes together. Carnations are bracing up. Some are seen with from 10 to 12 inch stems. Chrysanthemums are on the verge of attack; the coming week will see the advent of several early sorts. Golden Glow, Unaka and Smith's Advance, together with a few Tint of Gold, were the varieties this week. The crop, as a whole, appears from a week to 10 days behind last season. Prices hold firm. Gladioli, larkspurs, cosmos, Uptorium celestin and perennial asters are leaders in the outside stock. Easter lilies are equal to the demand. Cattleyas are more plentiful and lily of the valley, while holding firm in price, is going to waste.

NOTES.

The fall show of the Lansdowne Flower Show Association, of which S. S. Pennock is president, held October 7, was a great success, both in quality and number of the exhibits. A new white rose, Clarice Goodacre, being sent out this season by Dickson of Ireland, was shown in the Dr. Huey collection. It is a superb flower. The made up basket work, all arranged by amateurs, was very well done. There was a good attendance.

Wm. Savill's paper on hardy herbaceous plants and perennials, read before the florists' club at its last meeting, deserves more than a passing notice. It should be read and studied by every grower, particularly those who plant any of this class of stock for cutting, as Mr. Savill gives a complete list of those most suitable for this purpose, together with directions for culture to secure the best results.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., made a fine showing of herbaceous stock at the Lansdowne Flower Show Association exhibition October 7. Fred Cowperthwaite officiated as judge here and also at a similar show at Norwood, Pa., which, while purely local, was very complete, and contained the best of the gardens of the flower loving people of this thriving borough.

H. A. Dreer, Inc., are having a run on the glory fern, the near Farleyense. It is much used in made-up plant basket work, being especially beautiful in three and four-inch pot sizes. When planted out for cut fronds, it gives very satisfactory returns.

Dahlias are being handled in very large quantities at this time by the Leo Niessen Co. In the early morning, auto trucks direct from the dahlia farms, own the corners of Twelfth and Race streets and dominate traffic for a while.

The Robert Craig Co. is moving a lot of ferns and other ornamental foliage plants, their shipments out of town keeping the packing department on the go. Several houses of chrysanthemums are coming on rapidly and look fine.

The stock and fixtures of the Martin Flower Store were disposed of last week by the trustee, S. S. Pennock. The Habermehls, Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange and John C. Gracey were the principal purchasers.

Choice Russell roses and high grade Easter lilies were features of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.'s stock. Quantities of all kinds of stock plants for florists are also handled in quantities.

Edward Reid is still roaming his ranches in North Dakota. Flowers come in and go out at 1519 Ranstead street as usual. Kaiserin and Sunburst roses are features here.

A much better demand than last season and a greatly increased stock is the good word of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. High grade Mrs. Shawyer roses are a specialty.

Alfred M. Campbell reports the delivery boy problem a serious one—they get almost twice the wages of a year ago, and yet one is not sure of them from day to day.

BEES' ROSES ARE AMAZING

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose tree to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to insure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly-fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long pause before the roots become acclimatised, so to speak. This is due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which will enable the trees to go straight on with their work, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth in heavy over-fed soil, consequently Nature did not provide it. The result is a fat lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has more or less of a struggle for existence—that has had to work for its living; a prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree, that is trained up to the last ounce. You can get such trees under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200-acre farm in North Wales, England. Bees' Nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail—almost—of Chester, on the one hand, and Mount Snowdon on the ther. The land is actually reclaimed silt deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root-fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every inclination towards exuberance is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of the root fibres. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity and delusive mildness compact the plant tissues to iron-wood hardness. The result, at lifting time, is a short-jointed, stocky tree, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted into milder quarters.

Joseph Hetherington, or Joe, as he would rather be called, finished his thirty-fifth year of continuous service with the Robert Craig Co., October 2. He is still hale and hearty. For many years every plant boxed for shipping has passed through his hands and the amount of work of this kind he could do in 24 hours at the rush times of Christmas and Easter is prodigious. He is still on the job, packing plants into boxes as they are handed to him, at a record pace and with all his old time vigor.

The Allied Fish and Aquarium Societies of Philadelphia held an exhibition of fancy gold and other valuable pet fish at Horticultural hall in Fairmount park, October 7-9. With the added attraction of the palms and other tropical surroundings, the display which of itself was wonderful in its variety of lion heads, telescopes, fancy lacetailed and notailed sorts, and others was voted one of the best exhibitions ever held by the allied societies. The attendance was very large.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are the busiest people in town. Paul Berkowitz says there is a good demand for almost everything. Their new fall list is just out, an encyclopedia of all the newest and the staple goods in florists' supplies.

W. P. Carra, Manton, N. J., who has had great success with larkspur, has also done splendidly with the new celosia called Chinese wool flower. There has been a ready sale for all he could cut.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has just completed a house for Wm. Schlichter, of Mohnton, Pa. Albert Schinitz, of Roxboro, also purchased one of their large boilers, sufficient to heat his whole establishment.

ROSE SUPPLY INCREASES; PRICES DROP.

Business was not particularly active during the past week. The weather again turned warm, which served the double purpose of increasing the supply of stock and keeping the leisure class at their country homes or at the various resorts. There has been no great surplus of good stock, but it has taken some hustling to clean up. The supply of American Beauties is light and prices for good specials keep up to 30 cents each, wholesale rates. In such tea roses as Ophelia, Stanley, Killarney and other well known varieties, the increased supply, with no corresponding demand, has to some extent lowered prices. This is more noticeable in the fancy and special stocks and may be accounted for from the fact that the larger retail stores are not yet doing a heavy business. The supply of chrysanthemums is steadily increasing, the pink variety Unaka being very noticeable, but all move slowly. In carnations a limited supply of excellent stock, for the season is arriving. Cottage Maid, Mrs. Ward, Matchless, White Wonder and Enchantress being noteworthy. The best wholesaling at $4 per 100. There is a fair supply of lilies and lily of the valley and prices remain firm. Orchids are plentiful and cheap and move slowly. There are gardenias in the market, but the demand seems to be light.

Good dahlias are factors and bring fair prices, but there is considerable dahlia stock coming in that is of little account. The bouvardias are noteworthy, being of good quality, three dozen for $1 being the ruling wholesale price. The supply of double violets greatly increased during the past week, but not much can be said in favor of their quality, the weather having been too warm for them and they hang heavy on the hands of the wholesalers. One prominent wholesaler stated a few days ago that his business was not as good as at this date last year, and that seems to be the general impression, but to quote a veteran in the business, "The florists are a hopeful lot."

October 9.—Business has opened under fair conditions, though the weather is quite warm for this season. The supply of chrysanthemums is increasing, several varieties of the "big fellows" being now on the market. The gladioli and asters are no longer factors, though a few are arriving. There is a good supply of other stocks.

NOTES.

Joseph A. Millang, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., is receiving from the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., fine stock of the carnations Cottage Maid and Matchless, from Paul M. Pierson's Briarcliffe range, excellent American Beauties, and from the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., fine stock of the roses Francis Scott Key and Mignon. He is also handling a line of the F. R. Pierson Co.'s celebrated ferns in pots.

Peter Beuerlein, of Elmhurst, who is secretary of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., and ships his stock there, is cutting good carnations of sports of Enchantress that originated at his range. He is also an extensive grower of bulbs and general stock, but like others, has not yet received half of the bulbs he is expecting.

Dennis Calnan, who for the past 50 years has been engaged in various capacities in the florist business in this city, died suddenly, October 5, aged 68 years. For a number of years, and up to a few days of his death, he had worked for Charles Millang, in the Coogan building.

ARNOLD BOXES ARE BEST

Leading Retail Florists Everywhere Say So.

Many Chicago florists use no other kind as they have found from experience that Arnold Boxes suit their purpose best and are the most reasonable in price, taking quality into consideration.

Write for samples and prices or better yet order your supply today

A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., 1302-1308 W. Division St., CHICAGO, - ILLINOIS.

Charles Beekman, of Elmhurst, who is an officer of the Cut Flower Exchange, and whose stock is sold there by his son, is growing quite a stock of the old white carnation, Boston Market. He says that if he does not get as much as for the "big fellows," he makes it up on the large quantity, as Boston Market is very prolific. He also grows lilies, sweet peas and a variety of other stock, having recently taken up pelargoniums.

These fine October days bring an interesting visitor to the wholesale district in the person of John Mallon, the surviving member of the Brooklyn firm of James Mallon's Sons. It takes John a long time to get through West 28th street, because so many people want to stop him to shake his hand.

Jack Trepel opened his new store at 480 Fulton street, Brooklyn, October 7, under very encouraging conditions. He says he had 700 customers on the first day. It is a very fine store, in the heart of the Brooklyn shopping district, and should be a success.

George H. Beckman, of Elmhurst, which is a part of this city, is preparing to erect four new houses, 25x125 feet each. He has already a considerable glass area and grows general stock, which he sells in the Cut Flower Exchange.

Joseph S. Fenrich is receiving from C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., very fine stock of the yellow Japanese incurved chrysanthemum, October King. He advises us that they wholesale for $12 per dozen.

M. Vlachos (the Astoria Florist), 2188 Broadway, has just put on a fine new automobile for delivery. It does not appear that the "wolf is gnawing at the doors" of the retail florists.

Spiwak & Perlow, plantsmen of Elmhurst and Woodside, are sending in an exceptionally fine stock of ferns. They have also a fine stock of dracaenas, crotons and other plants.

The Macniff Horticultural Co. advises us that their auctions are very popular and successful, bulbs being important factors, but they are also doing a fine business in plants.

H. L. Baylis, who sells the stock of Dailledouze Bros. and E. Asmus, is handling very fine Prima Donna, Ophelia and other roses; also, chrysanthemums and carnations.

James W. Heacock, of Roelofs and Wyncote, Pa., and his chauffeur, were in this city, October 3-4, having a big auto-truck load of palms for delivery to customers in this city.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., advise us that they recently received the first shipment of boxwoods and rhododendrons to reach this port, and the stock looks good.

At Paul Meconi's, in the Coogan building, we have noticed fine gardenias, orchids, carnations, bouvardias and a great variety of other stock.

The Aster Floral Co., 228 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, is showing a fine stock of plants and reports an improvement in its business.

H. E. Froment is now receiving from L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., fine stock of all the standard varieties of roses.

Joseph Vock, in the Cut Flower Exchange, is handling very fine lily of the valley for W. H. Siebrecht's Astoria range.

Drakos & Co., the well known retailers of 2953 Broadway, have just put on a fine new commercial car for delivery.

John J. Coan is receiving very fine stock of the pink chrysanthemum, Unaka.

Visitors: E. Allan Pierce, Waltham, Mass.; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly R. I. A. F. F.

Providence, R. I.

Business during the past week has been fair with funeral work holding up well. Stock is plentiful and of good quality. Asters are about done for but carnations are coming better every day. Roses have shortened in supply and prices are advancing.

Eugene Appleton is to stage the flower displays at the fair at Crescent park this week. He reports outside work keeps him very busy.

A. M. Cassidy will open the Strand Flower Shop October 14. H. A. T.

Dayton, O.

The Dayton Florists' and Gardeners' Association held its regular meeting October 3. The outing committee made its report showing that the event held August 30 was a success, both socially and financially. There not being much business before the association, an early adjournment was taken.

The Advance Floral Co. reports that a fine crop of chrysanthemums in the Abbey avenue greenhouses will be ready for the market in a few days. This firm recently had the decorations for the opening of the new Columbia theater.

The Heiss Co. reports splendid business during September. The new house is rapidly nearing completion and will soon be planted.

W. G. Matthews has been busy with decorative work.

Los Angeles.

Following a two-inch rainfall, market conditions have changed. Outdoor stock suffered to some extent, but the nursery and seed interests have been given a boost. The supply and demand, as far as flowers is concerned, has changed little since last week.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce, October 4, and was a splendid success, the large attendance and the number of displays all of which were of fine quality, exceeding any previous meeting of the organization. The new rose, Los Angeles, exhibited by Howard & Smith, and the chrysanthemums staged by Frank Speakman, were the finest ever shown here. The displays of dahlias and other flowers were also excellent.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, is in the east, and will visit Chicago, New York, and other cities in the interest of their new rose, Los Angeles. They are shipping stock of this rose all over the United States and to many points abroad. This firm reports a wonderful increase in the nursery trade since the recent rains. Cut flower trade is fair.

S. Marcond, who is one of the pioneers in the cut flower trade, having established a stand in 1905, known as the Little Times Flower Stand, is now opening an up-to-date establishment at the same location, 208 West Third street. It will be known as the Times Flower Market. A wholesale as well as retail business will be conducted.

A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., will leave shortly for Chicago, where he will spend two weeks visiting relatives. This has been a busy week with his firm. Chrysanthemums are moving at a lively rate.

The Broadway Florists have doubled the size of their showroom. They have also added to their stock, both in flowers and supplies, and are showing an exceptionally fine line of baskets.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson report good trade in all branches. They are showing very good plants of cineraria.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., has had a wonderfully heavy call for orchids. Funeral work was also a factor.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.,
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Real estate belonging to the Griswold Seed Co. has been advertised for sale October 17.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, October 11, were as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $5.00 per 100 pounds.

LINCOLN, KY.—Joseph H. Kastle, seed expert in charge of the experiment station here, died September 24, after an illness of two weeks.

THERE is a strong demand for all fall bulbs with special interest taken in narcissus, Darwin tulips and several named single early tulips.

THE October meeting of the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League will be held at the Hardware Club,
New York, October 17, at 11 a. m.

THE state department has advised importers that some shipments of flower seed from Denmark to the United States have been seized by the British government.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Invitations have been issued for the wedding of W.
Atlee Burpee, Jr., and Miss Jeannetta
Drysdale, daughter of Mrs. J. Drysdale
Lee, at St. James' church, November 1.

JEFFERSON, IA.—The Ratekin Seed
Co. will move its offices from Shenandoah, Ia., to this city and will conduct its entire mail order business from this point. A. R. Ratekin will be the local manager.

SUBMARINE activity in American waters, it is thought, may interfere with the arrival of European seeds, bulbs and plants, and some seedsmen are considering the revision of prices accordingly.

CHICAGO.—Everett R. Peacock, 4013
Milwaukee avenue, has filed suit for $10,000 against Knud Gundestrup, 4908 Milwaukee avenue, charging slander by insinuations against the former's credit. Both are seedsmen.

VISITED CHICAGO: L. L. Olds, of the
L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis.;
A. Luck, of S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.; S. F. Willard, of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn.; Wm.
Galloway, of the Galloway Bros. Co.,
Waterloo, Ia.

C. S. NOBLE, of Noble Fork, Alberta, has a 1,000-acre field, wheat crop of which, threshed, gave 52 bushels to the acre, highest ever known in any part of the world. Record was formerly held by Whitman county, Washington, with 51 bushels.

ONE of the California seed growers writes October 3 as follows: "We just had 2½ inches of rain which has stopped all crop gathering operations, besides doing some damage to crops not yet harvested. This rain, however, will put the land in fine shape for the early planting of sweet peas."

Restrictions on Grass Seeds for Norway.

The British authorities announce that no further authorizations will be issued for the exportation of grass seeds to Norway. [It is assumed that letters of assurance for such shipments will likewise be withheld for the present.]

French Bulbs.

A correspondent writing from Toulon, France, under date of August 25, has the following with regard to
to French bulbs:

"There are still large quantities of narcissus in the ground but through lack of labor the bulbs can not be lifted. Again, the soil in the mountains is hard as a rock through lack of rain and the implements would be broken during the process of lifting.
It is almost a certainty that next season prices will be much higher than the present, possibly 40 to 50 per cent.
The scarcity of Roman hyacinths will be much greater next year, especially the size 13 centimeter and up. Growers have sold too many of the 10 and 11 centimeter size which should be planted if they expect to have the larger sizes for 1917. It would not be surprising if there were an advance of 30 to 40 per cent on these bulbs for the next season."

Danish Seed Crop.

Hjalmar Hartman & Co., Copenhagen, in their September report on Danish seed crops make comments as follows:

Owing to a short crop last year stocks of which have been disposed of by us we have this season grown an unusual large acreage, not alone on our own farms, but under contract with farmers on Amagar Island. The crop outlook at the present time is satisfactory, but nothing definite can be said until the harvesting is completed this month, as frosts may still be a factor.

Cabbage. (White, red, pointed and Savoy)—The planting has been limited, besides, considerable rain storms in August have somewhat damaged the crop, so that we do not expect more than about 50 per cent of an average crop.

Brussels Sprout—The crop of this was good and is partly harvested.

Carrot—The crop will be late, owing to severe cold and rainy weather. The flowers set very nicely, but the continued rainy and cold weather has hindered the ripening.

Garden Beets—Crop will be very small.

Garden Swedes. (Field Swedes, Field Turnips)—Last fall it was very difficult to induce farmers to grow swedes and turnips, as the prices for wheat, barley and oats ranged very high, and it was less risk to grow grain instead of roots. This has generally resulted in smaller acreages; besides this, the crop was very much damaged by the heavy rain storms prevailing, and about 50 per cent of the seeds were Parsley—Crop insignificant.

Radishes—Several acreages were infected by insects on account of very dry weather during sowing time. There are some very good plots but it depends on the fall weather if the crop will turn out about normal.

Mangolds—At the present time the planting has been very good and we expect to have a very good crop.

Grain Seeds (Cocksfoot)—This crop has been harvested and fairly large quantities are offered in the market.

Free Seeds Worry Recipient.

Representative Hill, of Iowa, sent free seeds to a constituent in a franked envelope, on the corner of which were the usual words, "Penalty for private use $300." A few days later he received a letter which read:

"I don't know what to do about those garden seeds you sent me. I notice it is $300 fine for private use.
I don't want to use them for the public.
I want to plant them in my private garden. I can't afford to pay $300 for the privilege. Won't you see if you can't fix it so I can use them privately?
I am a law-abiding citizen and do not want to commit any crime."—Toledo Blade.

POTATOES continue to make record breaking prices.

Potato Crop in New Brunswick.

The 1915 potato crop in New Brunswick, Canada, was smaller than in two preceding years, having suffered some damage from bugs and the crop this year will be affected by the scarcity of seed noticeable early in the season. The potato crop area is smaller than for some years past.
The price now is from $2 to $2.25 per barrel, according to Edward A. Dow, consul at St. Stephen.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Mushrooms, home grown, 15 to 25 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 10 cents; radishes, $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, 40 to 50 cents per box; tomatoes, six baskets, 50 cents to $1.00; cucumbers, per climax basket, 10 cents to 25 cents.

New York, Oct. 10.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $3.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.50 to $3.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per package, 50 cents to $2.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.50.

Potato Shippers Charged With Conspiracy.

Five members of the Aroostook (Me.) Potato Shippers' Association, who were indicted more than a year ago on a charge of conspiracy to restrain trade in Aroostook county potatoes, were brought to trial before Judge Morton and a jury in the United States district court, at Boston, Mass.,
October 3. They are: Carl C. King,
Caribou, Me., president; John M. Hovey,
Mars Hill, Me., secretary; Clarence A.
Powers, Maple Grove, Me., a member of the listing committee; Edward H.
Doyle, New York, and H. W. Sylvester, Boston. Able lawyers are engaged on both sides, one of those for the defence being Herbert Parker, former attorney-general of Massachusetts.

In opening the case for the government, Leo A. Rogers, special assistant to the attorney-general, stated that the government would endeavor to show that the Aroostook Potato Shippers' Association was an unlawful organization, because of its black-listing methods, its threats to impose fines and penalties in the enforcement of its mandates, and finally, because it contemplated a secondary boycott. A secondary boycott, he explained, meant blacklisting and boycotting persons, simply because they did business with others who had been blacklisted. It was expected at the opening that the trial would last a week or more. The penalty attached, in case of conviction, is imprisonment for a year or a $500 fine, or both. The prosecution is under the Sherman anti-trust law.

A. F. F.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The college opened its doors September 27. Professor A. H. Nehrling reports an enrollment of 30 students in the courses in floriculture for the first term. The new four-term schedule has gone into effect, and under this plan the college will never close its doors.
The department of floriculture and the department of landscape gardening will offer practical courses during the summer months, which has been impossible under the old two-semester system.

L. H. Jones of Milford, Mass., and
C. E. Wildon of Melrose Highlands, Mass., have registered in the graduate school as candidates for the degree of M. Sc. in Floriculture. Both are graduates of the college.

A. S. Thurston has resigned as assistant in the department of floricul-ture and is now at Ames College, Iowa, as head of the department of market gardening and floriculture. C. E. Wil-don has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Professor A. V. Osmun has been appointed to the position of chief of the department of botany recently left vacant by the resignation of Dr.
George E. Stone.

S. W. Hall, of Saxonville, Mass., who graduated from the course in floricul-ture, is now with S. J. Goddard of Framingham, Mass. G. A. Read, a recent graduate of the college, is now manager of the Peckham Floral Company, at Fairhaven, Mass.

Peter Fisher and wife, of Ellis, and
M. A. Patten and wife, of Tewksbury, were recent visitors at the college greenhouses.

The following officers of the florists' and gardeners' club of M. A. C., have been elected: E. Stanley Duffill, Melrose Highlands, president; Walter I.
Cross, Hingham, Mass., vice-president;
John T. Dizer, East Weymouth, Mass., secretary-treasurer. Much interest and enthusiasm is being aroused in the club and the new president prophesies the biggest year in its history.

Plans for the annual flower show have been announced by Professor A.
H. Nehrling. Special prizes and exhibits are being arranged for. The Northampton & Holyoke Gardners' and Florists' Club will again co-operate with the department of floriculture.
Several new features, which will be announced later, are to be incorporated into the show this year. While the attendance last year far exceeded that of any previous show held on the campus, a much larger attendance is looked forward to this year because of the increased interest which is being shown in the work of the department all over the state.

The new perennial garden has attracted much interest during the past summer. Florists and gardeners in this vicinity have paid frequent visits to the garden and as a result many are contemplating the culture of perennials in conjunction with their regular florists' crops. Visitors have come from as far away as Philadelphia to see the garden and to take notes on the plants which are being grown. The garden now contains over 500 species and varieties, and the department is planning to add to this number from year to year. Just now a collection of asters and heleniums is attracting a great deal of attention.

Soil Products Exposition at El Paso, Tex.

The United States department of agriculture will make exhibits at the International soil products exposition at El Paso, Tex., October 14-24, congress having appropriated $20,000 for the purpose. In addition, seven western and southwestern state experiment stations will co-operate with the department. The exhibits will include illustrations of some of the activities in the promotion of agriculture in the subhumid sections of the United States as follows: Alkali and drought resisting plant investigations, models showing the habits of prairie dogs and other rodents injurious to crops and methods of control, sugar beet investigations, crop acclimatization, pictures of various phases of forest work, etc.

The Way Up.

Henry P. Doodson, successful banker, says: "Whatever job I had," he says, "was to me always the very best job in the world and I tried to fill it. I made no elaborate plans. If I had any system it was first to do my own work; second, to teach the fellow below me how to take my place; third, to learn how to fill the position ahead of me.

"Boys and young men should not imagine their work is so unimportant that nobody takes note of how they do it. It does not take long to find out whether a boy is watching how he can best be of help, or merely sits down and waits to be told what to do.
The simple virtues of willingness, readiness, alertness and courtesy will carry a boy farther than mere smartness."

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

GRETNA, LA.—A nursery has been established on Fourth street by B. M. Wichers.

HARTFORD, CONN.—W. W. Hunt & Co. have purchased the business of Charles Turner & Co., 106 Pratt street.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Theodore Rudolph Wirth, eldest son of Park Superintendent Wirth, will enter West Point as a cadet next June.

TUXEDO, N. Y.—The schedule for the annual exhibition of the Tuxedo Horticultural Society, which will be held November 3-5, provides for awards in 98 classes. Copies may be obtained from Thomas Wilson, secretary.

NEWTON, MASS.—Following the death of his father, who succeeded him two years ago, when he resigned to enter business in Worcester, H. W. Ross has again taken the position as superintendent of Newton cemetery.

HEADING a movement to clear all public shade trees and other objects on the public highways of the state of all illegally posted advertisements, the Massachusetts Forestry Association enlisted the co-operation of automobile clubs, women's organizations, boards of trade and similar bodies during "Tear Down" week, October 9-14.

American Association of Park Supts.

A considerable delegation of the members of the American Association of Park Superintendents stopped off at Chicago, October 7, enroute to the annual convention which is in progress at New Orleans, La., this week. The visitors included Theo. Wirth and wife, J. A. Rigway, secretary Board of Park Commissioners, and wife, Frank Staley, Director Bureau Municipal Reserves, Civic and Commerce Association, Minneapolis, Minn.; Fred Nussbaumer, Commissioner Hyland, and Mr. Hausler, city architect, St. Paul, Minn.; Roland W. Coterill and J. W. Thompson, Seattle, Wash.; Conrad B. Wolf, Superintendent of Parks, Hibbing, Minn.; A. A. Beischjold, Chisholm, Minn.; Mr. Rawlings, Vancouver, B. C.; E. V. Goebel, Grand Rapids, Mich.; E. D. Philbrick, Virginia, Minn.

Supt. J. F. Foster of the South park system, Supt. E. A. Kanst of Lincoln park, Supt. A. C. Schrader of Garfield park and a number of other city officials entertained the members of the party during their brief stay by inspecting recent developments in the local park system and bathing beaches, with luncheon at the South Shore Country Club and dinner in the evening at the Lincoln Park refectory. The conventionites left on a late train for St. Louis, where they were scheduled to join the contingent of 30 or more from that city in special cars and continue on their way to the convention. Supt. Kanst, of Lincoln park, and wife left the following day and

H. S. Richards of the South park system and wife joined the eastern members sailing from New York early last week.

An elaborate programme has been prepared for the New Orleans meeting, with papers as follows: "City Planning in Relation to Park Properties," by Prof. James Sturgis Pray; "Playgrounds in Parks from a Designer's Standpoint," by Frederick Law Olmsted. "Trend of the Playground Movement as It Affects Parks," by Lebert Howard Weir; "Efficiency and Accounting in Park Administration," by Frank S. Staley; "The Role of National Parks in the Nation's Life," by R. H. Marshall; "Functions and Evolution of Municipal Parks," by James B. Shea, and "What This Convention Means to Us," by William Allen.

Pruning Shade Trees.

Under the above title, the University of Missouri agricultural experiment station at Columbia has issued Circular No. 81, by H. F. Major. It is well illustrated and treats of the right and the wrong way to prune shade trees as well as giving information regarding tree structure and the six forms into which trees may be divided, such as vase form, round-topped, boxiform, coniform, pyramidal and grotesque. Trees best adapted to shade on lawn and street are given in order of their preference to meet the required characteristics.

Jackson & Perkins Buy Additional Land

An important real estate transaction was the sale of the D. P. Smith farm to the Jackson & Perkins Company, Newark, N. Y. This is one of the finest farms in that vicinity and has been owned in the Smith family since pioneer days. It is located about three miles southwest of the city in the vicinity of another of the Jackson & Perkins Company farms. It will be used in the propagation of roses and nursery stock. The farm consists of 170 acres.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business is showing the usual "picking up" due about this time. September was a dry month, and this, with an unusually early frost, put the finish on most outdoor stock. As a consequence, the California chrysanthemums and Colorado carnations mingle with Chicago roses in filling out the stock cases in the stores. Greenhouse stocks are looking well as a rule, with interest centered on the chrysanthemums and carnations, neither of which are appearing in public very much as yet.

NOTES.

The Wichita fair and exposition is now on in full blast, and is a very successful and interesting exhibition. It takes the place of the old time state fair idea; is all under roof and is planned in a regular exposition manner, and has been uniformly successful from the initial exhibition five years ago. The horticultural, agricultural and industrial displays this year are splendid and come from all over the state. Taken, altogether, its plan and principle might well be considered in communities which have become too "grown up" to enthuse over the old and worn idea of the county fair. Chas. P. Mueller is a director of the exposition, and to say he is busy these days is putting it mildly.

The window display of W. H. Culp & Co., for "fashion show" night, October 5, stood high among the handsomest in the city.

C. A. Rose has rearranged the interior of his store, thus increasing his space and improving its attractiveness.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS

OF AUGUST 24, 1912,

of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, published weekly at Chicago, Ill., for Oct. 1, 1916.

State of Illinois, County of Cook.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Michael Barker, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor and business manager, of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, (and if a daily paper, the circulation, etc.,) of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, American Florist Company, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.
Editor and Business Manager - Michael Barker, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.) Estate of E. Asmus, W. Hoboken, N. J.; M. Barker, 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.; W. Atlee Burpee Estate 485 N. Fifth St., Philadelphia Pa.; John Burton, Willow Grove Ave., Chestnut Hill, Pa.; J. D. Carmody, Evansville, Ind.; W. W. Coles, Maple Hill Rose Farms, Kokomo, Ind.; Robt. Craig, 49th and Market Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.; J. B. Deamud, 1055 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; James Dean, Freeport L. I., N. Y.; Emersa J. Dickey, care of Byron Reed Co., 212 S. 17th St., Omaha Neb.; Wm. Falconer, Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Maggie Harris, 55th St. and Springfield Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Sarah Lonsdale, Lompoc, Calif.; Mrs. Catherine Mathison, Waltham, Mass.; John N. May, Summit, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Isaac D. Sailer, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Estate of Louise Schiller, 2207 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.; H. A. Siebrecht, New Rochelle, N. Y.; W. J. Stewart, 147 Summer St., Boston, Mass.; J. C. Vaughan, 31 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.; Annie G. Whitnall, 4001 Harvard Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.; C. B. Whitnall, 026 Locust St., Milwaukee, Wis.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

There are no bonds, mortgages or other securities outstanding against THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY.

Michael Barker, Sec'y.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 28th day of Sept., 1916.

J. JOS. BERNIER, Notary Public.

Pexto's New Pruning Shear Board.

The success it has had with the two display fixtures brought out in the past year or so, has convinced The Peck, Stow & Wilcox Company, of Cleveland, O., and Southington, Conn., that dealers generally appreciate how much easier it is to sell goods that are shown than goods that are hidden away in a drawer. It is, therefore, adding new display fixtures to those already produced, the latest one being a pruning shear board. The first of the Pexto displays was a pruning shear fixture. It was brought out as something of an experiment to see how the trade would take to the idea. The reception given the pruning shear board led to the offering later of plier, screwdriver, brace, and snip boards.

The new pruning shear fixture is a companion for all the other Pexto boards now on the market. Like them, it is made of metal and finished in four colors, orange, blue, black and white. The color combination is striking and when the board is mounted with tools it cannot fail to attract attention in the window or inside the store. The size is handy, 19x27 inches, and the board is provided with a chain for hanging and an easel back for standing. Thirteen of the 24 styles of Pexto pruning shears are shown and identified by number with a space under each shear for the price. A complete list of retail prices is printed on the back of the board. The Peck, Stow & Wilcox Company states that dealers who cannot get these boards through their jobbers should write direct to the Cleveland office of the company about them.

Folding Canopy For Florists.

A recent innovation which is attracting considerable attention among the trade is a folding floral canopy introduced by Reed & Keller, well-known importers and manufacturers of florists' supplies, New York. The device permits of being compactly folded, making it easy to transport, and when not in use, requires very little storage room. When set up, its extreme height is nine feet, two inches, the spread of the shell being five feet. A larger size admits of a six foot spread.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Special Meeting Held at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October, 11-12, 1916.

Supplementing Report in Last Week's Issue.

The Closing Sessions.

The two day special meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October 11-12, at which the new constitution and by-laws were adopted at the opening session, the text of which, together with President Gude's address and portraits of prominent men identified with the proceedings appeared in our issue of October 14, pages 653-659, proved to be one of more than usual interest, the various discussions calling forth much valuable information in the exchange of viewpoints.

Thursday afternoon, on the invitation of J. C. Vaughan, the visitors made an auto trip through the parks to the South Shore Country Club with luncheon in the evening at the Bismarck Garden, as the guests of the A. L. Randall Co. The automobiles for the trip were contributed by August Poehlmann, Adolph Poehlmann, John Poehlmann, Peter Reinberg, George Reinberg, E. C. Amling, H. N. Bruns, A. Henderson, John Michelson, J. C. Vaughan, Chas. Hunt, Wm. J. Keimel, A. H. Schneider, H. Wehrmann, C. S. Claussen, Ernest C. Amling, H. C. Wendland, Paul E. Weiss, H. B. Kennicott, A. Zech, Geo. Wieland, Paul Klingsporn and John Kruchten. The Poehlmann machines were handsomely decorated with autumn foliage and cut flowers. The La Salle hotel rooms, used by the association during the meeting, were profusely decorated with choice flowers contributed by the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago Flower Growers' Association, C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., and others in the local trade. A few firms had exhibits adjoining the meeting room, namely Knight & Struck Co., New York, heaths and other plants; A. T. DeLa Mare Ptg. & Pub. Co., New York, books, and Hilmer V. Swenson Co., Chicago, advertising novelties.

Those who attended the meeting not in last week's list are as follows: F. D. Bermke, Chicago; Ross Bragg, Rochester, Minn.; George E. Davis, Evans-ton; John F. Carter, Chicago; Chas.

Henry Fox, Philadelphia, Pa.; H. Jenkins, Chicago; John E. Quallich, Chicago; F. B. Travis, Chicago, and Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago.

Publicity Discussed.

Following the adoption of the constitution and by-laws, the question of publicity, both national and local, took first place in the proceedings. George Schulz, of Louisville, Ky., who was called upon by President Gude, stated that the florists in that city were great believers in advertising, both in newspapers and other mediums, and added that the public in general did not know enough about the advantages offered by the F. T. D. and until the public was educated to the proper point the desired results could not be accomplished. He expressed the opinion that in every case the trade mark should be placed on flower boxes and every piece of stationery sent out. Max Schling, of New York, said it was his opinion that to advertise half successfully $12,000 would be a small annual appropriation for such a large body, but that a small advertisement inserted only occasionally would do no good. He did not believe the organization was far enough advanced to go into the matter on the large scale necessary. F. C. Weber, of St. Louis, stated that the trade hardly realize the volume of business that would come from all sections of the country if the general public were reached by direct advertising, but the list of members was large and would require much space to properly present the proposition and the names of the firms prepared to render the service. Mr. Kay of the Kay-Diamond Co., Youngstown, O., reported that his firm spent five per cent of their receipts in advertising and that there was not a man, woman or child in that city who did not know that the company was in business, and, further, that they knew that flowers could be delivered by them by wire or letter in any part of the world.

Western Union Cooperates.

Past-president Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, spoke on the flower delivery service inaugurated by the Western Union Telegraph Co., stating that after investigation he was convinced that the telegraph company had no intention of taking business away from the F. T. D. He called upon a representative of the Western Union present, who stated that the idea which prompted the development of this business was that there were thousands of people away from home who need only be reminded that their dear ones at home would appreciate flowers above all other gifts by reason of the sentiment they convey. He assured the members of the F. T. D. that the Western Union Co. had no interest in the orders except the telegraph tolls and added that with enthusiastic co-operation the idea should prove profitable to both parties. President Gude then stated that the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Washington had been most liberal and helpful to the F. T. D. and that no matter how many orders it handles the business of the florist in general is being extended and some retailer is getting the benefit. The meeting then adjourned until 3 p. m.

Plans for Raising Funds.

At the opening of the afternoon session, Wm. L. Rock, of Kansas City, said, in part:

"In response to a letter sent to members in regard to methods of gaining funds for publicity, specifically asking the opinion of the members as to whether the funds should be secured by pro rata assessment or by voluntary subscription, and for an expression of ideas as to the most effective methods of disbursing such fund, I find the opinions on these questions are quite divergent. A summary of the answers shows that 34 members suggest that the funds be raised by pro rata assessment; six suggest voluntary subscriptions; four suggest the use of dues; two suggest that each member do his own advertising; 21 have undecided views; and two would be satisfied with either pro rata assessment or voluntary subscription. Thus, it might be supposed that the consensus of opinion is fully in accord with pro rata assessment of all members to raise funds for publicity advertising. As to the disbursement of the funds, the suggestion of the majority seems to be the use of some weekly magazines with a wide circulation, such as the Saturday Evening Post and other similar publications.

"In many of the answers to my letter there were some very good suggestions, but no offer of real actual work. What we need, and need very much, is several wide-awake committees—men who will not begrudge the association a very small portion of their time; who will be willing to work, or canvas a certain district, line up new members, and instruct florists how to advertise Florist Telegraph Delivery service to the public. Plenty of publicity has been done from florist to florist—it's the public that needs Florist Telegraph Delivery service pounded at them; not spasmodically, but regularly, and with system. We should grasp the opportunities and let them know of this flower service. There are hundreds of ways of placing it before them. The cost would be nominal as compared with results. We are all pretty well satisfied that the business is here and can be had, but why do we not get it? Unfortunately several very good opportunities of advertising our service in the past three years have been unintentionally overlooked—at the national flower shows held at Boston, New York and Philadelphia, and the big flower show held at Cleveland last fall. All of these opportunities were lost through lack of local interest. At Philadelphia there were several pledges offered toward a fund that would be used to secure new members and work up interest in small towns."

Advertising Expert's Views.

In commenting on the foregoing President Gude said: "Mr. Rock's ideas are good and advice and suggestions are desired from all sources, particularly as to the matter of publicity, which is a big job. He called first on H. Jenkins, of the Gundlach Advertising Agency, Chicago, who said that people's ideas were very vague on this subject of transmitting flowers to their friends at a distance. The F. T. D. organization will have to do a great deal of work before a knowledge and understanding of what it can do takes full possession of the public mind. They must be educated to appreciate this service, and to do this a broad national campaign must be instituted to which each local florist can hook up his business. The public must be made familiar with your trade-mark or slogan not only through window displays, circulars, and other means of publicity, but through a well organized national campaign. In order to do this team work is called for, and this must permeate all your efforts. The greater your numerical strength the more members you have of the right kind, the stronger each individual unit will be.

Mr. Bertermann inquired how much of a fund the speaker thought would be necessary to begin such work? Mr. Jenkins replied that it would not be possible to answer except approximately unless a regular schedule was laid out. But if his advice were asked he would say that unless the association was prepared to go into the matter in an adequate way, it would be better not to go into it at all, because more money is lost in advertising by just putting your toe in and not going in all the way than in almost any other venture that is taken up experimentally. His idea would be to make an overhead assessment and let each member agree to spend during the course of a year and a half $200.00 each on this national advertising. He believed if all would so contribute, the returns to all would more than repay the investment.

Secretary Pochelon proposed that the convention hear from another good advertising man from whom they had heard on previous occasions, H. V. Swenson, of the Hilmer V. Swenson Company, Chicago, from whom a written communication was received and read by Mr. Rock, outlining a plan for a campaign to increase membership in the F. T. D., suggesting proper publicity material, mediums to use, and methods of distribution of publicity matters, also giving a proposed form of card to go with every flowergram delivery.

Local Cooperative Publicity.

Mr. Knoble, of Cleveland, O., thought that the florist's business in general is altogether too little advertised. The Cleveland local association collects from its members annually about $2,500, which is put into a fund for general publicity, and from which they get excellent results. He said he believed that every other city in the country of any importance at all should maintain a fund of that character and give the business greater publicity. The grower depends upon the retailer, as the commission man does also, and since both of these branches get more or less of the money that is handled through the retailer, they ought to proportionately pay their share of the advertising expense.

At the request of President Gude a communication was read from the Campbell-Ewald Company, giving detailed figures for a proposed advertising plan for the F. T. D., proposing among other things, improving the present trade-mark by the addition of a more expressive idea, such as "United Flower Shops of America," the phrase, "World Wide Flower Service" to appear beneath the trade-mark; the trade-mark to be immediately copyrighted and appear in some uniform size on the window of each member, on all correspondence, boxes, tags, and in all advertising, further stating that there is need for a folder setting forth the out of town service idea of the association. Max Schling, of New York, outlined the general advertising policy of his concern, and urged that florists advertise locally until they get strong enough to carry on an adequate national advertising campaign.

Indirect Advertising.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson was requested to address the convention on her publicity work in Cleveland, and her remarks were highly appreciated. Mrs. Wilson came to the convention with a number of voluminous scrapbooks full of press clippings, illustrating her work in indirect advertising along what she terms suggestive and psychological lines. Her remarks, which were somewhat lengthy, were listened to with close attention as she described in detail how she had taken advantage of every private and public occasion into which the use of flowers could be woven, and in concluding she expressed her willingness to deliver addresses before local florists' clubs without charge other than for necessary traveling expenses.

GEO. WIENHOEBER'S STORE OPENING, CHICAGO, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

Mr. Valentine remarked that one thing should not be forgotten, that while the florists in Cleveland had largely helped their business by their local publicity work, yet in the proportion that they had helped themselves they were also helping all other members in stimulating general F. T. D. business.

In announcing adjournment for the afternoon, President Gude remarked that never before had so many retailers been brought together at one time. There were still interesting topics remaining for discussion which would be taken up at the following day.

Collections.

At the Thursday morning session a discussion was entered into regarding the difficulties that occasionally arise in the collection of bills, and Secretary Pochelon explained the method of procedure adopted in such cases. The discussion was principally with reference to the operation of Section 7, Article XI of the constitution, and the practical working out of same. The discussion was quite generally participated in on the general subject of collections, by Messrs. Pochelon, Wienhoeber, Brown, Borden, Valentine, Pillsbury, Knoble, Wilson, Gorly, and others. One of the interesting conclusions drawn from the discussion was that retail florists as a rule are not sufficiently strict in demanding payment of accounts, or in keeping track of their costs and other details.

The discussion further developed that some method by which F. T. D. members might exchange information where the same party was making purchases of a number of different florists and paying none of them, would be a good thing. In some cities it was found that the local florists were in the habit of freely exchanging information as to the habits of mutual customers with regard to prompt payment of bills.

Detroit 1917 Meeting Place.

President Gude now announced that the next subject for discussion would be the next meeting place. The constitution provides that the annual meeting shall be held in conjunction with the S. A. F., the next convention of which will be in New York. Mr. Pochelon recommended that the 1917 meeting be held in October in some centrally located town, and he invited the convention to come to Detroit next year. Mr. Breitmeyer also thought this was a timely suggestion, and said he believed that Detroit would be a good place to meet, being central and accessible. He moved that the F. T. D. hold its annual meeting next year in Detroit in October, on dates to be fixed by the board of directors. The motion was seconded by Wm. L. Rock, and further nominations were invited by the chair. None offering, Mr. Breitmeyer's motion was put to a vote and carried, to hold the next annual meeting in Detroit, Michigan, in October, 1917. President Gude inquired of Mr. Breitmeyer whether his understanding was that this would do away with the New York meeting, to which Mr. Breitmeyer replied that was a matter which the by-laws would take care of. Mr. Gorly inquired whether a meeting of the F. T. D. would be held in New York on the Monday previous to the S. A. F. meeting? The chair replied that the directors will decide this matter. Mr. Gorly replied, "We will all be there, anyhow, and we may as well have a day of it."

At this time subscriptions were received from those present to the publicity fund, with the result that the fund was doubled, all subscriptions being purely voluntary. All previous subscriptions were read off, and when the additional amounts now subscribed were counted up, it was found that there was $1,600 or $1,800 total in the fund.

Trade Papers Complimented.

Secretary Pochelon paid his respects to the American trade papers, declaring that they were the best in the world, and he hoped that the members would make more use of them for publicity purposes by sending photographs of special orders. The trade papers are glad to make use of such. Mr. Valentine also expressed his appreciation of the work of the trade papers, which he said we could not get along without, any more than the trade papers can get along without us. They are progressive and wide-awake and are offering us good suggestions in every one of their issues. We are all agreed on the value of their work. President Gude endorsed what had been said in this regard, and added that it should be a game of give as well as take, that we owe the trade papers in return for their help, subscriptions and advertisements; in other words, do all we can for them and they will do all they can for us.

Closing Hospitalities.

August Lange, of Chicago, was given the floor to announce the courtesies of the afternoon, the automobile trip through the parks, to the South Shore country club, where the party would be met by J. C. Vaughan, Mr. Lange and others; from there to Douglas park, Garfield park, Jackson park, Lincoln park, winding up with a fine buffet luncheon at the Bismarck Garden, one of the prettiest gardens in Chicago, on which $200,000 has been spent this year.

In announcing the final adjournment of the convention at this time President Gude remarked that the privilege had never before fallen to his lot of presiding over a more dignified body of business men than at this convention. Never had the retailers been received in a more hospitable way and in a manner that did not interfere with the active conduct of the business that had brought them together. Mr. Gude then extended his personal thanks to all present for the consideration shown to himself and said he hoped to meet all those here and many more at the rousing meeting that will be held in Detroit in October, 1917.

BOONVILLE, MO.—E. C. Stammerjohn is placing the contract for another house, 28x100 feet, and says everything points to a big year here.

Winter Window Boxes and Vases.

With the approach of chilly nights, the flowers in the porch and window boxes take on a bedraggled appearance, indicating that the beginning of the end of their usefulness is at hand. As a decorative feature, they will soon begin to look very unsightly, and when this stage is reached, they are best removed and emptied, so that the boxes may, if necessary, be repaired and made ready for the winter campaign.

The matter of the receptacle is worthy of a little study. The old pine box, painted or bark covered, is fast giving way to something more ornamental and at the same time better able to stand the ravages of time. Very elegant designs made of terra cotta, which must be burnt in a kiln, others of vitrified clay, which are subjected to extreme heat, and those of cement or a fine grade of concrete, are all said to be almost indestructible. They are often made to conform to the architecture of the dwelling and are in consequence sometimes quite expensive. If well cared for, however, in the course of a few years, they will be found the least expensive, as there will be nothing to charge off and no renewals. The main objection is their weight; when an artificial or additional support is necessary, it should be made of a strength that is capable of twice the weight to be placed on it. Where a long space is to be fitted, boxes should be made in sections, such as two of three feet each for a six-foot sill. When placed together, they present the appearance of one box.

The well-made wooden box still has many champions; it should be well painted, both inside and out, even if it is to be bark covered; when well soaked with oil, much is added to its life. Cedar or hemlock bark is best, and should be put on as it grows on the tree, straight up and down, and held, top and bottom, with strips of hickory sapling with the bark on. Such as is used at times to bind packing boxes. A birch bark covering is unique and rather unusual, but satisfactory.

Such boxes will last several years and are quite ornamental. The demand for these winter house adornments has increased rapidly in the past few years, the large hotels, apartment houses and clubs setting the pace with the best the florist has to offer in the line. Well planned and filled boxes and vases are a great addition to any dwelling, and as an advertising feature to a hotel, are worth much more than the cost.

Probably three-fourths of all such boxes are filled with boxwood and ivy. Boxwood is most satisfactory—its dark, glossy, green foliage holds its color well until the warm days of early March. It can be had in all sizes and shapes and its foliage is so dense that it will stand clipping so that any shape or design can be worked out to fit into the surroundings. One of the popular designs is high at each end, curving to low in the center, from which rises a globe or umbrella shaped plant. Some boxes are filled straight across, with tall, slender juniper-like specimens at either end. Others are straight and hedge like, with the ends about half as high again as those in the center. Again, we see each alternate plant four to six inches below the others and all trimmed to a square at the top. Some stand like square green posts with an inch or two of space between; they are squared after being planted. Ivies are tabooed in some cases, the surface of the ground being covered with green clump moss. Other treatments use ivies generously; they present a beautiful and luxurious finish until the very severe weather.

There are many very beautiful evergreens that are especially adapted to this work. Retinispora obtusa is a soft, feathery, green that remains green the season through, it does not take on a coat of brown, such as is the case with the arborvitae. The golden retinispora is one of the best, as it holds its beautiful gilt edge the entire winter. Dwarf pines and firs make a beautiful box, as do young plants of Norway spruce. Hemlocks are also feathery and graceful, pretty by themselves, and work in well with their other winter companions. Beautiful effects are possible with combinations of all kinds of evergreens, there being quite a variety of color and form of foliage in this large family. As a rule they are cheaper than the box-wood and for large boxes and vases, where something generous is desired at a medium price, the nursery stock is generally preferred.

WINTER WINDOW BOX OF EVERGREENS.

By the Geo. Wittbold Co., Chicago

Lawn vases, and those on terraces or at landings of garden steps, can be nicely filled with single specimens of Norway, or green Colorado spruce that refuse to color. Well trimmed retinisporea are also beautiful, but they are apt to catch the snow and split open.

ways to the front with its window boxes, roof garden, boxes between the windows, and the pavement bed below the show windows. It is truly a house of flowers. The boxes are filled with the choicest decorative foliage plants with a heavy fringe of ivy, which hangs down from three to four feet. The border below the windows on Fifth avenue, planted in a bed cut into the pavement, is frequently changed; at the time of our visit it side were single specimens in vases, a large collection, from which orders were taken for plants.

Alexander McConnell's windows were filled with foliage plants and suspended ivy baskets. Vases of Golden Glow and gladioli were conspicuous. Outside, beneath the windows, were boxes filled with variegated aucubas. These are a very useful decorative plant for house, store fronts and vestibules.

At G. E. M. Stumpp's, 751 Fifth avenue, the large front window was a flower picture with its choice foliage and flowering plants. Spirea Japonica, white and pink, and fuchsias full of flowers, were rather out of season plants. A vase of handsome chrysanthemums, celosias and Japanese lilies were also features. The side windows were filled with choice plants.

H. H. Burns, 509 Madison avenue, had a stunning vase of Gladiolus America and blue perennial asters. Baskets of wild flowers, together with palms and ferns, rounded up the window.

At Max Schling's, 22 West 59th street, orchids were prominently shown; cattleyas and fine sprays of oncidiums filled one side, while a tall vase of choice pink chrysanthemums, with prettily filled small baskets to the front were on the other. It was a very artistic display.

J. H. Small & Sons' magnificent store, 505 Madison avenue, had its immense windows filled with beautiful crotons, ferns, celosias and other foliage and flowering plants. Sunflowers were a feature; also baskets of marigolds. Around the beautiful fountain court, in the center of the store, were suspended baskets of Teddy Jr. ferns, which were perfect feathery globes of green. This is an ideal cut flower store on a large scale.

Cibotiums—stocky, beautiful plants—were the feature of Chas. A. Dard's window at 44th and Madison avenue. A large piece of the Elkshorn fern was a suspended centerpiece, with a basket of panicum and tradescantia on either side. Tall vases of white and yellow chrysanthemums, with baskets of McCullough dahlias, larkspurs and vases of orchids, rounded out this beautiful display. WINTER WINDOW BOX OF EVERGREENS.

By the Geo. Wittbold Co., Chicago.

Evergreens in a birch bark covered box are striking, if Euonymus radicans variegata is used instead of ivy; its delicate white foliage and vines stand the winter well and are very conspicuous.

While there is an increasing demand for this class of work, it should be fostered and encouraged by liberal displays of suitable plants and boxes filled and empty. Every available space about the store or greenhouse front should be decorated so as to better demonstrate their usefulness.

A campaign for the sale of winter evergreens for decorative purposes would, if properly conducted, produce great results; there are many beautiful city and suburban residences whose owners have never taken up this matter or used such decoration, but who could, if approached and shown the advantages, no doubt be brought to see the benefit to be derived from this adornment of the home.

Long city blocks are often seen with but one or two decorated house fronts. An offer to furnish suitably filled boxes for the windows, with the price, will often bring a favorable answer and a new customer. One or two in a block will induce others to follow suit and thus the good work will go on.

New York Store Windows.

To the visitor, the store windows of the florists of this great metropolis are always interesting. As a rule, great attention is given these decorative effects; only the best is good enough, and the artistic arrangement of plants and flowers, together with whatever accessories in many colored velvets, handsome vases, etc., that are found useful in producing novel color effects, are seen in all the large establishments.

Charles Thorley's House of Flowers at 46th street and Fifth avenue is always filled with dwarf red celosias, ferns, aspidistras and other foliage plants. The 46th street side was lined with bay trees and smaller pyramid box. On each side of the vestibuled doorway, iron pots, suspended from tripods, were filled with rubbers and other foliage. The windows were elaborate with vases of chrysanthemums and the choicest foliage stock—pandanuses, crotons and palms, while from the top were suspended large baskets of Scottii ferns. The whole effect was stunning and bound to arrest the attention of the thousands that pass by every hour.

Thomas F. Galvin's beautiful store, across Fifth avenue from Thorley's, featured dahlias, having both large windows filled with them. In the Fifth avenue window they were arranged in rose floats, and on the 46th street palms, ferns, etc., was also attractive. A. T. Bunyard's windows and that of Alfred Kottmiller, near by, were also quite up to their regular high standard.

At Wadley & Smythe's, on Fifth avenue, near 42nd street, one is always sure to see displayed the best on the market. Autumn leaves were a feature here; they made a carpet for the floor of the window. A tall vase of Golden Glow and tritomas was a feature. A number of oval rose floats were filled with orange and yellow dahlias and the blue Ageratum celestinum. The ceiling of this window is a high, white, latticed arch, studded with frosted electric globes.

The Trepel stores at 89th and 96th and Broadway, are models of their class. Cut flowers and plants are displayed in quantities on the pavement in front and in the windows, all with price cards. The conservatory on the roof at the 89th street establishment is a very light, airy structure—a splendid place to show plants. There is room for establishments of this kind, handling plants and cut flowers in quantity, much as they are sold in department stores in every large town and city in the land. K.

Glazing With Old Glass.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

We are repairing some greenhouses and taking out all of the glass and putting it back again. The glass was laid butted and not puttied. In putting it back, we are lapping it and putting it. We write to inquire if there is any objection to turning the concave side up and the convex side down, which is the reverse of the way we had it laid when it was butted. Will the sunrays be affected by the concave side being down and will it have any effect on the plants in the greenhouses? J. Tennessee.

The curve in greenhouse glass is so slight that it makes very little difference whether the panes are laid with the curves or concave side uppermost. In the case of houses in which the sash bars have drip grooves, if the glass has the convex side on top the condensed moisture on the underside of the panes will tend to work to the side and find its way to the plate in the grooves rather than along the middle of the panes. This, however, we consider of minor importance.

There is more danger of injury from sun-burning when the convex side of the glass is uppermost than when it is underneath. Whichever way the glass is laid we should take pains to see that it is all laid the same way, and to secure close joints it should be carefully graded into three classes. First, those which are practically flat; second, those slightly curved; and third, panes considerably curved.

In laying the two classes of curved panes, in case there is any difference in the curvature of the ends of a given pane, we would plan to place the end which has the most curve at the bottom. This will make a tighter joint than when a concave pane which is slightly curved is laid over one considerably curved. L. R. T.

BRISTOL, TENN.—The Bristol Floral Co. has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $25,000.

AUSTIN, TEX.—Fred Hall, in charge of the growing department of the Hyde Park Floral Co., who was seriously injured in an automobile accident some time ago, has recovered sufficiently to return to his duties.

WITH THE GROWERS

Rose Growers of Montgomery County.

Responding to the kind invitation of George and Arthur Burton, worthy sons and successors of the veteran and famous rose grower, John Burton, who has retired early from the game, but who spent a pleasant half hour with the visitors, a number of interested members of the craft were recently piloted through a portion of Montgomery county, Pa., a very interesting rose growing section in the suburbs of Philadelphia.

In addition to hosts, George and Alfred Burton, the guests were Alba and Edward Harvey, of Brandywine Summit, Pa.; S. S. Pennock, Arthur Nissen, David E. Colflesh, W. H. Engler, Wm. Colflesh and Robert Kift.

Preparedness is a new word recently coined by well meaning patriotic orators to wake the people up to a sense of their danger in case of war. It can also be applied to the peaceful war of the roses against the dollars of the metropolis, for which the various commanders of the "army of roses" have their hosts in such a state of preparedness as has never been seen before.

The Burton establishments at Wyndmoor are ready and eager for the fray as soon as the enemy shows any disposition to advance. George Burton, who has taken over his father's large establishment, in addition to his own extensive greenhouses on Green street, has for his specialty, American Beauty,—in the two places are 55,000 plants of this variety. He has had great success with American Beauty. The plants are renewed each season, set out in shallow wooden benches, raised about a foot from the ground floor of the houses, they being more easily controlled during the cold dark months in the raised than in ground beds. By disbudding, temperature, and careful culture, it is aimed to control their blooming season and have them in quantity when most in demand. Thora, a sport of My Maryland, which occurred here, much like Ophelia in color, has been found to be a good money maker. One house has never rested, having been cut winter and summer for three years, and still produces freely. A range of four small houses has also been planted to it this season. Cypripedium insigne is also a specialty; the largest block in the country is seen here, two houses of them, all splendid plants in perfect health. Mr. Burton believes in good fertilizers and uses principally manure, blood and dissolved bone, which latter acts quickly. Lime dust, applied with a bellows, he finds good for black spot. He believes in shallow soil on tables; four inches for American Beauty, while on some tables in which Hadley had shown very fine results, the soil in the spring had gotten down to two inches.

At Arthur Burton's place, adjoining, an interesting house was filled with cattleyas, thousands of plants in fine, healthy foliage. American Beauty is also a feature here, there being something over 20,000 plants under cultivation. Mrs. Russell is another specialty. A large block flowering abundantly was looking extremely well; these had been kept going without cutting back for two years. Mr. Burton said the Russell blooms can be held on the plants for several days and still be in good condition for cutting. He uses sulphur on the pipes and a copper solution sprayed on for black spot. An old time house planted with Russell, with the side facing the south, having almost a perpendicular pitch, was said to give very good results in winter, it being the sunniest house on the place.

Two automobiles took the party on a delightful 15-mile spin through a beautiful country to Southampton, where Stephen Mortensen, with his rose forces, was also found in an advanced state of readiness for the season to open. In all the houses of his 65,000 feet of glass, there was seen the result of his constant and intelligent care. His specialty is the hybrid tea class. Ophelia was seen in splendid growth, as was also Hadley. His roses are all in ground beds with cement borders. Cinders are used immediately below the soil to insure good drainage for the plants. A pink sport of White Killarney, a fine shade, was much thought of; a block of two thousand plants looked fine. A recently erected Lord & Burnham house, 62x300 feet, planted with Brilliant and White Killarney, heated by the Lord & Burnham vacuum system, gave great results last season. All the roses here were in splendid condition. His assortment and quantity comprises 6,500 Ophelia, 6,000 Killarney Brilliant, 5,500 Sunburst, 4,500 Hadley, 4,000 White Killarney and 2,000 New Pink Killarney.

The large house of Malcolm Franklin, at Yardley, the next visited, was found all ready for the fray with a good variety in the following sorts: Sunburst, Shawyer, Hadley, Ward, Killarney Brilliant and White and Pink Killarney, about 21,000 plants in all. There is but one house here, a huge Lord & Burnham structure 72x600 feet. After five years of service, it had just been given its first inside renewal of white paint—some job in a house of this size. Mr. Franklin's venture here is a side line, he being engaged in other business, but he is much pleased with his success. The stock looked well with every indication of a good yield for the season. John Jamison, a very practical and experienced rose grower, is the superintendent.

The Joseph Heacock Co.'s houses at Roelefs were familiar to most of the visitors. They were found in their usual good condition. Such health and vigor in every plant is seldom seen in such a large collection. Robert Jamison is the guiding spirit here, and evidences of his prowess are seen in a board full of blue ribbons won in competition in national shows against the best growers of the country. Over 50,000 plants are under cultivation. Hadley was the star last year, turning in the best card. This season the quantity of this variety is increased, there being 6,000 in a house 55x225 feet. Others in quantity here are White Killarney, 5,000; Pink Killarney, 15,000; Killarney Brilliant, 18,000; Ophelia, 4,000; Ward, 3,500; Candadian Queen, a new miniature sort, 2,000; Hillingdon, 2,500, and Richmond, 2,000. All the roses are in ground beds with cement borders. The heating facilities and water supply are of the very best, with extra boilers and apparatus in case of accident. The large dairy with its herd of over 200 cows and heifers, is a feature; the manure from the stables is carefully conserved and pumped in solution to the rose beds. This dairy is a great asset to the business, as one large institution contracts to take 1,200 quarts of milk a day the season through, in addition to which milk dealers are also supplied.

Doylestown, and a good dinner at the Fountain hotel, was reached after a 15-mile run. John A. Andre's rose houses, directly opposite the entrance to W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s Fordbook farms, was next visited; it was the same story here, everything in readiness for the first movement of the dollar army. An interesting feature was a house of Pink Killarney, which had been in 10 years, and last season was the best paying house on the place. Varieties and quantities here are: 5,000 Sunburst, 7,000 White Killarney, 5,000 Killarney Brilliant, 5,000 Pink Killarney and 5,000 of the new Prima Donna. All the stock looked very fine, the problem seeming to be whether to let them come now or pinch for something better later. A large submerged cement tank had been constructed at the bottom of the place to catch rain water from the houses; its capacity is 86,000 gallons and one heavy rain is sufficient to fill it.

The Chalfonte Carnation Co., with its three houses of King construction, each 35x250 feet, united with a vestibule house, 15x105 feet, was splendidly promising. The carnations had gotten away nicely since the moving, with a good growth and early crop of buds. The varieties are Mrs. Ward, Enchantress, both white and pink; Matchless, Beacon and the new red, Nebraska. The plants were housed August 7-14. Samuel F. Lilley and Wm. Hellbert are proprietors of this establishment.

The mammoth houses of the Florex Gardens next hove in sight after a 10-mile run. This is always an interesting place to visit—things are done here on such a large scale. Since the accident of several years ago, on account of the heavy snow, the houses are now braced to withstand almost any strain; even hurricane clouds, as they occasionally loom up, give them no concern. A great variety is grown here. All the beds in the various stages of rest and growth appeared to be under perfect control. A large block of 15,000 plants of September Morn, the light pink sport of Prima Donna, looked very promising. There are 25,000 Prima Donna, of which variety they sold so many young plants the past season, they were obliged to use small plants for themselves, but these are getting away nicely and promise a good crop later. Quantities and varieties grown are: White Killarney, Mrs. Ward Richmond Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Maryland Elgar, Mme. Harriot and shroyer, some 140,000 plants in all.

Several large houses of carnations were filled with very stocky plants of splendid quality. Snapdragon is also a feature, the pink, and the new orange shade filling two houses. A large new barn of vitrified hollow tile, with slate roof, together with two large silos of the same material, was an exceedingly ornamental and useful feature. This is sanitary in every respect. Cement floors with troughs or gutters to carry off the refuse, automatic watering troughs, which are worked by the cattle themselves, cork floors on which to stand, abundant ventilation and indirect electric lighting, all of which essentials make this a model structure. A milk house adjoining has cooler and refrigerating apparatus and cold storage for the product, all conveniently arranged so as to protect the purity of the milk. The large silos hold 275 tons of ensilage, food for the herd of some 90 cows. The manure from these is the main fertilizer for the rose houses. A new tractor for all kinds of farm work had just been delivered. Taking it all in all, this is one of the most interesting places in the country.

A twilight glimpse was had of the John Welsh Young establishment at Rosslyn. Most of the stock here was at rest, after good summer crops. A large house of My Maryland, a specialty here, was still cutting and Lady Alice Stanley was also seen in strong growth. A table of freesias was a feature; the plants were about one foot high, coming through two layers of chicken wire netting, which, at present, is flat on the surface of the ground, but as the plants grow and thicken up, it will be raised and furnish the support required to keep the stems straight and hold up the flowers,—an excellent idea. A 10-minute ride from here brought the party back to Wyndmoor, where Mrs. Geo. Burton had provided a feast, to which all did ample justice.

It was noted that in all the extensive places visited, but one had erected a new house the past season, and this but a comparatively small addition to the Jos. Heacock Co.'s at Roelefs. All minds appeared to be bent on getting their crops in at a time when they were fairly sure of a demand and remunerative returns. This feature is as much of a science as perhaps the most difficult problem the grower has to contend with. Houses at the various places were seen in all stages of growth, from bare canes to full crops. Some were even being dried off, preparatory to the cutting-back stage; these had been cut from all summer, while other beds were resting. In some cases fine American Beauty buds on long stems were being ruthlessly pinched off, a new crop of heavier flowers being expected in about six weeks.

That the successful grower has to be a live, wide awake man, is seen from the remarks dropped here and there, about drainage, soil conditions, heat, watering, drying off, resting, mildew, black spot, spider and the different temperatures required for this or that variety, all of which are factors in the attempt to get the 100 per cent results, which hope springs eternally in the heart of every "knight of the rose."

EXAMINING COMMITTEES.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Otis street, Boston, Mass.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 West Twenty-sixth street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wietor (chairman), George Asmus, Thomas W. Head. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee, must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 14, 21, 28 and November 4, 11, 18 and 25.

Florists' Hall Association.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING.

Pursuant to call, a meeting of the board of directors of the Florists' Hall Association of America was held at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, Friday, October 13, 1916. President E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., occupied the chair, the following officers and directors being in attendance: J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.; Anders Rassmussen, New Albany, Ind.; Charles P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.; J. A. Valentine, Denver, Colo.; Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo.; C. L. Washburne, Chicago, and Fred Burki, Gibsonia, Pa. The only directors absent were J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., who was enroute to the National Flower Show Committee meeting at St. Louis, and Hon. Joseph Heacock, who is in the midst of a congressional campaign and was therefore unable to attend. Mr. Hess, however, conferred with the directors the evening previous to the meeting, so that they had the benefit of his valued counsel.

The officers for the past year were re-elected, viz.: E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., vice-president; Hon. Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa., treasurer; John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., secretary.

On motion, it was ordered that the twenty-ninth assessment to be levied March 1, 1917, shall be at the rate of 20 cents per 100 square feet on single strength, and eight cents per 100 square feet on double strength glass, the increase over the last assessment being occasioned by the exceedingly heavy hail losses during the past season which necessitated the paying out of an unusual amount.

The directors approved the bond purchases made by the bond committee.

The charter of the association, which will have been in practical and successful operation for 30 years, June 1, 1917, will be renewed under an enabling act of the New Jersey legislature this winter, and the secretary was authorized to take the necessary steps to that end.

The secretary was also authorized to file the list of members of the association with the secretary of the S. A. F. for the purpose of securing a representative upon the S. A. F. board to issue credentials to President E. G. Hill as the representative on said board of the Florists' Hall Association.

The board of directors held two sessions which were of some length, and a large part of the day was given over to the discussion of the necessary changes in the by-laws, which, it is believed, will render the conduct of the affairs of the association still more efficient and conducive to increase in membership, which has been progressing steadily all the time. In order to put the proposed amendments into the best legal phraseology and concise form so as to clearly express their intent and meaning, J. A. Valentine of Denver, Colo., whose ability in this regard is well known, was appointed a committee of one to draft the amendments in accordance with the trend of the discussion and report back to the chairman of the board of directors for eventual submission to the vote of the stockholders. These new amendments are expected to establish a fiscal year under which arrangement the annual meetings of the association will be held at the call of the president after such fiscal year is concluded, at such time and place as he may designate. The members of the board are to be congratulated upon having successfully accomplished work that will be to the benefit of the association. JOHN G. ESLER, Sec'y.

National Flower Show Committee.

ST. LOUIS MEETING, OCTOBER 13-14, 1916.

Present: George Asmus, chairman; John Young, secretary; J. J. Hess, treasurer; Chas. H. Totty, W. P. Craig, A. Farenwald and S. A. F. president-elect, R. C. Kerr, Patrick Welch and Thomas Roland were unable to be present. The committee were welcomed at the Jefferson hotel by F. H. Meinhardt, J. J. Windler, H. C. Irish, Jules Bourdet, D. S. Geddis, H. J. Fillmore, A. Miller and Chas. F. Hatfield, secretary and general manager of the St. Louis convention bureau. The committee were the guests of F. H. Meinhardt for breakfast at the Jefferson hotel, after which all the exhibition halls suitable for a flower show were visited and inspected.

At noon the committee went into executive session at the Planters hotel. The final reports of the last National Flower Show held in Philadelphia were received and all business in connection with that exhibition was cleared up. By unanimous vote it was decided to hold the next National Flower Show in the spring of 1918 in St. Louis. By similar vote it was decided to lease the building known as the Coliseum for this exhibition and the dates to be April 6-15.

The secretary of the committee was authorized to prepare the necessary floor plans showing available spaces for the trade exhibits and if possible to arrange for a scale of prices which would include the cost of booth and signs. This would assist in having one general scheme of arrangement and decoration in the trade section.

Chas. H. Totty, Thomas Roland and A. Farenwald were appointed a committee to prepare a preliminary schedule.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the American Rose Society, the American Carnation Society and the American Sweet Pea Society, inviting them to co-operate with the National Flower Show by holding their annual meetings and exhibitions at the same time. The secretary was also authorized to raise immediately the usual guarantee fund of $10,000. Mr. Asmus tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee giving his reasons why some other member of the committee should be elected to that office. After the matter was thoroughly discussed Mr. Asmus was induced to reconsider his decision and upon motion of Mr. Totty his resignation was not accepted.

At 6:30 p. m. the committee were the guests of the officials of the convention bureau at dinner in the Planters hotel. Among those present were: Goodman King, president of the St. Louis convention bureau; and Chas. F. Hatfield, secretary of the same bureau, representatives of the daily press, Jules Bourdet, president of the St. Louis Florists' Club, J. J. Windler, secretary, and A. H. Hummert, vice-president of the same club. Also W. W. Ohlweiler, J. J. Beneke, F. A. Windler, V. J. Gorley, Chas. Beyer, Fred H. Meinhardt and David S. Geddis. Interesting addresses on the coming National Flower Show were made by Chairman George Asmus, Chas. H. Totty, David S. Geddis, Chas. F. Hatfield and Goodman King.

In the evening the committee attended a special meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club in the Coliseum building. All of the officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club were present and in addition there was an attendance of 51 members representing the different florists interests of the city. The early part of the meeting was presided over by George Asmus, who made a rousing address calling attention emphatically to the necessary work attached to a National Flower Show. Each member of the committee in turn was called upon to enlighten the members present as to what was required to make the coming show the success it certainly will be. They also gave a detailed report of the work in connection with previous National Flower Shows and it was made very clear that this coming exhibition would have the benefit of this experience.

The meeting was then turned over to President Jules Bourdet of the local club who called upon each member present for a few remarks and all were enthusiastic and promised to assist in every way possible to make the next National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis more successful than any that have been held before.

Frank Robinson, secretary and manager of the Coliseum, who without question is one of the best show managers in this country, gave an interesting talk promising his support and assistance wherever possible. The National Flower Show will also have the hearty support of the Business Men's League.

The National Flower Show committeemen were very favorably impressed with their reception and were delighted to see the great interest and enthusiasm shown by the florists interested in St. Louis and later on when the local committee are appointed the work of the exhibition will go on with a rush, and there is no question but what the Fifth National Flower Show will compare favorably with any preceding flower shows.

After the meeting in the Coliseum the committee were entertained at supper by President Bourdet and other members of the florists club.

On Saturday morning another executive session of the committee was held and many important necessary details were arranged for.

A visit was also made the Missouri botanical garden and the officials of this institution are also very enthusiastic and pleased at the National Flower Show coming to St. Louis and will give their support both financially and otherwise.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Madison, Ind., Dahlia Society Display.

The Madison (Ind.) Dahlia Society in its display in that city October 12, surpassed all previous efforts and the exhibit was a revelation to many who saw and admired the flowers, nearly 100 hundred varieties being shown in a wide range of colors, and sizes. Among those whose displays were prominent were W. O. Wykoff, vice-president for the middle west of the American Dahlia Society; William H. Matthews, Burr Callis, Hurley Ashby and Mrs. Anna Brushfield.

ITHACA, N. Y.—The business of the Bool Floral Co. has been purchased by Ralph J. Roskelly.

KIRKWOOD, MO.—The property of Adolph Ahner has been sold under a mortgage. His creditors, it is reported, are likely to get the worst of it.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Ward-Belmont College greenhouses have discontinued commercial business aside from sales to students of the institution.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Hillcrest School farm, following a decision to retire from the cut-flower and nursery business, has offered the entire stock for sale.

HOUSTON, TEX.—The R. C. Kerr Floral Co. has increased the size of its show windows and installed an elevator for use between the store and roof conservatory.

Dahlia Show at San Francisco.

The dahlia show at the Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, Calif., October 3-4, under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, the California State Floral Society and the California Dahlia Society was a splendid success. The blooms were beautiful, the exhibits were well staged, the ventilation and lighting effects were excellent and a large crowd was in attendance, the exhibition being complimentary. Being conducted on purely professional lines, no selling was allowed and the distinction between professional and amateur growers was strictly drawn. An innovation was that there were two sets of judges, one for each of the above divisions, all exhibits being arranged in classes, and the awards were quickly made. The unprecedented early rains in this section did not seem to injure the texture of the flowers.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a magnificent showing at the entrance to the hall, the huge vases and baskets containing dahlias of every class being most effectively arranged. This easily captured the bronze medal offered by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, for the best exhibit.

T. C. Burns, of San Rafael, had a table of immense bunches of blooms of high quality and the Pacific Grove Dahlia Co. arranged a fine display of good flowers, but which were not in competition. The Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms had an excellent display, as usual, a feature which attracted much attention being a splendid basket of the collarette variety. The amateurs also made good displays, Pierson Durhow, of San Francisco, being awarded the prize donated by H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., for the best amateur exhibit, with H. Raby, a 1915 English cactus. Other good exhibits in the amateur class were staged by Miss Aimee Hodgins, J. G. Wintjin, L. T. Pockmann and M. Harkiss.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. arranged wonderful arches of bougainvillea which were generally admired.

The exhibition was ably managed by H. Plath, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Scannavino, both of whom were prominently identified with the flower shows at the Panama-Pacific exposition last year.

The awards were as follows:

Best collection of dahlias in seven classes—Show, peony, decorative, cactus, pompon, single and collarette. 10 varieties in each class, one bloom each—Mrs. Seale, San Francisco, 1st; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, San Mateo, 2nd.

Best collection in seven classes, five varieties, one bloom each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 1st; Mrs. Seale, 2nd.

Best 24 cactus dahlias, 12 varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 1st; Mrs. Seale, 2nd.

Best 24 decorative dahlias, 12 varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 1st; Mrs. Seale, 2nd.

Best 24 peony dahlias, 12 varieties—Mrs. Seale, 1st; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 2nd.

Best 24 show dahlias, 12 varieties—Mrs. Seale, 1st; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 2nd.

Best 36 pompon dahlias, 12 varieties, three blooms each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 1st; Mrs. Seale, 2nd.

Best 36 collarette dahlias, 12 varieties, three blooms each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, 1st; Mrs. Seale, 2nd.

Best 36 single dahlias, 12 varieties, three blooms each—Mrs. Seale, 1st; Ruth Gleadeel, San Francisco, 2nd.

Best seedling dahlias never before exhibited in competition; flowers shown with stem—Richard Lohrman, San Rafael, Calif., with red decorative, Doazin x Mina Burtle; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms with peony dahlia, Plett Sing. Awarded certificates of merit.

Best vase of one variety, 50 blooms—F. C. Burns, San Rafael, 1st; Pelicano, Rossi & Co., San Francisco, 2nd.

Best vase of one variety, 25 blooms—Pelicano, Rossi & Co.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The annual dahlia show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, held October 5, was a decided success from both a financial and a horticultural standpoint. The exhibits were of the very finest quality and competition was very keen. The Henry Dreer silver cup, which was offered for the best collection of dahlias, 25 varieties, brought forth a splendid display, there being four exhibits, each with a top notch collection. The judges finally awarded the prize to W. R. Coe (Joseph Robinson, Gr.), with W. J. Mathieson (James Kirby, Gr.), second. The E. M. Townsend silver cup for the best collection of outdoor roses was won by Harold Pratt (F. O. Johnson, Gr.), John Pratt (John W. Everett, Gr.), second. The North Shore Garden Club silver basket for the best collection of outdoor flowers was awarded to George Pratt (John F. Johnstone, Gr.), C. F. Cartledge, (William Noonan, Gr.), second. The F. S. Smither's cup for the best 10 varieties of gladioli, six spikes of each, was captured by Mrs. Darlington (P. W. Popp, Gr.).

The class for the best collection of 12 kinds of vegetables was one of the most attractive features of the show. There were three exhibitors, and so evenly matched were their exhibits that in the final scoring only eight points separated the winner from the second man, while the third entry was only twenty points behind. Percy Chubb (Robert Jones, Gr.), was the winner in this class, with W. R. Coe, second. Mr. Chubb also won in the class for nine kinds of vegetables.

The Hitchings & Co. silver cup, offered for the best collection of outdoor fruit, was won by Herbert Pratt (Henry Gaut, Gr.), with a superb collection of a great many varieties.

The competition for the best decorated dinner table was another feature which proved to be very attractive to the patrons of the show. There were seven entries and the honors were carried off by Joseph Adler, Henry Gaut and Herman Miller in the order named.

Mills & Co., of Mamaroneck, staged a large collection of dahlias for exhibition, for which they were awarded a certificate of merit. Mrs. C. F. Cartledge received the same award for three vases of seedling dahlias, while Mrs. Darlington received a certificate of culture for a vase of gladioli. Following is a list of some of the other main classes, with their winners:

Best six vases of peony flowered dahlias—Mrs. Darlington, 1st; C. D. Smithers, 2nd; P. Cherbonnet.

Twelve cactus dahlias, 12 varieties—Harold Pratt, 1st; W. R. Coe, 2nd.

Twelve decorative dahlies, 12 varieties—Mrs. Darlington, 1st.

Eighteen single dahlias—Mrs. Darlington, 1st; G. D. Barron (James Linane, Grd.), 2nd.

Twelve cactus dahlias, one variety—G. D. Barron, 1st.

Twelve dahlias, any type—Herbert Pratt, 1st; G. D. Barron, 2nd.

Six peony flowered dahlias, one variety—C. D. Smithers, 1st; G. D. Barron, 2nd.

Six cactus, six peony, six decorative and six pompon dahlias—G. D. Barron.

Six cactus dahlias, six varieties—Herbert Pratt, 1st; W. E. Kimball (James McCarthy, Grd.), 2nd.

Six cactus, one variety—Herbert Pratt, 1st.

Vase of decorative dahlias—C. F. Cartledge, 1st; J. R. Maxwell (Samuel Trepas, Grd.), 2nd.

Six show dahlias—F. C. Cartledge. Three vases of outdoor roses, three varieties—Mrs. William Beard (Herman Miller, Grd.), 1st; W. Kimball, 2nd.

Twelve vases of dahlias, distinct varieties—W. E. Kimball, 1st; Percy Chubb, 2nd.

Collection of six kinds of vegetables—F. Petrona, 1st; C. F. Cartledge, 2nd.

The judges of the exhibition were Thomas Aitcheson, William Robertson and James Stuart, and many flattering comments were made on the thorough and capable manner in which they performed their duty.

PROSPEROUS SEASON FORECASTED.

There is a decided feeling of optimism among the trade here, and all indications point to an early and prosperous season. Violets are arriving in good supply and chrysanthemums are showing marked improvement although the rains have hurt the outdoor varieties. Roses are coming quite good, some especially nice September Morn being seen. Dahlias are still in all their glory. It seems to the writer that this flower has greater possibilities than possibly any other, there being such a variety of color and form, and it seems to be so especially well adapted to the Pacific coast.

NOTES.

O. C. Saakes' force is working overtime these days, there being a heavy call for funeral work. A pall of yellow chrysanthemums seen here was very well done. Fine dahlias, chrysanthemums and September Morn roses were also leading items in the stock on display.

The Redondo Floral Co. is having a great run on Cecile Brunner. Stock of extra fine quality is to be seen here this season and the demand is heavy. A fine stock of chrysanthemums is also featured. Funeral work has been very good.

Andrew Bruce, who it was reported was to leave, will, owing to the death of his wife, remain with Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson. This firm arranged a large store decoration last week. Garlands of pompons were features.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., are sending out many boxes of cut flowers, the business of late having equalled that of the regular season.

H. R. Richards, who has been in charge of the nurseries of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. for some time, has resigned his position. G. H. H.

Indiana-Kentucky Florists' Joint Meeting.

About 40 members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana joined the members of the Kentucky Society of Florists at Anders Rasmussen's establishment, New Albany, Ind., October 17, the meeting, which was of a joint nature, mention of which was made in these columns last week, proving very interesting and profitable. A paper by A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., entitled, "False Economy," was very well received and was followed by a discussion led by H. G. Walker. The business session, which followed a buffet luncheon, occupied about two hours, and upon its adjournment the party were taken for an auto tour of points of interest in New Albany and Louisville. In the latter city a banquet was tendered the visitors at the Henry Watterson hotel, Anders Rasmussen acting as toastmaster. Among the speakers were President Kleinstark of the Kentucky society; President W. J. Vesey, Jr., of the Indiana association; Wm. Mann, of Kentucky; W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; August R. Baumer, Louisville, and Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind. The second day of the meeting was devoted to pleasure and sight seeing.

Buffalo, N. Y.

MANY WEDDINGS NOW AND LATER.

The past week has been a forerunner of what is on the calendar for the early fall—namely many weddings, six the past week having kept the trade busy. One was quite elaborate, both the house and church being handsomely decorated with chrysanthemums, dahlias, palms and ferns. Stock shows a marked improvement in quality daily, especially in roses.

NOTES.

It is rumored that W. J. Palmer & Son are to remove their Genesee street branch to the corner of Delaware and Chippewa streets in the new uptown shopping district. The location is very desirable and might be called the "Fifth avenue" of this city.

Carnations are scarce as yet but some very good ones are seen at both Pickelman's and Galley Bros. on Genesee street.

William Legg, the efficient secretary of the florists' club, is ill at his home but we hope for a speedy recovery.

Visitors: William Graham and daughter, Chicago; Robert Shock, Philadelphia, Pa.; M. Dykes, New York.

OBITUARY.

August Carl Oelschig.

August Carl Oelschig, pioneer florist of Savannah, Ga., and founder of the well-known florist firm of A. C. Oelschig & Son of that city, died October 12 at the age of 68 years.

Mr. Oelschig was born in Saxony, Germany, and came to this country in 1874, first locating at Woodside, L. I., where he mastered the florist trade. In 1881 he went to Savannah where he engaged in the business of growing rose plants for the northern trade. He met with great success and finally embarked in the retail trade, adding in later years the culture of ficus on a large scale, which he continued with the aid of his sons until his death, the range consisting of 24 houses. He was also the introducer of wild smilax, palm leaves, southern palms and pine tops for decorative purposes.

Mr. Oelschig was identified with the S. A. F. for a number of years, having served as vice-president for the state of Georgia at various times. He was also a member of several fraternal organizations and was looked upon as one of the leading factors in the civic and benevolent activities of the city. His genial disposition and smile for all he met, endeared him to all. His funeral was largely attended and numerous floral tributes marked his last resting place.

John Vosburg.

John Vosburg, well known in the New York seed trade district, and for the past 12 years a clerk for J. M. Thorburn & Co., died October 10, aged 33 years. His death was the result of an accident, he having fallen down the stairs in the Terminal station, Newark, N. J., on the previous evening, and sustained a fracture of the skull. He was well thought of by his employers and associates, and his sudden death has cast a gloom over the district.

Charles Wrege.

Charles Wrege, a well known florist of Jersey City, N. J., and a resident of that city during the greater part of his life, died September 30, following a stroke of apoplexy. The death of his wife occurred less than a month before he passed away, and his demise was attributed to grief. He was born in Mecklenburg, Germany. His remains were laid to rest October 3.

Cuba's Potash Bubble.

Herald Havana cable says Cuba's potash bubble from which a number of persons expected to make millions, appears to be pricked. Chemists found that the millions of tons of rock supposed to abound with potash contained either no potash at all, or less than one per cent. Armour & Co., who had an option on a tract, for which Havana capitalists paid $4,000 for registering the potash rights, are so convinced of possibilities of finding potash that arrangements have been made to continue explorations.

Where Last Heard From.

Phil Scott, Chicago, October 1, enroute to Buffalo, N. Y.

L. Coatsworth, Chicago, December 30, 1915.

Two inches of snow fell at Calumet, Mich., October 16.

THANKSGIVING will fall on November 30 this year, according to President Wilson's proclamation.

WHEN in need of stock or supplies of any kind in a hurry it will be a great advantage to have a copy of the latest edition of our Trade Directory at hand for names and addresses. The price for the latest (1916) edition is $3 per copy, postpaid.

State Insecticide and Fungicide Laws.

In connection with the enforcement of the Insecticide Act of 1910, the insecticide and fungicide board of the United States department of agriculture, having received many inquiries from correspondents relative to the requirements of the various state laws regarding the manufacture and sale of insecticides and fungicides, has issued "Service and Regulatory Announcements No. 13" under date of September 16, 1916. This will be supplemented from time to time to include changes which may be necessary and any amended or new laws. Free distribution will be limited to firms and establishments especially interested. Others desiring copies may obtain them from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at five cents each.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met in New York October 9, and considerable business was gone over. A report was made in regard to the Washington test garden, that it had been materially improved since early spring, and that Dr. Van Fleet was to assume general direction of the same. Application and correspondence was gone over relative to a rose test garden at Bellingham, Wash.; also at College Station, Tex.

Application was received from Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Calif., for the registration of a new seedling under the name of "California", described as follows:

Rose California, in color, is burnt orange, shaded with golden yellow at the base of the petals. The flowers full, buds long and pointed, fairly fragrant, a strong vigorous grower in this climate, and practically mildew proof.

This rose has been investigated and the registration ordered.

The place of the next annual meeting was a topic of consideration and the suggestion has taken form to hold a rose society meeting in Philadelphia next spring. There were certain offers of a guarantee fund made by five individuals towards making it a success, and the matter by resolution was referred to President Pennock to make preliminary inquiry relative to the rose exhibit in Philadelphia in 1917 at the annual meeting.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the American Rose Society at the coming chrysanthemum show to be held in Philadelphia, November 8, when as many members of the American Rose Society as can, it is hoped, will attend.

The fund for rose disease investigation by Prof. Louis Massey of Cornell University has been responded to so far by 28 members of the American Rose Society.

TRADE VERY SATISFACTORY.

Business has been very good during the past week considering the quantity of flowers shipped to the market. Roses have been plentiful, but they have been selling very well. The average stock sells at from one to eight cents, while Russell, Hadley and long stemmed Ophelia have been scarce and selling for high prices. Carnations are scarce, there being only a very few growers getting long stems and large blooms as yet. The average carnations coming in are short stemmed and fail to meet with the necessary standard of good quality, but they are in good demand and have been selling at from two cents to four cents on the very fancy kinds. Pink and white are the best selling colors. The chrysanthemum crop is a little late this year, Smith's Advance, Golden Glow and Unaka being about the only varieties in the market. The best price of the average grade of flowers is $1.50 per dozen, although some extra fine blooms bring more in some cases. Formosum lilies are in short crop and move readily. Lily of the valley also finds a good market. Some of the earlier flowering kinds of snapdragon are seen in the market and the demand is very good. Yellow marguerites are scarce and sell well at $1 to $3 per 100 according to size. Pot plants are not plentiful, chrysanthemums being about the only thing obtainable besides ferns. All told the market is very satisfactory, both to wholesaler and retailer, as business on both ends seems to be brisk.

NOTES.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has passed a resolution that hereafter there will be no complimentary tickets given, as it has been rather an abused privilege for the past few years. They have issued what is termed trade tickets which may be bought in blocks of 25 at $20 per 100. The coming chrysanthemum show has a schedule which should bring out one of the best shows ever held in the hall for its kind. The committee on schedules have endeavored to interest the commercial growers in particular this year and have accordingly prepared a list of prizes that would be to the advantage of the grower to look up. The schedule may be obtained by writing the secretary.

Wm. Morris, of Wellesley, changed his entire stock of roses last year, cleaning up the beds and stocking up with new varieties. His roses, which are now being cut, show the results of the labor spent on them as they are the best he ever shipped to Boston. His Russell, Ophelia and Killarney Brilliant are specially fine.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, is shipping a large crop of Smith's Advance and Golden Glow chrysanthemums to the market now. He also has a heavy crop of roses which are very good quality. His Richmond are extra fine.

Robert McGovern, of Natick, is cutting a fine lot of Golden Glow chrysanthemums. He has altogether 50,000 plants, which he expects to market this week.

Patrick Welch is receiving consignments of very fine American Beauties and orchids. He also has a large stock of especially fine chrysanthemums.

A. Segraber, of the Budlong Rose Co., is the happy father of an eight and a half pound boy born October 6.

E. T. Ridlon, buyer for F. E. Palmer, was married October 18 and is spending his honeymoon in New York.

Wm. Maloy, salesman for J. A. Budlong, Boston branch, is very sick at his home in Natick.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL AND SALES GOOD.

With stock plentiful and business good the retail stores have nothing to complain of. Chrysanthemums are in good supply and of good quality for this time of the year, and orchids and lily of the valley are arriving in more generous quantities and prices are more reasonable. Violets are seen, both single and double. Carnations are plentiful, considering the season. Local grown gardenias of good quality are seen. Funeral work has been brisk during the past week and appears to have been quite evenly divided among the various stores.

NOTES.

Mrs. J. P. Martin of New York has leased the J. R. Freeman greenhouses on Georgia avenue. S. Simmons, for 18 years gardener on the Leiter estate, is in charge.

Theo. Diederick of Angiers Heights is supplying the local market with very fine single violets, snapdragons, calendulas and chrysanthemums.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is showing some very fine chrysanthemums. Their American Beauty display is about the best in the city.

The Washington Florist Co. had its window decorated this week with orchid plants and Japanese vases. It attracted much attention.

George Lavalley is sending in the first Spencers seen here this season.

Visitors: S. Bayersdorfer, C. Meehan and A. Heatherton, all of Philadelphia; W. McKissick, Baltimore, Md.; W. Rehder, Wilmington, N. C.; J. B. Bowen, Wilson, N. C.; W. Pfletcher, Zanesville, O. G. C. D.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

It is the unanimous opinion of all the retailers that business has seldom been better than at present. Every store seems to be the same. In some instances the hardest matter seems to be to get sufficient stock to fill the demand. This is especially true of chrysanthemums. The continued dark and rainy weather has held the stock back, which together with the unusually heavy shipping demand, has caused a very sharp advance in the prices. Clara Wells has leaped into great favor this season as a yellow and some grand stock is arriving, but not nearly enough for requirements. All things considered the chrysanthemum growers are having one of the best years in their history. Good roses, especially Russell, are in heavy demand with the supply short. The same is true of American Beauty and all other varieties. Carnations, too, are not in over supply and everything of good quality is rapidly absorbed. It is expected that they will advance sharply in prices soon. Violets are getting more plentiful daily, and with ideal growing conditions the quality is rapidly improving. Large quantities of these find their way out of this market through the shipping outlet. Orchids and gardenias are very scarce and hard to get. Lily of the valley, too, is on the scarce list. The weather conditions have been very poor for dahlias and other outdoor stock, but it is expected that the former will hang on for several weeks or until heavy frosts arrive. Some greenhouse grown snapdragon are to be had and good stock moves well. The trade in pot plants is about the only item that moves slowly. There are plenty of splendid cyclamens, begonias and other flowering plants. Some good pot chrysanthemums are to be had also. Greens of all kinds, with the exception of smilax, are in good supply.

NOTES.

John Charles Olmstead, senior member of the firm of Olmstead Bros., Brookline, Mass., spent several days here last week, perfecting plans for the construction of parks and streets in the new garden home center of St. Francis wood. This property is the creation of the firm and has been worked out in charm and development to a far greater extent that had been expected by Mr. Olmstead, who was last here three years ago, when ground was broken for the first improvement work on the tract. He is accompanied by James Frederick Dawson, son of the late Jackson Dawson, and E. C. Whiting, landscape engineers in the employ of his firm, who will remain here until the contract work, now under way, will be completed. Many acres of parks are included which will require thousands of trees and shrubs.

The board of trustees of Leland Stanford University have set aside a large sum of money to be used for the establishment and equipping of the Stanford Arboretum. Owing to lack of funds this project has not had the attention it was originally intended to have. Now that ample means are at its disposal it is planned to make this arboretum one of the finest in the country. Prof. Sargent of the Arnold Arboretum has visited the site and has expressed the opinion that it has all the possibilities of being made into an ideal spot.

Owing to the unprecedented shipping of cut flowers out of this city to eastern points, Wells Fargo & Co. have found it necessary to increase their refrigerator express car service. Instead of having refrigerator cars leave this city twice a week, they announce that hereafter cars will leave here every Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights direct to New York. This service is greatly appreciated by the wholesalers and it will tend to further increase the shipping to a very material advance.

The final meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society before its fall show was held October 11. Final arrangements for the exhibition were completed. There were a large number of exhibits shown during the evening by the members. Chrysanthemums, particularly the newer varieties, were much in evidence and were of splendid growth, some magnificent Marigold calling for special attention. Every indication points to a record breaking attendance.

John Carbone, the orchid grower of Berkeley, reports excellent trade. He has added more than 100 cases of orchids to his stock this season, all of which is in splendid condition. He reports the sale of a large number of hybrids to the Fleishacker collection at Menlo Park. His plants are recovering from the recent injury due to gas fumes from a neighboring factory. He promises to be a large exhibitor at the Menlo Park Show.

Henry Goertzheim of the Redwood City Nursery, is bringing in his usual fine cut of chrysanthemums. Two houses of Ongowa were especially fine. He is having one house planted to pot lilies for Easter forcing. We also noted a grand lot of Maud Jeffries chrysanthemums. All of the cut from this range is sold in this city.

Despite the inclement weather there was a good attendance at the monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, October 7. The exhibits were varied and of the usual excellence. Professor Stevens of the University of California, gave a stereopticon lecture which was greatly enjoyed by all the members.

Henry Avensino reports himself well pleased by the business being done at his new store on Geary street. The store is of very attractive appearance and nothing but high class stock is handled. Sam Matraia has been added to the staff of assistants.

There was a very creditable display made in the floral section of the Fresno district fair. Nearly all the prominent florists and growers had stock on display, particularly those of the central part of the state.

Dan MacRorie and Donald McLaren have returned from a visit to the southern part of the state. Mr. MacRorie leaves this week for a trip throughout the northern part of the state.

Heine Cooper of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., returned from a vacation at Sacramento last week.

M. H. Ebel of Sacramento was in town during the week.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee has moved her wholesale shipping department down town to the flower market district on St. Anne street. Mrs. Darbee has had this move in contemplation for some time. The store is fitted in the most modern manner as regards equipment. She is now in a better position than ever to care for her rapidly growing business. The retail store on Hyde street will be maintained as heretofore.

Fred Jaeger has disposed of his interest in the retail store of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. on Powell street. Walter Hoffinghoff, for years connected with the firm, has acquired Jaeger's interests. Mr. Hoffinghoff is well known to the trade along the coast. He is also secretary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

Much interest is being manifested in the dahlia show, which will open October 3. A great number of entries have been received by Manager Plath and it is expected that the show will surpass the one held last month. Full particulars of the winners will be given next week.

Nels Peterson of the Peninsula Nursery is sending in some of those fine carnations for which he is noted. The stock is as usual in splendid shape, the new houses especially showing up in excellent condition.

C. Kooyman is now receiving some good American Beauties from his own greenhouses. He reports a very good business in Dutch bulbs and supplies. G. N.

Hagerstown, Md.

The floral department of the Hagerstown interstate fair, held October 10-13, was of a much higher order than most county and state fairs. The premium list for plants and floral work amounted to over $600. The prizes for specimen plants were very liberal; also those for cutflowers and most of the made-up design work, except the large pieces which might have been offered more incentive. The quality of the plants and cutflowers and their artistic arrangement was of a high order, quite good enough for entry in the flower shows of the large cities. The principal exhibitors were Henry A. Bester & Son, Wm. Bester, and Henry Holsafel, Jr., who made entries in all the classes of plants and cut-flower work. The Flower Shop, C. L. Brewer, proprietor, also exhibited in the plant section. There were three prizes for all classes, which, when the awards were made, were found to be pretty evenly distributed. Most of the stock, both of plants and flowers, was grown in Hagerstown, all the firms except the Flower Shop, having extensive ranges of glass. Henry A. Bester & Son have a retail shop under the Hamilton hotel, while the newly opened store of The Flower Shop, in the square, is very well located. The other two firms handle all their business at their greenhouses. K.

STOCK IS IN BETTER SUPPLY.

Business is very good and stock of all kinds is scarce and at times during the past week some of the dealers found it impossible to fill all their late orders in full. American Beauty roses are reaching the market in splendid condition and in good supply but clean up quickly at satisfactory prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in brisk demand and command high figures but are very scarce. There has been a good call for roses in general all last week, particularly Hoosier Beauty, Milady, Hadley, Richmond, Sunburst, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Killarney and White Killarney. Carnations are reaching the market in larger quantities but are in such good demand that there is never any surplus. Chrysanthemums are also more plentiful but seem to clean up at good prices almost as quickly as they reach the stores. Pompoms are offered but not in any great quantities. Lily of the valley is moving freely and some exceptionally fine stock in this line is obtainable. Lilies are still on the short side but orchids appear to be more plentiful. Daisies, mignonette, snapdragons, single and double violets and candytuft are among the offerings but in limited quantities. Gladioli, asters, dahlias, cosmos and other outdoor flowers are still included in the shipments but are gradually being dropped off the price lists. Sweet peas and gardenias are to be had in small lots if the buyer places his orders in advance or is on hand when the shipments are unpacked. The majority of the growers are looking forward to a tight market from now on until after the holidays, and it appears as if this might be true, for there is no sign of a break and the rose growers will be starting to top for Christmas just about the time that the chrysanthemum and carnation will begin to reach the market more heavily. Green goods of all kinds are in large supply including boxwood and southern wild smilax.

NOTES.

Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., John Young, New York, Wm. P. Craig, Philadelphia, George Asmus and John Michelsen, visited the Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association greenhouses at Morgan Park one day last week and it is needless to add that W. N. Rudd and C. W. Johnson gave them a royal welcome. The stock in the greenhouses is in excellent shape, especially the chrysanthemums, which are just coming in splendid crop.

A. L. Randall is on deck again at the A. L. Randall Co.'s store after spending the summer at his farm in Michigan. A. M. Anderson of the supply department, made a business trip to New York this week. Frank McCabe returned from a western business trip in time to take in the special meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association held at the Hotel LaSalle, October 11-12.

Bassett & Washburn cut their first pompons this week, which is exactly three weeks later than last year. C. L. Washburn spent a good part of his time last week in showing the out-of-town visitors through their new greenhouses at Greggs Station, where all the stock is in apple pie order, particularly the roses and chrysanthemums.

J. G. Darling, of C. A. Dahl Co., Atlanta, Ga., is visiting relatives at Hinsdale. He says that Ed. Siebrecht, who was formerly employed in this city, joined the ranks of the benedicts shortly after he entered the employ of the Dahl concern early last summer.

Peter Reinberg is in splendid crop with White Killarney roses and chrysanthemums. Carnations are also more plentiful at this house this week, but Manager Reichling has plenty of orders for all that are cut.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fine supply of roses of all kinds, including American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are selling like hot cakes. They are cutting quite heavily in chrysanthemums and the receipts of carnations are steadily increasing. Visitors to the Poehlmann range are surprised to find that only two houses of red carnations are being grown this season, but all the other favorite commercial varieties in white and pink easily make up the difference, particularly Matchless, which is being grown more heavily than ever.

Fritz Bahr, of Highland Park, was master of ceremonies when the new road facing the property of Ernst Wienhoeber, E. F. Winterson and his own was officially opened Thursday, October 12. A. F. Borden and wife, of Los Angeles, Calif., were present at the celebration, which was a red letter day in Highland Park. Mr. Bahr was slightly handicapped by a fractured ankle and several torn ligaments, but filled the bill to a queen's taste even though it was necessary to bring him to the scene in an automobile.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, who attended the meeting of the Florists' Hall Association here, October 14, used his spare time in boosting the fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association to be held at the Coliseum, Bloomington, November 9-10. Mr. Ammann says that the coming exhibition is going to be the best ever and extends everyone a cordial invitation to attend and make a display and help make it the success that it deserves to be.

A. H. Schneider received first prize for the best decorated automobile in the Oak Park Business Men's carnival, held last week, which is not at all surprising when one knows that Herbert Stone did the job. Fred Wolfgram, proprietor of the Warrington Flower Shop, was awarded second prize for the best decorated store window.

A large number of the visitors to the special meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, held at the Hotel LaSalle last week, visited Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouses at Morton Grove during their visit here, where they were royally entertained by August and Adolph Poehlmann.

Miss Marion Garland, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Garland, of Des Plaines, and Otto Strobach, of the George Wittbold Co., were married Thursday morning, H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., is here on a business visit. He is spending most of his time at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s wholesale store and Pyfer & Olsem's greenhouses at Wilmette.

De Forest W. Ludwig, of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and wife passed through here this week on their way to Los Angeles, Calif., where they will spend the winter.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are showing a good supply of snapdragons, which they report are in excellent demand. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance in large numbers here.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., who attended the Florists' Telegraph Delivery meeting last week, remained a few days with the local trade exploiting florists' publicity.

George Wienhoeber had an opening at his enlarged store this week, which attracted considerable attention among the trade as well as the public.

Wm. J. Smyth, well known Michigan avenue florist, will celebrate the fifty-third anniversary of his birthday, October 20.

R. J. Coulterjohn is employed at Schiller's West Madison street store where George Asmus so ably presides.

R. W. Peterson, with J. A. Peterson, Westwood, Cincinnati, O., is calling on the trade here this week.

Percy Jones is enjoying a splendid shipping as well as local trade and is showing a splendid line of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums. President Van Gelder and Manager Pollworth are enthusiastic over the outlook for the fall trade, which points to a record breaker. This firm is handling a bigger supply than ever of green goods, including boxwood and wild smilax.

At Wietor Bros.' store the receipts of chrysanthemums are daily increasing and the shipments this week include fancy Golden Queen, Oconto and Marigold. Chrysolora will be ready to cut in a few days and so will their first batch of pompons. N. J. Wietor still stands by his statement that Alice is the best light pink carnation in commerce today.

Sinner Bros. have their stock looking fine in their greenhouses this fall, particularly the roses, which attract much favorable attention. John Sinner is thinking seriously of devoting more of his time to the greenhouses and is in the market for a good wholesale storeman to take his place while he is away.

George Weiland and Paul Klingsporn, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, were busy as bees last week at the special meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, renewing old acquaintances and forming new ones. They had a car at the disposal of the visitors during their stay here.

Frank Stuppy, of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., placed an order with the A. L. Randall Co. while he was in the city last week for 1,000

Zech & Mann's chrysanthemum supply has increased considerably the past week, according to Allie Zech, who adds that the varieties Early Snow and McNiece have made their appearance in large numbers.

H. J. Peterson reports trade as good at his retail establishment at Chicago Heights and the only complaint he has to make in regard to the past season's business was the scarcity of stock.

M. C. Gunterberg received her first shipment of New York violets Friday, October 13. She is handling a fine supply of chrysanthemums in white, pink and yellow.

Samuel Seligman and Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., have started out again in quest of new orders. A. Miller expects to leave on another trip this week.

Meyer & Dramm, of Elmhurst, are cutting a fine grade of Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty roses. They consign all their stock to the E. C. Amling Co.

The team representing the trade in the North Chicago Bowling League lost three straight games Thursday evening, October 12.

Mrs. Hannah Thielmann has sold her store at 408 West Division street, to L. Hoeckner, who took possession October 16.

Hoerber Bros. are in good crop with chrysanthemums and have a splendid supply to offer in the early varieties.

J. A. Budlong is filling a large number of orders for carnations this week in addition to the regular demand for roses and other stock. Manager Schupp predicts a firm market until after the holidays at least. He figures that the rose growers will begin to top their plants for Christmas just about the time that the receipts of roses and chrysanthemums will be at their heaviest.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are experiencing a brisk demand for American Beauty roses and orchids which they are handling in quantity right along. Their receipts of chrysanthemums are much heavier and consist of practically all the early leading varieties.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are busy filling orders for straw flowers, of which they have a large supply and are finding a ready demand. This stock is sold by the bunch the same as carnations and at times brings as high as 35 to 50 cents.

Cincinnati.

GOOD SUPPLY IN ALL LINES.

Stock of all kinds is plentiful and the market is easy. All prices are very reasonable. A killing frost that will take away all outdoor stock is needed to give the market a firm tone. Roses are very plentiful and are generally of high quality. Carnations are selling very well and usually clean up each day. The receipts are not as heavy as they might be. Chrysanthemums are coming in strong. Easter lilies are in good supply. Both orchids and lily of the valley are excellent, but have only a fair market. Dahlias and cosmos are in a heavy supply, but as a whole, meet with a poor market because of the low prices.

NOTES.

Simon & Friche, of Silvertown, Ohio, have been shipping some choice early chrysanthemums to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

Henry Sheppard was in Chicago last week attending the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

C. E. Critchell has been having an excellent lot of early chrysanthemums that have sold well.

Wm. Taylor sent some fine large pink chrysanthemums to L. H. Kyrk's last week.

Visitors: Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Fred W. Ritter, Dayton; R. G. MacLellan, Chicago; M. A. Legander, representing A. L. Randall, Chicago; A. G. Guthman, Atlanta, Ga., and Julius Dilloff, New York.

St. Louis, Mo.

MARKET CONDITIONS EXCELLENT.

The city is enjoying a degree of prosperity never before experienced, consequently there is a great demand for cut stock. Social affairs, weddings and funerals have kept the retailers quite busy. The warm October weather has brought an abundance of flowers in to the market and some are of very good quality. The regular stock of carnations have started to come in and the quality becomes better every day. The best of them are selling from $3 to $4 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and quality is very fine, but they still are high in price and are cleaning up at $3 and $4 per dozen. All varieties of roses, with American Beauties as leaders, are plentiful, and the demand for same is great. Lily of the valley are scarce. Same can be said of longiflorum and Harrisii lilies. The violets are arriving and the quality is fairly good. We have still fine gladioli, asters, dahlias and cosmos. The demand for greens is large and the shortage of smilax helps to clean up all others.

CLUB MEETING.

With an attendance of 76 members, President Jules Bourdet opened the meeting of the club, which was held October 12. The St. Louis Cut Flower Co. was the host. F. C. Weber, Jr., made a very interesting report of the recent meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, which he attended. F. X. Gorly, chairman of the publicity committee, reported his committee has a subscription of $216 for each month. The publicity committee will spend this sum for advertising in local newspapers.

The principal speaker of the meeting was R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., the president-elect of the S. A. F. In a short speech he outlined the work of the society and congratulated the club for getting the National Flower Show. He promised to help the St. Louis florists with their show in 1917. Mr. Bourdet was indorsed by unanimous vote for vice-president of the S. A. F. for the eastern district of Missouri.

The spring flower show committee made a very favorable report. Mr. Hummert stated that a $10,000 guarantee fund was subscribed by local florists. All committees are working hard to make this show a success. "St. Louis to the Front" is their slogan.

NOTES.

Windler Wholesale Flower Co. handles as many high grade dahlias and cosmos as anyone in the market and reports very good trade. Al Gumz, the manager of the sales department, is busy booking orders for Thanksgiving.

Fred Bruenig, W. H. Kruse, Mrs. Pelletier, Charles Juengel and Drehmer Floral Co., in the southern part of the city, report an exceedingly busy week in funeral orders and other lines of work.

At the Webster Grove Garden Club show, which was held during last week, Grimm & Gorly won first prize for baby shoes. Hy Duernburg was the artist.

Nat. Kinsley, of Mullanphy Florists, has been a big buyer of roses recently. Their downtown store is noticeable for a very fine window display.

Business in East St. Louis and other towns is improving and all florists expect to have a very good fall trade.

George Angermueller reports that his shipping trade in florists' supplies has kept up remarkably well.

V. J. Gorly, F. C. Weber, Jr., and F. Meinhardt attended the meet of the F. T. D. in Chicago.

R. Frow, of Normandy, has two splendid houses of Boston ferns and pompons.

Ayre Floral Co. has a splendid window decoration.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY MOVES FREELY.

Stock during the past week has been quite plentiful in most lines but at that there has not been enough to supply the demand. In consequence prices are good. Roses are most plentiful and prices range from five to 12 cents. Chrysanthemums are also increasing in numbers and are quoted at from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Carnations are also seen. Dahlias continue in heavy demand. Lily of the valley is exceptionally good. Green goods meet with good sales.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes had a very busy week with hospital and funeral orders. He is now cutting white and pink chrysanthemums and carnations show improvement. One day last week he asked one of his men to cut a few carnations. This worthy on the way to the houses asked another worker if he was through with the pipe wrench. Query: What kind of carnations is W. J. raising?

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports out-of-town trade is exceptionally good. Stock at the greenhouses, however, is none too plentiful. Manager Parker of the retail store, it is reported, will resign January 1, to enter the garage business.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a large supply of fine Russell, Sunburst, Ophelia, Milady and American Beauty roses. Chrysanthemums are also moving well in white, yellow and pink.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling a good line of home grown chrysanthemums. The rose supply is also large and of good quality. Lily of the valley seen here is very good.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports that sales show a good increase over the corresponding period last year. Trade in hospital and funeral work has been quite brisk.

M. E. Chandler is still cutting a good supply of dahlias, which sell readily, being about the only low priced flowers on the market.

Samuel Murray was a visitor to Chicago the past week, where he attended the Florists' Telegraph Delivery meeting.

A. F. Barbe is having an excellent trade and is cutting heavily on chrysanthemums, carnations and roses.

The Peterson Floral Co. reports good business and showing an increase. The store is well stocked in all lines.

Reinhardt & Son, of Shawnee, are sending in good pink chrysanthemums.

Indianapolis, Ind.

STOCK OF ALL KINDS SCARCE.

Reports are coming in from all parts of this locality that an abundant supply of flowers is soon to be had—this is very encouraging because as yet stock is very scarce. The only flowers that are available in quantity are roses, and they are cleaned up daily. Shorts are selling at $2 to $8 a hundred—quite a few long stems are to be had at $8. The quality of carnations has greatly improved and they are in great demand at from $2 to $3 a hundred. Lilies just divide up—orchids and lily of the valley have not lost any of their popularity and are bringing good prices. More chrysanthemums are coming in—several of the early varieties. Violets are scarce but snapdragons, buddleias and gladioli are still in. The green goods market is just about normal but smilax remains extremely scarce.

NOTES.

President Wilson honored us with a visit during our centennial celebration. Governor Ralston entertained for him with a banquet at which the color scheme of red, white and blue was carried out in flowers. Mrs. Wilson was presented with a bouquet of these colors. Although most of the floats of the parades were arranged with artificial flowers, a few were decorated in foliage plants, magnolia wreaths and oak foliage which were very effective.

Hensley Flower Shop had some exceptionally beautiful displays in their windows during the past two weeks.

As usual, Chas. Randall's place is spic and span. He is cutting some very fine carnations.

Frank Melick, formerly a grower of summer stock, is now with the A. Wiegand's Son's Co.

Frank Ball, of the Benson-Oilar Co. visited New Castle and Knightstown last week.

Funeral work has been very heavy this week.

Pittsburgh.

BUSINESS NOT UP TO STANDARD.

Trade has not been as good as usual the past week. All stores report a drop in business. There have been some weddings and funeral work, which helped out. Roses are plentiful but are not moving very good. American Beauties are not selling as well as last week and some are offered as low as $15 per 100 for specials. Dahlias are almost over, as the frost killed all except the ones that were protected. Carnations are good but not plentiful enough to supply the demand. Chrysanthemums are coming now and some very good Golden Queen, Unaka, Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are to be had. We look for heavier shipments next week. Yellow daisies and sweet peas are arriving, which seems earlier than any season before. Some good orchids are seen which find ready sale. Greens are plentiful, with the exception of smilax.

NOTES.

B. L. Elliott and J. W. Ludwig motored to Meyersdale to attend the wedding of De Forest Ludwig.

McCallum Company has put a new Vim truck into service to meet the increase in business.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., called on the local trade this week.
